A local citizen whose familiarity with mail conditions gives him the right to speak with authority suggests that the situation could be met by the postoffice department arranging with the New Haven road to have the Bar Harbor express stop here long enough to take on rush mail, or that the State of Maine express take on closed pouches for New York and Boston. This would insure delivery in both cities by six o'clock the next morning.

At the present time the postoffice sends mail east and west on the State of Maine which passes through Putnam around midnight but on June 17, the Bar Harbor Express starts running and it has been the custom in the past for the mail car, which is now on the State of Maine, to be transferred to the Bar Harbor Express, which does not stop at Putnam.

The matter will probably be brought to the attention of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce at their meeting Monday evening and a committee appointed to confer with Postmaster MacDonald to take such action as is considered advisable.

JEWETT CITY

People here are now beginning to realize what an inconvenience they are to suffer, when they realize the cold fact that no letter mail will be finished in distribution here, until pretty well toward 10 o'clock, each day. By comparison, our friendly city of Norwich to the south, will be little inconvenienced, for the reason that trains 36 and 28, the two big night Shore Line postal expresses, both make up in their letter cars, direct letter pouches for Norwich, which being left at New London at 2 a. m., will then be sent home in the "Baggage Car Ahead," that is to be operated by the railroad is lieu of the life-long boat train. On the other hand, our sister borough of Danielson up the line, won't get a letter from New York and the south and west, or Boston and the north and east until close to 9:45, then it must be distributed in the post office after that. Local photographers are preparing to take photographs for curio and other purposes, of the conglomeration train, when it arrives at 6 a. m., next Monday morning. There is one redeeming feature, and only one, which is this. That baggage car will save the day, for as one man was overheard to declare, "It will bring the Bulletins for us to read until the letter mail arrives along toward noon.

Enthusiasm is warming up for the coming big Fourth celebration. Already plans are being made for a considerable number of floats. Twenty-one years ago, many of the elaborate showings in the parade were manufactured by picked workmen, sworn to secrecy, and nobody knew what was in store for the thousands of sight-seers that thronged the streets, until the great parade actually moved. Wait till Mr. Lague's pulls into the line. In the other parade, nearly a quarter of a century ago, the late Eli Lague, who owned the same business now owned by his son, showed on his float a man actually being shaved.

The graduation exercises of the Griswold public schools were held, Thursday evening, in the Finn opera house. As is always the case, great interest is shown in these occasions, and every seat was occupied with enthusiastic townspeople. The platform was decorated as a woodland scene with evergreen trees for the background. An Indian wigwam, Indian blankets, snowshoes and skees, with beautiful laurel, the Indian flower, banked across the front of the platform, made a charming setting for the operetta which the graduates presented. The class motto, "Thought and Action" and Class of 1925 were on shields at either side of the stage. The class colors were black and gold. The orchestra was excellent. The members were: Piano, Margaret Jordan; first violin, Sarah Gill; second violin, Theodore Morey; drum, William Stebbins; triangle, Anna Shea; saxophone, Earl Robinson. The program opened with an invocation by Rev. G. Keene Gray. The salutatory was given by Sarah Geneva Gill. Ada Harrison gave the valedictory. The address to the graduates was delivered by Rev. J. W. Carter. The D. A. R. history prizes went to Sarah Gill first, and Ada Harrison second. Witoldo Bakanowsky received the prize in spelling. Supt. F. H. P. Clement presented the diplomas. The class song closed the exercises. An operetta: The Pioneer's Papoose, was splendidly acted by the children. The cast and musical numbers were as follows:

Ancient Stone Axes

Two stone axes, which may prove to be among the earliest antiquities thus far found within the limits of the United States, have been brought to the Smithsonian Institution by H. L. Straight, a brick manufacturer of Adel, Iowa, says Science. These ancient implements are cruely shaped and were discovered under 25 feet of apparently undisturbed clay, according to the information given to Neil M. Judd, archeologist of the United States National Museum, who investigating the find. The digging of a trench for the laying of a narrow-gauge railway in the clay pits used by Mr. Straight, led to the unearthing of the tools. On account of the possible importance of the discovery, the Smithsonian institution is planning to send a geologist to make a careful study of the site to determine whether the axes are as antique as the depth of burial indicates. Mr. Judd pointed out that before the extreme antiquity of the axes could be determined, the report of the geologist showing geologic age of the strata in which they were buried must be received.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Much has been said and written about The Cat and the Canary, the mystery thriller de luxe which the Augustin Stock company is presenting all of this week at the Palace theatre with a popular matinee tomorrow at 2.15, with all seats selling for 25c. However, in all the talk there is one figure of importance who seems to have been lost in the shuffle, and that's the character of Mammy Pleasant, the West Indian voodoo negress in the production. It is really Mammy Pleasant who sets the ball in motion in the very opening scene of The Cat and the Canary. Mammy is a rather weird figure. She is a firm believer in spooks and such like, and sincerely believes that she can hear these unearthly visitants talking to her. It is Mammy who predicts that "someone in this house is going to die tonight," and her prediction is followed in a dramatic fashion when the good hearted old lawyer, sniffing a mystery, comes into the library and starts looking for the hiding place of the ghastly visitor, only to have a pair of hands reach out from the thin air, choke him to death and vanish with the body. It is Mammy, again, who tells what is meant by the tolling of the grandfather's clock—a clock that hasn't been wound up for 20 years! In fact, she is one of the most mysterious figures in the most mysterious play ever written. There are only three more performances of the wonderful play, so be sure that you don't miss out on seeing it as to miss it will be to miss the best theatrical entertainment that has ever been your privilege to see. Get your tickets now. Then you won't be sorry when the week has passed and you find that you have missed it. The fun in The Cat and Canary is in seeing it, not in hearing the other fellow tell about it.

Broadway Theatre.

The only vaudeville in town is at the Broadway theatre, and is one of those kind of programs that you are going out and talk about to your friends and tell them what a great show you have seen.

Brooks and Smith, who term themselves "Thunder and Lightning," are a clever team of colored entertainers. They sing, talk and dance, with emphasis on the last. It is a fast offering throughout.

Stanton and Adams followed in the comedy hit called "Off for London," in which some real comedy is introduced that caused roars of laughter. Some very good singing makes this act a very fine offering.

The big treat of the show was the Juvenile Frolics of 1925. This miniature singing and dancing revue is a real delight. They have gained unanimous approval of all. It features the pirouette champion of the world, Sammy Krevoff, with Dorothy Hirshkind, Bernice Hirsh, Maxine Sheguill and Minerva Boskina.

Mary Manson in Character Impressions followed. These in most part are in songs, comedy lyrics of various types set to music. Her numbers are very pleasing and refreshing.

Alvin and Alvin closed the program. They are a pair of Europeas comics. They excell in clowning and acrobatics. They present new ideas running to fun.

The James Cruze-Paramount production, "Welcome Home," which opened at the Broadway theatre yesterday, is a nice, smooth, natural piece—no sex or triangle stuff—not even a jolly good murder—just a study of the little problems of daily life at times intensified to near tragedy, trailing into a humor as whimsical and impersonal as life, with very little reason and not much rhyme—just an effort to add a little more to the gaiety of this sad world.

"Welcome Home" was adapted for the screen by Walter Woods and Frank McGrew Willis from a stage play by Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman. Featured in the principal roles are Lois Wilson, Warner Baxter and Lois Cosgrave.

Bread Theater

More sympathetic and true than anything he has ever done before.

That's the way Hunt Stromberg describes Harry Carey's characterization in Silent Sanderson, his newest production, which comes to the Bread theater today and Saturday.

It is true that Carey, as the amiable, whimsical Joe Parsons, strikes the note of sympathy realism which is all too infrequently registered on the screen.

The most vital thing in Joel's life is his love for his younger brother. Beyond all selfishness, it spreads its protection about the boy—striving ward off the evil of the world. Joel fails in this, not because his love falters, but because the world's evil is stronger than the good in one man's heart. But before he fails, he makes a sacrifice—harder than death—to save his brother's happiness. He stifles his own love for Judith Benson, so that she will marry the boy who loves her.

This lovable character has been developed with deft touches by Kate Corbaley, the author, scenarist Harvey Gates, and Director Scott R. Dunlap.

The first sight of Joel,—a huge bulk of a he-man working among his famished little herd, fighting to get water for dying cattle, caring for the young ones with all the tenderness of a woman—is enough to make whatever follows of kindness and sacrifice seem logical as life.

The last chapter of The Iron Man, a Sunshine Comedy and Pathe News complete this bill.

Malaria carrying mosquitoes breed in the primitive wells and watering holes dug by nomadic shepherds of the Holy Land.

EASTERN CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Last year, though by no means a banner year, the industries of eastern Connecticut did a manufacturing business of more than $170,000,000. Large contributors to that total were the textile industries.

During the same twelve months the industries paid out a total of more than $28,000,000 in wages, and here again the textile plant figured conspicuously in the distribution of that sum.

Probably more than ever are the people who drive about the country by auto recognizing the large number of industries which are to be seen in this part of the state. They are the backbone of the communities and along with their success and development is to be measured the progress of cities, towns and villages.

But while it is possible to learn the amount of business which is being done by the many plants in great variety to be found from the sound to the Massachusetts border, within New London and Windham county and to view the mills and factories that have been built up one seldom knows what each and every one of them produces in the way of goods. We know in a general way but we are surprised when we find out how limited our knowledge really is. That this is a cotton mill or that a woolen mill, or the next a silk mill conveys no definite idea of what is being produced in the way of textiles in eastern Connecticut mills.

The textile exhibit which is being made by the Eastern Connecticut Mills association at Danielson is bound to open the eyes of those who attend. Such exhibits always do. There will be found goods that it was never dreamed were being produced so near home.

Such an exhibit is not only of great educational value but it is bound to show the importance which the textile mills are to this part of the state and to indicate how advantageous may find the facilities which are afforded in this end of Connecticut. This part of the state should appreciate the opportunity to better understand just what the textile industry means in goods as well as in wood and stone, or in spindles and looms.

DEPLORABLE LESSONS

Another grim reminder of the fact that it doesn't pay to try to beat out a locomotive is furnished by the killing of three men at a railroad crossing at South Bellingham, Mass. Unless the investigation discloses something to the contrary those deaths were entirely unnecessary, and that is unfortunately the case is too many accidents of a similar nature.

The South Bellingham crossing is partly hidden but it is guarded by a road caution and by a bell warning, neither of which appear to have received any attention from the driver of the car, which according to the report gave every indication of having tried to beat out the train.

It was only a few months ago that an auto party was wiped out just over the Rhode Island border on the way to Worcester through the negligence of the driver in failing to heed safety precautions. The investigation established the responsibility.

The grade crossing accidents may not all be attributable to carelessness or recklessness on the part of the motoring public, but there is a large proportion of them that would not occur if due care was exercised. It would have required but a moment's delay for the auto at South Bellingham to have stopped for the train to pass. There would never have been any loss in time to speak of by such an act. It would have insured in all probability the safe arrival of the party at its destination instead of being sent to eternity.

There is seldom a crossing accident that does not carry its warning to others. Unhappily they are so frequent that anyone who keeps in touch with the day's news cannot fail to be impressed by the horror of such affairs and the necessity for placing care above all else at such points. And yet in spite of the lessons and warnings the annual toll continues to pile up to deplorable numbers.

The cry may be for crossing elimination but until such a gigantic task is possible there most certainly is a crying need for the use of more care.

EXAMINATIONS ABROAD

If we are to judge by the reception the effort of this country to bring about the examination of immigrants on foreign soil is receiving abroad, it doesn't indicate that the British, at least, are disposed to give the extension of the relief which it is believed due to those contemplating coming to this country.

As a matter of fact this country is not asking the other countries to actually aid in the making of the tests about to be made. It is only natural that it should desire them to at least do something to help —— people realize the circumstances by giving encouragement to the plan.

The idea of this country is to relieve the immigrants of the hardships which have been shouldered by them of crossing the ocean and taking the chance of being sent back because they could not pass the examinations. There's the trip in the steerage and the expense of frodding which can be eliminated for those who are found by the examination abroad to fail to meet requirements. It means relief to the immigration stations on this side but even in that the immigrant is the real gainer.

According to certain British expression the attitude prevails in that country that if the immigrant passes the physical examiner abroad and is allowed to sail he should be permitted to enter this country. In most cases that would probably be the outcome, unless the quota was full, but this country could not be expected to abandon its right to exclude immigrants on other grounds, or if it was found that the examination abroad was incorrect or incomplete.

In the operation of the examination abroad it will mean more expense to this country than as if done here. It is an effort to eliminate certain conditions about which there has been criticism in the past. The real gainer is the immigrant and for that reason his welfare is worthy of fair consideration by other countries. It is not a matter which should be treated in such a manner as to result in the abandonment of the idea of examinations abroad, while the only aid which this country would ask of others would be to give the idea the encouragement it really deserves.

SUMMER RESORT FIRES

The conflagration at Nahant where 61 buildings were destroyed in quick order discloses the fire danger that exists in every such community where there are many wooden buildings built close together and without adequate means of fire protection.

Such a community has the advantage of being able to call upon surrounding cities for aid, and it did, but even that which the neighbors were willing to render was limited because of the lack of a proper water supply. Much more of the shore resort would have gone up in flames and smoke but for the arrival of a fireboat which could draw upon an inexhaustible water supply.

Perhaps it is surprising that more shore colonies are not wiped out by the visitation of fire. Certainly there are enough of such losses, but while precautions against fires are advisable at all times everywhere it is in the summer resorts where conditions require the exertion of every last ounce of care in order to give proper protection to self and others. Once a fire gets started it is hard to stop. The greatest service that can be rendered in such places is that of prevention and too much emphasis cannot be placed upon that requirement at all times.

Fires do not just kindle themselves. There have to be the right conditions and the customary amount of effort, through intention or otherwise. Negligence or thoughtlessness play their part and the most effective fire fighting can be carried out easily and quickly if everyone shoulders the responsibility of doing fire preventive work whenever the opportunity presents itself. That with adequate means of fighting fires would do much in keeping down great losses.

THE GAS-BACTERIA BAN

Now that the international conference at Geneva has adopted a protocol prohibiting the use of poison gas or bacteria in time of war, the effectiveness of this will be determined by the number of ratifications and the manner in which the respective nations stand by their promise.

The banning of poison gas and bacteria will affect all nations alike. It doesn't increase the advantage of one and handicap the other, provided there is a strict adherence to the ban. The use of poison gas has been against the rules of war. It was internationally agreed that it should not be used, such agreement having existed before the last war. But that with other promises went the same way when it was believed there was an advantage to be obtained by its use. The experience of Germany in this respect only served to demonstrate that it had no monopoly, that others could employ it as effectively if not more so and that it was a mistake to have disregarded the rule.

Perhaps poison gas and bacteria are not any more horrible than other forms of warfare but it is recognized as being highly desirable that such methods of fighting be prohibited. It is fortunate that the conference has been able to reach an agreement on this matter, in which the American delegation has played a conspicuous part, and it is to be sincerely hoped that the nations which were represented there will appreciate the importance of hastening the ratification of the protocol which has been adopted.

Even though there is a desire for international peace, the time has not yet come when all thought about the rules of war can be abandoned.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, June 11.—It has taken a long time to dispel one of the greatest and most expensive myths built up by the last Democratic administration but the country may thank President Coolidge that the truth is about to prevail at last and that an annual waste of something like $50,000,000 is about to be terminted. Reference is made to the shipping board.

In the history of the world it is doubtful if any single organization ever squandered more of a people's money than this precious institution. Organized as a war measure it was a failure from the very beginning. Although more than $3,000,000,000 of taxpayers money were dumped into this venture not a single American troop crossed the sea in a bottom constructed under the auspices of the board during the war. We were promised by Chairman Hurley 9,000,000 tons of shipping in 1918—and we did not get a single ton.

When the war was over instead of scuttling the entire organization the officer holders and politicians insisted that the board should be maintained for the purpose of keeping the American flag on the seven seas. The venture has been costing the country upwards of $50,000,000 for more than seven years while a corps of high priced press agents have been deceiving the public concerning the balance sheets. The scrapping process is under way and the sooner it is terminated the sooner the drain on the public purse will cease.

There are two lessons which the country should never forget as a result of this expensive venture. The first is that government ownership, as far as America is concerned is bound to fail. There is nothing in our history to justify it. The second is that until Americans are willing to leave their homes and go to sea at wages which satisfy Europeans or Orientals it is futile to expect to compete with certain maritime powers—unless of course the country agrees to a government subsidy. When water runs up hill we may expect to see the American flag, in times of peace, supplanting the British and German flags on the high seas.

Incidentally we may rest assured that the passing of the shipping board operations will be greeted with great glee in England. The British have complained bitterly that their shipping was being seriously interfered with by cut price German tonnage as well as the American board's operations which have been functioning on a camouflaged subsidy. Doubtless the British government will find ways to collect enough from American freight and tourists to help pay their debt to us. At any rate the bill will not be as great as that which we have been paying through the loss to the tax payers through the shipping board.

What is the total international trade of the world? Something over $52,000,000,000 in value. How is it divided? Imports, $27,000,000,000; exports $25,000,000,000 in round numbers, says the department of commerce:

Theoretically aggregate world exports should equal aggregate world imports if both were given values as of the countries of origin. That they are not equal is to be attributed chiefly to the fact that most countries value imports as of the point of arrival, including transportation and other charges. There are also differences among the countries in the method of valuation.

What is the share of the United States in this world trade? Roughly about 16 per cent, or 15.5 per cent of the imports and 18.4 per cent of the exports.

Fifty-two billion dollars worth of international trade is a nifty sum. But did you ever stop to think that the annual productivity of the United States eclipses that sum leaving a remnant over larger than our national debt? It is a fact. Our productivity runs between 70 and 80 billions a year. We exported less than 5 billion dollars worth of goods last year, so the home market for home-made goods is greater by at least $15,000,000,000 than the entire export and import trade of the world, in addition to which we sweeten our own brew with $3,600,000,000 worth of imported goods. Uncle Sam is quite a provider.

Official trade statistics recently compiled give some interesting facts and figures on the trade of the world. We have grown so accustomed to talking in billions that space need not be devoted to those countries whose trade falls below the nine cipher category. There are twelve of them among the 46 nations embraced in the compilation that make up 95 per cent of the world trade. Expressed in millions of dollars, arranged according to rank, imports and exports, respectively, they are:

| United Kingdom | 5,653 and 4,135 |
| United States | 3,610 and 4,691 |
| France | 2,102 and 2,171 |
| Germany | 2,176 and 1,356 |
| Canada | 798 and 1,855 |
| British India | 775 and 1,217 |
| Japan | 1,011 and 744 |
| Netherlands | 908 and 635 |
| Italy | 845 and 624 |
| Belgium | 816 and 647 |
| Argentina | 847 and 799 |
| Australia | 641 and 609 |

Now go back and take a squint at the showing of the British dominions. When we have developed an export trade of, say, 10 billions, it will act as an effective balance wheel on domestic over-production and its concomitant evils.

The National Industrial Conference Board, which has been conducting an investigation into relative wage standards among the principal manufacturing countries of the world, finds that, taking Philadelphia as a typical American industrial city and indexing the average wage there, in terms of purchasing power at 100, that Sydney, Australia, is 70; Ottawa, Canada, 69; London, 45; Copenhagen, 41; Oslo, (Christiana) Norway, 38; Amsterdam, 37; Stockholm, 36; Paris, 33; Berlin, 29; Prague, 29; Brussels, 28; Lodz, Poland, 27; Rome 23; Vienna, 23; Warsaw, Poland, 23; and Milan, Italy, 21.

If we discuss wages in relation to the tariff, it is interesting to note, for example, that whereas the wages in Philadelphia are 122 per cent higher than they are in London, the present American tariff law is but 5 per cent higher than that of the so-called safeguarding of industries act recently readopted by the British parliament. That is to say, the average rate of duty on all dutiable goods entering this country is about 35 per cent, while the rate imposed by the British law and applied to some 6,000 different classes of imported merchandise, is 33 1-3 per cent.

The British board of trade is clothed with plenary authority to raise this rate or to extend its application as it may see fit, without let or hindrance from the premier or parliament. The United States tariff commission, at the request of the president, may investigate and report on the advisability of raising or lowering dutiable rates within 50 per cent limits of the particular duties, and the president may, if he then chooses, concur in and make effective the findings of the Commission by an executive order. Then the fun begins.

While the "Locarnations" fight was raging in this country a great American authority on international relations, in a lecture, expressed his opinion that the next war would be between a combination of Russia and the Near and Far East, on one side, and the former allies, Germany and the United States on the other, the Mongoloid combination bent on world conquest, and the Caucasians opposing the attempt. The authority in question expressed his belief that the organization of the league as then planned would hasten the disaster.

The league is piddling out, but Russia is mischievously active, and if the poison propaganda of her communists spreads as it appears to be doing in China, the aforesaid authority may live to see his prediction come true. Tamerlane made a try of it six centuries ago. Anyhow, here is a good thought for Defense day.

April imports increased from $324,000,000 in 1924 to $348,000,000 this year, exports increased from $347,000,000 to $399,000,000. The tariff doesn't seem to be hurting our world trade, going or coming.

GREAT WATER MYSTERY

"It's terrible," said Felicia, "to be without running water! When I got home a few minutes ago and came out here in the kitchen to get dinner started and found there was no water I could have cried. You'll simply have to talk to the landlord, Jack."

"I've talked to him already," returned Felicia's husband, "and he says that the pump is all right, but the city water pressure is low, and that—"

"It's his old alibi," said Felicia. "If the city pressure is low he should install a good pump. How are we going to live here without water?"

"It never happened before. It will probably be running gayly in no time. I'll bet my hat that when we come back there will be a flood."

"What do you mean, when we come back? We aren't going out tonight."

"On the contrary! This little water famine gives me an excellent excuse for taking a certain lady friend of mine out to dinner. We can drop in at the movies afterward."

"Not tonight, please! We can't afford to go out to dinner so often. Besides, I have such a nice meal all planned. I made the dessert this morning and there's no sense in not eating right here at home. You can do down to the basement and bring up some water in a pail, and if the janitor is there you just tell him that we—"

"I'm frightened of that janitor. He doesn't appreciate my eloquence. Besides, it's rather dark down there and while I'm a brave man who fought the battle of Tours in the great—"

"Well, something has to be done! I wish my brother Jim would drop in now. He can always think of some way out of every difficulty. You know yourself how he thought of taking the door down when we couldn't get my trunk into the guest room closet. You never thought of that."

"No, but I thought of putting it up again, after Jim had done his bit. He's a good scout, old Jim, but he has more initiative than finish in his makeup. Come on, Felicia, put on your bonnet, and we'll go buy ourselves a nice little dinner. You know you love to."

"Not when I have food that may spoil in the house. If you won't do anything about the water, I'll call Jim. No, you can do it while I stir up the cornbread. Thank fortune that doesn't require any water. Now please hurry and tell Jim what we have to endure and ask him what—"

"I'm on!" said Jack, leaving the room with a tremendous show of haste. In a moment he was back in the kitchen with a wrench in his hand.

"What are you going to do with that?" asked Felicia, looking up from the batter she was beating severely.

"I'm going to turn on the water at the kitchen sink, my dear. There has been plenty of it all the time in the bathroom, so we weren't in such a desert as you imagined. Jim tells me that he dropped in here this morning and put in the new fuller ball at the kitchen faucets, as you requested some time ago. He remarked that it is handy having a key to the apartment. He—"

"But why isn't the water running here in the kitchen?"

"Well, Felicia, Jim says he's afraid he forgot to turn it on again after he got the fuller ball fixed. But he told me just how to do it. Jim's a wonder all right, all right."

Felicia poured the golden batter into the pan.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir Oliver Lodge, who today enters upon his seventy-fifth year, is regarded as Britain's greatest living scientist. A man of many parts, Sir Oliver is equally at home with mechanics, electricity, wireless, lightning conductors, educational reform, mathematics, and sundry other branches of modern science. He began business life at the early age of fourteen. Even as a boy he took a keen interest in science, and most of his spare time was spent in studying books and dreaming dreams. When he got older he used to attend lectures and evening classes, and by steady application to work he laid the foundation for his success in the scientific world. Of late years the distinguished savant has devoted himself to a study of the continuity of life, before and after death, as essential to science. Tas war deepened his conviction of the reality of spirit intercourse, and his sensational book, "Raymond," which caused a good deal of controversy, narrates his beliefs regarding communications with his dead soldier son of that name.

From Small Beginnings

Daniel Lambert the Fattest of Men

Misfortunes do not matter half so much as the way one takes them. It is hardly possible to read anywhere the story of any great man who led an entirely fortunate life. In fact, the record of all success is very largely the record of mastering misfortune.

Among the people who have become famous there are men who did little except to do the best they could. "Tom Thumb," the dwarf, was famous not only because he was the smallest of men but also because he made himself an interesting personality. The Emperor Gaius Maximus of Rome, the tallest of men, became Emperor largely because he was tall, but he made himself famous by wicked deeds. Daniel Lambert of England came into attention because he was the "fattest of men." Unlike Maximus, he did the best he knew how, made a favorable impression, and left a pleasant memory. He is said to have weighed nearly 740 pounds. He was so huge that there were many doors through which he could not pass. As for traveling in an ordinary carriage, that was quite out of the question. He could not even sit in the chairs used by other people for fear of breaking them down. He was what Shakespeare called a "mountain of flesh."

Everyone in London in 1807 went to see him in the place where he posed as a "freak." They found him stolid and cheerful doing the one thing he could do, and doing it happily.

"How did you get so big?" everyone asked him.

"Don't know," he would gasp out. "Used to be like other folks—ran races, wrestled, fought. Father kept a jail: I was the only one there to grow fat. Others grew thin. I kept jail, too; did it 15 years, got fatter all the time."

The jailer's son was the butt of constant jokes based upon his increasing size. "He eats all that the prisoners ought to get; look at them; see how thin they are!" people said. As a matter of fact, it was quite the other way. The huge jailer did the best he knew how, took proper care of his prisoners, and bore abuse with good nature. From being like everyone else as a boy, and leading a perfectly normal life, he began in early manhood to take on weight until at last he left his position and became a "freak." He died at the age of 36, good-natured to the last." He had worked honestly and lived honestly. That was success.

Jokes That Recall Others

Speaking His Mind.

There are two "kids" in this family who are inclined to give vent to vocal utterances upon the slightest provocation. They "broadcast" whether the occasion is quite opportune or not.

They had been taken to the movies by the father. There was a scene where the hero drew his sword and thrust it in the bosom of the fire breathing dragon. A hush went through the audience. As the sword was withdrawn the blood of the dragon rushed out after it. This was too much for the boy who gave vent to his feelings by exclaiming "to the world:"

Nods Didn't Count.

Lawyers and judges often times have considerable trouble with witnesses. Some persist in explaining their answers instead of replying to the questions asked while others testify unwillingly and lower their voices until they cannot be heard by anyone in the court room. Recently a witness was admonished to speak louder. The witness then began to shake his head in response to "yes" and "no" questions. "Don't nod so much" the court told the witness and later when the judge and all the lawyers became thoroughly exasperated the court was forced to adjourn long enough to explain to the witness, "We can't get the nods in the record."

Keeps Map That Inspired Columbus

The map that served to inspire the voyage of Columbus to the new world is carefully stowed away in a wooden box, less than a yard long, in the National Library in Paris. It is a hand-painted chart of the design known as "plain sphere," which means the representation of the circles of the sphere on a plane, especially a projection of the celestial sphere and the stars on a plane passing through the Arctic or Antartic.

Ants do not like castor oil, for Brazilian agricultural experts have found that the slowly burnt seed of the castor oil plant produces fumes that not only kill the ants, but prevent the nest from being reinfested.

OBITUARY

James J. Maher

(Contributed.)

Sunday afternoon June 7th, James J. Maher died suddenly of heart trouble at the home of his sister, Mrs. John P. Murphy, of 23 Spruce street.

The funeral services were held at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning at St. Patrick's church, a requiem mass being sung by Rev. John Riley. The bearers were Ex-postmaster John P. Murphy, John Donovan, Charles Woodmansee and Jacob Keck. Many beautiful floral forms were sent by friends. Rev. Myles P. Galvin read the committal service at the grave in St. Mary's cemetery. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Cummings and Ring.

Mr. Maher was the only son of James Maher and Anna Dease. He came to Norwich when a boy. His father, James Maher, Sr., was supervisor on the New London and Worcester division of the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad.

At the age of sixteen, young Mr. Maher began work for the New Haven railroad in the telegraph and ticket office service at Norwich. Later, he was transferred to telegraphic work in the Transportation building. The railroad boys always called him "Jim."

Mr. Maher's quiet, pleasing personality, and his great loyalty to his friends made him very popular. He became a member of the Norwich lodge of Elks, and this happy influence remained with him always.

Through vigilant, earnest and strenuous work, Mr. Maher was advanced to the highly responsible position of train despatcher at New London, where he remained for several years. "Jim" loved his job, his train sheet was his greatest delight. His splendid work won many testimonials from his superior officers.

One Yale-Harvard boat race day, the president of the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad personally congratulated Mr. Maher for his safety-first, highly efficient methods of directing the observation trains along the bank of the Thames river.

"Jim" often told the story of the night he rode with Teddy Roosevelt. It seems that President Roosevelt was in a special train hastening to see his son, who was ill at school near Boston, and Mr. Maher was selected to help pilot the president's train over this line of the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad.

Mr. Maher did his bit during the late World war by acting as ticket agent for the Central Vermont railroad at Norwich. At various intervals, he was occupied in Hartford, Connecticut; Newburg, N. Y.; Troy, N. Y., and in Webster, Ware, Palmer and Boston, Mass.

About three years ago, Mr. Maher became associated with Princeton University Press work at Princeton, N. J. He telegraphed the university press correspondence to the Associated Press and United Press and to the following newspapers: New York Times, New York Journal, New York Herald, New York Sun, New York American, New York Tribune, New York Evening Post, Chicago Tribune, Boston American, Boston Globe, Boston Post, Boston Herald, Boston Transcript, Christian Science Monitor, Philadelphia North American, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, Philadelphia Evening Ledger, Philadelphia Inquirer, Philadelphia Record, Washington Post, Standard News, Pittsburgh Gazette Times, Baltimore Sun, Newark Sun Call, Newark News and Trenton Times.

Numerous editors and publishers of big newspapers showed their appreciation of Mr. Maher's work by frequently inviting him to be their guest at their homes.

At the Western Union Telegraph office in Princeton, every evening, found Mr. Maher at his desk, the center of a group of young, enthusiastic college men, preparing their manuscripts and stories to be wired by the big city newspapers. "Jim" worshipped his job and idolized the young college journalists to whose work he dedicated the best effort of his eye, ear, brain and hands. Their true friendship and fine appreciation of his work, Mr. Maher considered his highest reward. At the big Princeton university football games, with their eighty thousand spectators, the college pressmen and Mr. Maher occupied an elevated wire station at the stadium from which was flashed the progress of the game, minute by minute, to the big city newspapers.

A year back from this writing, Mr. Maher was happily immersed in his work, intensive and faithful to a degree of self-sacrifice. He has passed forever from the field of work he loved so well at Princeton university, to be admitted we trust, to a larger field in the Master's House, and to hear the blessed welcome: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

DID CITY GAS AND ELECTRICAL WORKER SET HOUSE ON FIRE WITH GASOLINE TORCH?

Evidence presented before Judge Isaac Wolfe in the court in this city Thursday brings the question up for him to decide as to whether an employe of the city gas and electrical department, who was using a gasoline torch, started the fire that destroyed the Saem turnpike dwelling house of Sarah E. Willard two days before Christmas.

Two suits against the city were on trial jointly before Judge Wolfe, one by the owner of the house, Mrs. Willard, for $7,500 for the value of the house and for $750 for furniture in it, and the other by Alfred H. Beebe, the tenant in the property, for $2,000 for the value of household furnishings lost by the fire.

The substance of the plaintiff's claim, disclosed by the evidence, is that the fire which broke out apparently at or near the southwest corner of the house, where a city department employe had been using a gasoline torch, had been started by the torch, with which wires to the house conduit had been soldered. As the workman was returning to the city after finishing the job, he passed the fire apparatus at Forest street on its way to respond to the call for the fire at the Willard house.

The defense of the city is in the testimony of workmen that the gasoline torch was used with care, did not set fire to the house and that they saw no fire when they left the place.

The evidence was all in when court adjourned Thursday afternoon and the arguments will be made before Judge Wolfe next Wednesday morning. Attorney E. W. Perkins represents the plaintiffs, corporation counsel William H. Shields, Jr., and J. J. Desmond the city.

Testimony by Alfred H. Beebe, the plaintiff, opened the case. He was followed by George D. Phillips, Walter Durr, Wilfred A. White, Thomas C. Leffingwell, Frederick L. Beard and Mrs. Minnie L. Beebe, wife of the plaintiff.

Wm. G. Grady, an employe of the Gas and Electrical department of the city, was the first witness for the defendant. He has been employed about six years and was employed in putting in the service at the Beebe house. He described what he did in connecting the service, using a ladder against the house. He told of soldering the wires where they were pictailed, using the torch as he stood on the ladder. He said he didn't turn the torch on full force until he got ready to do the soldering. He kept the flame about a foot away from the house. When he had finished he carried the torch down the ladder and gave it to the man on the pole. Then he went up the ladder to tape the joints. He saw no indication of fire at that time, he said. There was no wind to blow the torch flame around. After finishing the work he went int othe cellar to test out.

The witness illustrated with a model the steps he followed in making the connections of the wires to the conduit on the house. He denied that the torch he was using set fire to the house. He met the fire apparatus at Forest street when he was on his way back to the city plant after finishing the wiring at the Willard house. After he had returned to the plant, he went back to the Willard house, which by that time had been completey destroyed.

On cross examination he testified that the test he made in the cellar showed O. K., and there were no "shorts." He opened the switch and left it open after the tests.

Henry J. Humphrey, a lineman for the City Gas and Electrical department for five years, testified that he was the one who hooked up the service on the pole to the Willard house. He saw Grady using the torch at the house and the flame was not near the house. After Grady had finished his work, the witness said that Grady put the torch on a hand line by which Humphrey pulled it up to the pole to do his work. The witness said that Grady carried the torch up and down the ladder and did not use a rope.

William W. Carrigan, line foreman for the City Gas and Electrical department, told of directing the men to run the secondaries and the services and of telling Grady and Humphrey to hook up at the Quinlan and Willard houses. When this had been done he looked it over and saw no signs of fire. Since this fire, the witness said, he had tried to set fire to wood with a gasoline torch and had found he could solder seven joints by the time the wood is scorched.

The defendant rested at this point and Attorney Perkins called Mr. Beebe in rebuttal, who testified that his house is 2 1-2 miles from Franklin Square and Forest street is half a mile from the center of the city. He said the weather was very dry at the time of the fire and the walls and roof of his house were dry.

ST. VINCENT GUILD SERVICES ARE ENTERTAINED

The services of St. Vincent's Guild of the diocese met in Norwich Thursday and were entertained at Christ Episcopal church at a supper served at 6 o'clock. Following the supper a beautiful choral evensong was held in the church. At 6 o'clock the 200 local and visiting members of the Guild gathered in the social room of Christ church where they enjoyed the following menu at a buffet luncheon:

Creamed potatoes
Rolls Cake
Strawberry Ice Cream
Coffee Milk

Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins was chairman of the supper committee and was assisted by Mrs. Frederick A. Benton, Mrs. Charles H. Preston, Miss Mary Osgood, Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Eben Learned, of Christ church; Mrs. Fitch A. Dolbeare, Mrs. Nellie Johnson and Mrs. Gordon of St. Andrew's church. Mr. and Mrs. W. Russell Baird assisted in the serving of the ice cream and Miss Martha Osgood and Miss Mary Richards had charge of the table decorations which were very attractive. Members of the Girls Friendly Society of St. Andrew's church and of the Young Peoples' Fellowship of Christ church assisted in serving the 200 present.

At 7:30 o'clock a beautiful evensong was held in the church with an attendance of over 200. A feature of the service was the procession of the visiting girls, boys and men's vested choirs. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of Christ church, Rev. Mr. Nason of Hartford, and the master of ceremonies, Burton Robinson, and Rev. Lionel E. W. Mitchell, rector of St. Andrew's church, attended by Robert Moody and Clifford Moody.

The scripture lesson, from St. John 6, beginning with the 53rd verse was read by Clifford Moody. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Mr Nason of Hartford. He took his text from St. John 4: 9. The church militant and the church expectant join with the angel choir in singing Christ's holy hymn to the Father, he said in the course of his sermon. We were created to worship God and for no other reason. We begin here and this life is but a preparation for the glorious joy of the life hereafter. Here on earth we have the throne of God where God dwells among us. Without the altar we have no church. By the cross, joy and light have come into the world. As we look at the earthly altar we see the seven candlesticks. Jesus Christ is with us.

He is really here as he is in heaven. God sent Jesus Christ to dwell among us that we might worship Jesus Christ at the altar. When we pray to Jesus Christ we are praying to God. We stretch forth our hands at the altar and we receive God. We can only become like God, can only please God by loving our blessed Lord, the Son of God. In the blessed sacrament we have Jesus. Let us make ready use of the great sacrament that through the sacrament we may do miracles in this world, above all that we might have a great love for our fellowmen.

FLAG DAY WILL BE OBSERVED ON SUNDAY

Sunday, June 14th, will be observed in Norwich as well as in every city and town in the country as flag day.

There are certain fundamental rules of heraldry which, if understood generally, would indicate the proper method of displaying the flag. The matter becomes a very simple one if it is kept in mind that the National Flag represents the living country and is itself considered as a living thing. The union of the flag is the honor point; the right arm is the sword arm, and therefore the point of danger and hence the place of honor.

1. The flag should be displayed only from sunrise to sunset, or between such hours as may be designated by proper authority. It should be displayed on national and state holidays, and on historic and special occasions. The flag should always be hoisted briskly and lowered slowly and ceremoniously.

2. When carried in procession with another flag or flags, the flag of the United States should be either on the marching right, i. e. the flag's own right, or when there is a line of other flags, the flag of the United States may be in front of the center of that line.

3. When displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, the flag of the United States should be on the right, the flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag.

4. When a number of flags are grouped and displayed from staff, the flag of the United States should be in the center or at the highest point of th egroup.

5. When the flag of states or cities or pennants of societies are flown on the same halyard with the flag of the United States, the national flag should always be at the peak. When flown from adjacent staffs the flag of the United States should be hoisted first. No flag or pennant should be placed above or to the right of the flag of the United States.

6. When flags of two or more nations are displayed they should be flown from separate staffs off the same height and the flags should be of approximately equal size. (International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of another nation in time of peace.)

7. When the flag is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony, or front of building, the union of the flag should go clear to the head of the staff unless the flag is at half staff.

8. When the flag of the United States is displayed in a manner other than by being flown from a staff it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out. When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right, i. e. to the observer's left. When displayed in a window it should be displayed the same way, that is, with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street. When festoons, rosette or drapings of blue, white and red are desired, bunting should be used, but never the flag.

9. When displayed over the middle of the street, as between buildings, the flag of the United States should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east-and-west street or to the east in a north-and-south street.

10. When used on a speaker's platform, the flag should be displayed above and behind the speaker. It should never be used to cover the speaker's desk nor to drape over the front of the platform. If flown from a staff it should be on the speaker's right.

11. When used in unveiling a statue or monument, the flag should not be allowed to fall to the ground but should be carried aloft to wave out, forming a distinctive feature during the remainder of the ceremony.

12. When flown at half staff, the flag is first hoisted to the peak and then lowered to the half staff position, but before lowering the flag for the day it is again raised to the peak. On Memorial day, May 30th, the flag is displayed at half staff from sunrise until noon, and at full staff from noon until sunset, for the nation lives and the flag is the symbol of the living nation.

A flag in any position below the top of the staff (chock-a-block) is technically in the half-staff position, but in general the middle point of the hoist of a flag at half staff should, in the case of an unguyed flag staff of one piece, be halfway between the top of the staff and the foot thereof, or, in the case of a flag staff with cross tree or guy cables, half way between the top of the staff and the crosstree or point of attachment of the guy cables. Local conditions, such as the liability of fouling the flag, may, however, dictate other positions, a graceful one being with the top of the flag the depth of the hoist below the top of the staff.

13. When used to cover a casket, the flag should be placed so that the union is at the head and over the left shoulder. The Flag should not be lowered into the grave nor allowed to touch the ground. The casket should be carried foot first.

14. Mourning. No flag carried as in a parade should be half staffed. Mourning should be indicated by two streamers of black crepe attached to the head of the lance. A proper period of mourning is thirty days. During this period flags flown on fixed staffs should be half staffed.

15. When the Flag is displayed in church it should be from a staff placed on the congregation's right as they face the clergyman. The service flag, the state flag, or other flag should be at the left of the congregation. If in the chancel, the Flag of the United States should be placed on the clergyman's right as he faces the congregation and other flags on his left.

16. When the Flag is in such a condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display it should not be cast aside or used in any way that might be viewed as disrespectful to the National Colors, but it should be destroyed as a whole, privately, preferably by burning or by some other method in harmony with the reverence and respect we owe to the emblem representing our Country.

WILL CONTEST CASE HAS BEEN SETTLED

The case of James Main, of Groton, vs. Frank Hinckley, admr., et. al., an appeal from probate, which was scheduled for trial in the superior court this week was settled out of court, Thursday. Announcement of the settlement of the case was made following a several hours' deliberation Thursday between counsel for the plaintiff and defendant. The terms of settlement were not made public, but it was stated by one of the attorneys in the matter, that the case had been settled satisfactorily to both parties, and was very fair.

The litigation between the parties was over the will made by the late Jane E. White, of New London, who died on Oct. 5, 1923, leaving an estate of about $23,000. Of this sum $2,000 was left to the grandson, while the remainder was left to Amelia Godfrey, of Groton, and Daniel P. White, of North Stonington, aunt and uncle of the grandson.

According to the complaint the probate court of Groton, on Oct. 29, 1923, probated a certain written instrument purporting to have been executed July 20, 1920, as the last will and testament of Jane E. White.

John H. Ryan of Stonington was named executor and upon his death, Frank H. Hinckley of Mystic was made administrator.

Frederick A. Main, a minor of 18 years, is a grandson of Jane E. White, and son of Nellie A. Main, whose death occured on June 19, 1920. He is also the complainant, in the action, bringing it through his father and guardian, James F. Main. He claims that he is an heir-at-law of the decedent, Jane E. White.

Jane E. White died the owner of real estate and personal property, valued at $23,000 located in New London. In her will she made provision for her grandson, leaving him $2,000, and the remainder to Amelia Godfrey of Groton and Daniel P. White of North Stonington, aunt and uncle of the appellant.

The reasons for appeal, are stated in a part of the complaint. It stated that the appellant, Frederick Main, grandson, is grieved by the order and decree of the probate court of Groton takes an appeal to the superior court because Jane E. White, did not sign, seal, declare, publish, execute the instrument alleged to be her last will and testament.

At the time when said pretended will is supposed to have been made and executed and for a long time prior to Jane E. White was suffering from severe and painful bodily ailments, and greatly impaired health, unsound memory and was incapable of making a valid will.

Amelia Godfrey and Daniel P. White, beneficiaries, had taken undue and improper advantage of her health and of her feeble and deranged mind and of her mental and physical ailment and unduly and improperly influenced the said Jane E. White to execute the said instrument and will, it is alleged.

ANNA CARBRAY ABLE TO LEAVE HOSPITAL

Anna Weltin Carbray, who was shot twice ten days ago by her divorced husband, John Carbray, at the same time as he shot her alleged affinity, Herman Greimer, was discharged from the Backus hospital Thursday and went to her home on the East Side.

One of the bullets which she received from her husband's revolver had been removed from the plate where it lodged near her windpipe but the other has been allowed to remain.

One of the puzzling points after the shooting has been to find out how Carbray got into her home the night of the shooting, but it is understood that information is now in the hands of the authorities that she had been allowing her divorced husband to visit her at night since the divorce, leaving a window open by which he entered and left her tenement and that it was through the window that he got in on the night of the shooting.

BULKELEY BALL TEAM HAS FINE BRILLIANT RECORD FOR THREE YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 11—In three years of baseball playing, Bulkeley has accomplished a wonderful record which will stand for some time to come. It is interesting to bring forth these statistics to prove that Bulkeley indeed had a wonderful nine for three years in succession. The success, which began with the season of 1923, progressed until its brilliant culmination this season which marked the second State championship baseball team which this school has produced in three years and the team which tied two other nines for the High school honors. During that span of time the team brought in 45 victories as weighed against 6 defeats.

Fourteen victories marked the first year of ball playing against three defeats, while in the year 1924 fourteen more victories were banged out but the number of defeats was cut down to two. The present season, which has just closed, finds Bulkeley breezing in ahead by 17 victories and but a single defeat—and that defeat coming at the hands of a team which was previously defeated by a score of 16 to 2. The teams of 1923 and 1925 have seen championship service under the Orange and Black colors. The year 1924 found the locals gaining an even break for the high honors with two other nines in the state.

The high lights of the wonderful record show Bulkeley compiled a run of victories which reached twenty-three, extending from the year of 1923 to 1924. The break in the victory string came in the game with Crosby high at Waterbury. It was in that same week, that Tillie Daniels, undefeated in his starts on the mound up until that game, lost his only game of his high school career to Springfield. Bulkeley lost its second game of the year by losing to that nine.

Starting out as the Bulkeley nine did three years ago with eight sophomores on the nine, who were inexperienced ball players, one of the greatest machines ever built up will depart for places and destination which are at present unknown. The last time this great machine assembled it snowed Leominster High under a veritable avalanche of runs, and in that final contest for the school a nine never behaved any better.

In the records of the three years of baseball superiority in the state, Bulkeley waded through the opposition with a forceful determination to arrive at some good conclusion. A total of 472 runs have been knocked in by Bulkeley batters while the opposition could only batter down the barrier of the Bulkeley fort for 151 tallies. That is some comparison, and shows plainly that a majority of the Bulkeley victories reached double figures.

On Friday evening the majority of the team—for there are seven of them—will receive their diplomas and sever their connections with Bulkeley for all time. Their places will be hard to fill, but now that Bulkeley has established itself so firmly among the leading High school nines in the state it will be hard to separate the locals from continuing to share the limelight in years to come.

In the record for this year, the largest schools in the state were overwhelmingly defeated. Such nines as Bridgeport, Crosby, Commercial High of New Haven, Meriden High and other strong nines have been conquered with neatness and dispatch.

WINDHAM'S BASEBALL SEASON IS FAR FROM IMPRESSIVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, June 11—Whether or not Coach T. A. Callaghan's galaxy of ball tossers win Saturday's game from Washington High school of Meriden, Windham High school will have completed one of the most unsuccessful baseball seasons in her annals. Local followers are in no way certain that a victory will be the result of Saturday's undertaking at Recreation Park for the Silver City lads have already obtained one decision over the locals earlier in the season in Meriden. The game will start promptly at 2:15 o'clock. John J. Sullivan will be the umpire. "Johnnie" Miele will adorn the hillock for Windham when the game opens.

The Crimson and Blue athletes have already won three games and dropped nine, making their best showing in this city on May 27, when they were defeated by the state championship Bulkeley High school outfit of New London 7 to 5.

With no exceptional material available from last year, Coach Callaghan had his hands full in whipping together a team which would make some kind of a showing. His two man pitching staff did commendable work and the offensive power of the aggregation exceeded the expectations of local fans but the defense of the team was woefully weak and therein lies the reason for the disastrous results in practically all of the defeats.

Windham's record to date follows:

| | W. | L. | S. | Opp. |

| Chapman Tech | 0 | | | 5 |

WILLIAMS' HITTING AND FIELDING FEATURES GAME

Boston, June 11.—(AP)—The heavy hitting of Kenneth Williams was chiefly responsible for St. Louis taking the second straight game from Boston 8 to 7 today. ## ATHLETICS DROP CLOSE GAME TO WHITE SOX

Philadelphia, June 11—(A. P.)—The White Sox evened the series here today by taking the second game from the Athletics by the score of 6 to 5. Rommel and Robertson were both driven from the hill in the third inning but excellent relief hurling by Mike Cvengros and Arthur Stokes brought a halt to the hitting and turned a slugging game into a hurling duel. ## ROUGH WATER INTERFERS WITH YALE PRACTICE

Gales Ferry, June 11—(A. P.)—Water conditions which interfered with the training of the Yale crews here this morning, improved this afternoon and the coaches took advantage of the change and had the crews, with the exception of the first varsity out on the river early for time trials.

The combination crew went over the course first followed by the junior varsity and the freshmen. The time made by the freshmen, the only one made public, was 9:49 for the two miles.

After the junior varsity crew had completed its time trial, Ed. Leader sent the man for a long row upstream without him, while he took the varsity for a paddle down stream to the railroad bridge. The varsity finished by pushing up the stroke, rowing the last 10 yards at a 36.

Visitors at the camp today, included J. Gilbert Shephard, '13, of Hartford, former coxswain. J. Fred Baker of New Haven, and Mrs. Sheffield, widow of the late George St. John Sheffield of the class of '63, who for years spent the training period of the crews at Gales Ferry and who was one of its most enthusiastic supporters until his death last fall.

CENTRALS BEAT PALACE IN TWILIGHT GAME LAST EVENING

In the twilight game Thursday evening, at the Duwell Field, the Centrals defeated the Palace Baseball team to the tune of 12 to 6. In winning their game, the Centrals proved themselves to be a powerful team, and one that is bound to cause a lot of trouble for other teams in the league before the season is over. This team, under the management of Jimmy Melland, last year's manager of the pennant winning East Ends, is composed of a young bunch of players, most of whom are under twenty years of age. Their fielding was sharp, and their hitting clean and timely. The Palace nine showed itself to be a powerful hitting team, but was rather weak in the field.

Gaudette, pitching for the Centrals, had but one bad inning, the sixth, when the Palace scored four runs on four hits. He held the opposing team to nine hits, and fanned a like number. Although a little wild, his control was good when he most needed it and his fast ball proved hard to hit with men on bases.

Jim Shea, who pitched for the Palace, was touched up for eight hits during his stay on the mound, and like Gaudette experienced one bad inning, the second, when the Centrals scored six runs. Mike Morin, pitched the last two frames and three runs were scored off his delivery.

The Centrals opened their attack in the second inning when eleven men stepped to the plate, six of whom scored. Gaudette opened the inning with a single and went all the way to third when Simcox threw wild over first on Tombari's hit to short. Gaudette scored when Simcox took Lynch's grounder and tried to get him at the plate, Tombari scored on Yerrington's single to left, Lynch going to third. After Gauthier fanned, both Yerrington and Lynch scored on Courbois' single to center.

Courbois stole second, and after L. Dugas had flied out to left, came in when Leo Morin let Eccleston's roller go through his legs. Eccleston went to second on a wild throw, to third on a passed ball and came home when Burns threw wild to third in trying to pick him off the bag. Tombari up for the second time grounded out to F. Dugas.

The Palace came back with two runs in their half of the inning. Jackson was hit by a pitched ball and went on to second when Simcox erred on Mulcahy's grounder. J. Jackson then stole third and Mulcahy, second. Both scored when Simcox hit a high fly to short right field which dropped safe, when L. Dugas tripped just before attempting the catch. The Palace then went out in one-two-three order. They did not score again until the sixth when they launched their only real attack of the game. In this frame they scored four times on three singles and a double. They were stopped in short order, when, with one out, Courbois made a nice catch of Jackson's short fly to center and doubled up Chip Dugas at first. In the meantime, the Centrals had been forging steadily ahead with one run in the third and fourth, two in the fifth, and three in the final inning, and were away in front at the end of the game.

Courbois' playing featured. He made four hits out of five trips to the plate, one of which was a long double, and another a pretty bunt single. He fielded his position in flawless style. He starred in the field with three nice catches, and started the double play in the sixth inning and his all-round playing easily made him the star of last night's game. The score:

Tonight's Game

Tonight's game between the St. Joseph's team and the Yantic Mills will wind up the first week of the twilight league and according to all reports should prove to be the best game of the week. It should be an attraction owing to the fact that this is the first time that a team has been put onto the field in Norwich to represent the Polish people. Everything possible should be done to help encourage the St. Joseph's team during the season in their first attempt at baseball in Norwich. There are many fast Polish boys who have played from time to time on different teams and no doubt now that they have banded together should furnish some of the best baseball in the league. To prove that they really mean business, they have signed up three lads who have recently returned from college and also Tony West of the State Hospital, who last year burned them over in the International league for Baltimore. Whether the rest of the team is fast or not with West on the mound the St. Joseph's team will bear watching during the season as any of the local fans know that it is nothing for West to strike out 15 or 20 men during a game. Not only can that boy pitch but he also swings a wicked bat. Mgr. Hoffman refuses to publish his lineup but it's a sure thing that he will have a good team on the field.

The Yantic Mills also will present a strong lineup including Smith, a new man in this territory, who last year caught in the International league for Reading. No doubt the fans are beginning to be skeptical about these out of town men who come here with big reps but Mgr. Cardin claims that this boy has got the goods and will produce them tonight.

Jerry Lamphere speed ball artist will pitch, Keeley will play first, Burns at second, Ainsworth on short, F. Lamphere at third with March and Simcox, Laporte and Lane in the outfield.

AGGIES WILL PLAY LAST HOME GAME TODAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

Storrs, June 11—The largest crowd of the season is expected at Storrs tomorrow afternoon, when the Connecticut Aggies cross bats with Massachusetts Aggies in what will be the last home game of the year for the state college nine. Hundreds of alumni and former students are expected to see the game, which is one of the features of an attractive class day program.

Massachusetts Aggies comes to Storrs tomorrow with a record of five victories, six defeats and one tie game. The Bay Staters broke even with Wesleyan in a two game series; defeated Boston University, Bowdoin, Clark and M. I. T., and lost to Amherst twice, Union, New Hampshire and Williams. It is impossible to see where either team has any great advantage in coming this contest, and the game should be a close one.

Of added interest is the fact that Sumner Dole, the Connecticut coach, and Harold Gore, the Massachusetts coach, were team mates in football at M. A. C., several years ago. Dole will use his regular lineup in tomorrow's game, with Wells starting on the mound. The lineups:

AIRLIE TEAM TO PLAY AT TAFTVILLE SATURDAY

Saturday at the Providence street grounds the newly organized Airlie Mills team of Hanover will clash with the Taftville A. A. The Airlie team several years ago was one of the fastest semi-pro teams in the state and the Airlie manager states that his team this season will be just as strong, if not stronger than the old team. Airlie has been out of baseball for several years but the fever has struck the town again and they have gone out side the town and collected a number of ball players who are well known in the eastern part of the state. This in their first game with the reorganized team and they expect to show the fans a real brand of baseball.

The Taftville club after losing three straight games is due for a shake up before Saturdays game. Lloyd Jarvis has joined the club which adds strength to the team, both in the box and in the outfield. Manager Treland seems pleased with the way some of his youngsters are performing and with a few shifts in position he expects to have one of the leading clubs in Eastern Connecticut. Treland will pick his team from the following: Raille, Leo Jarvis, Lloyd Jarvis, Lefty Dugas, A. Dugas, Gaudette, Cardie, Gauthier, Yerrington, Eccleston and Lucier.

MARKET WAS ACTIVE

New York, June 13.—(AP)—Constructive forces were actively at work in today's stock market, which moved to higher ground under the leadership of the oils, motors and public utilities. Resumption of pool operations in several issues, heretofore dormant, was encouraged by the continuance of easy money rates and favorable dividend trade developments. The publication of the weekly report of the American Petroleum Institute, showing a drop of 17,850 barrels in the daily average production of crude oil for the week ended June 6, the first reduction in about eight weeks, stimulated the demand for the oil shares. Texas Company, whose earnings are running at a record rate, moved up 2 5-8 points to 52 3-4, the highest price in two years, and was followed into new high ground by General Petroleum, Independent Oil and Gas, Phillips and Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies, American Republics, a holding company with several oil subsidiaries soared 19 points to a record top at 68.

Havana Electric was again the sensational feature of the public utility group jumping nearly ten points to 146 1-2 and then dropping back 2 points on profit taking. American oForeign Power issues also were in brisk demand, the common climbing nearly four points to 40 3-4, and then yielding to 39 5-8. American Water Works, Federal Light and Traction and Virginia Railway and Power moved up a point or so, while West Penn Power recovered half of its 13 point loss of yesterday.

Maxwell Motor B certificates were run up 7 1-2 points to 115 1-2, largely at the expense of a stubborn short interest. Mack Trucks closed 3 1-2 points higher at 177 3-4, and Dodge Brothers preferred touched a new top at 81 3-4.

Stability of the steel shares in the face of an unexpectedly large decrease in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation yesterday, led to some short covering in the standard industrial. American Can was run up nearly 3 points to 185 1-4, and net gains of a point or more were recorded by American Locomotive, American Smelting, Dupont, International Nickel, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Tobacco Products and Western Union. United States Steel common closed fractionally higher at 114 1-4.

Revival of speculative interest shippings, based on reports of heavy tourist traffic, resulted in gains of about two points being recorded by Marine preferred and American International Corporation. General Railway Signal, trading in which started today was run up from 144 to 152, closing at the top. Other outstanding industrial strong spots were American Typefounders, Commercial Solvents B, New York Steam preferred, Pittsburgh Steel preferred, United Cigar Stores and Woolworth, all up 3 to 5 points.

Trading in the rails was rather quiet with Rock Island, Kansas City Southern, New York Central, Norfolk and Reading and Western Maryland second preferred recording the best gains.

Call money held steady at 3 1-4 per cent. Time money and Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates fluctuated within rather narrow and irregular limits. Demand Sterling and French francs were practically unchanged at $4.85 5-8 and 4.87 1-2 cents, respectively. Scandinavian exchanges showed moderate gains.

BOND MARKET

New York, June 11.—(AP)—An unabated demand for United States government obligations, carrying virtually all issues to the year's highest levels, featured today's bond trading, with general improvement shown by all classes of investment securities.

Heavy over-subscription of the $125,000 treasury offering and the surplus of investment funds thrown on the market because of the small amount on the financing contributed to the raise in liberty and treasury bonds as well as high grade railroad and corporation issues.

Prices of Belgian bonds, now outstanding, were readjusted to around the 7.15 per cent. yield basis at which the new $50,000,000 seven per cent. loan will be offered tomorrow.

Heavy advance inquiries for the new bonds, mainly representing actual sales, were reported under the new quotas announced by J. P. Morgan & Co.

Cuyamel Fruit Co. reports for 11 months before annual meeting of stockholders, June 15, net profit after all charges and depreciation $1,010,000, equal to $5.05 a share on 200,000 shares of stock. Net profit for fiscal year ended Aug. 31 last was $1,010,000, equal to $5.05 a share

Thought He Was Dead

Juan Acosta Izaaga, a Cuban farmer living near Ciego de Avila, Camaguey province, is the object of awe on the part of his neighbors. A short time ago, Juan set out to ride in the midst of a heavy rain and electrical storm to the farm. A bolt of lightning killed his horse and knocked him unconscious. With the first rays of the morning sun farmers going to town found the apparently lifeless body. A rural carpenter was giving the finishing touches to a rude coffin when a doctor arrived. After a few minutes of medical attention Juan opened his eyes, stood up and began talking. The terrified farmers fled.

NEW YORK POLICE OFFICERS START GETTING "DOPE" ON NEW LONDON SYSTEM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 11.—As was predicted several days ago Lieutenants Putts and Sweeney, of the New York police department, arrived in New London this forenoon for the purpose of looking over the job likely to be offered the officers, or some other member of the New York department—that of acting in an advisory capacity for City Manager William A. Holt and Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney in an effort to attain greater efficiency in the police department and suppress existing violations of the law. Whether Lieutenants Putts or Sweeney will be given the job of cleaning up New London remains to be seen, but by a vote of the city council it will be determined, probably next Monday night, whether Putts or Sweeney or some other member of the New York department will come here and follow in the footsteps of General Smedley Butler, who was brought to Philadelphia to suppress crime and enforce the regulations of the department of that city. Lieutenants Putts and Sweeney are two of the six officers of the New York department whom City Manager Holt interviewed in New York last week as prospective candidates for advisor of the heads of the department and tomorrow afternoon Putts and Sweeney will be interviewed by the members of the council, sitting as a committee and it is probable that if Putts or Sweeney can give the assurance to the councilors that the task of improving the work of the department can be accomplished by either of them that one or the other will be hired.

Lieutenants Putts and Sweeney reached New London at 11:42 o'clock this forenoon and went immediately to the Municipal building for conference with City Manager Holt. At 1 o'clock the two officers were guests at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary club at the Hotel Mohican. Shortly after 2 o'clock Lieutenants Putts and Sweeney, accompanied by City Manager Holt, made an automobile tour of the city and are reported to have visited Councilors Edward L. Streeter, Jr., and Lucius E. Wilson, who have been the most energetic of the council members in seeking the services here of a New York advisor for the heads of the police department.

This afternoon City Manager William A. Holt instructed Captain Pinney to cause the 7 o'clock detail to be inspected by Lieutenants Putts and Sweeney prior to the patrolmen going on duty. The officers were in waiting at the appointed hours but the New York officers failed to put in an appearance until 8 o'clock, as a result of the police department being operated on standard time. During the evening Lieutenants Putts and Sweeney interrogated Acting Lieutenants Gaffney and Sergeant Howard as to the work of the officers on the numerous beats, together with the manner in which patrol was performed and the number of officers performing patrol duty during the various periods of shifts.

The police today are working on a reported robbery that is alleged to have occurred early this morning when Frank Broeze, proprietor of the Dixie Lunch room, 93 Bank street, declares that he was held up at the point of a revolver by a negro and was robbed by another negro in the rear of the restaurant. The police are not inclined to believe the story of the robbery because of the conflicting stories related by Broeze and if Broeze has told a correct story of the alleged robbery, he is considerably muddled as to the incidents immediately preceding the robbery.

According to Broeze, he went from the rear door of the restaurant to a wood-pile in the yard, a nightly habit, about 2:30 o'clock, it being Broeze's intent to secure kindling to make a fresh fire. As he emerged from the restaurant door and started for the wood-pile he was confronted by two negroes, one of whom commanded him to throw up his hands, at the same time, pointing a revolver to Broeze's stomach and while he was held at bay by the gunman and with hands uplifted, the second negro rifled the pockets of Broeze, taking the money from the trousers pocket. After getting the money the negroes are alleged to have run to the street and disappeared. Broeze followed and when he located Patrolmen John Foley and Thomas Lyden he related his story of the alleged robbery.

Broeze could only give a description of one of the negroes, the one who held the gun, Broeze declaring him to be tall and slender and wearing a black suit and soft brown hat.

Following the report of the robbery being made at the police station the Norwich and Westerly police were requested to be on the alert should the negroes put in an appearance in either city. County Detective William Lewis, who was at the Union station a short time before the robbery became known, observed two negroes board a west-bound freight train. When Lewis heard of the robbery he informed the police of his observation with the result that the latter police were requested to pick up the negroes when the train reached Westerly. This was not done for when the train arrived at Westerly, two negroes were found riding the "bumpers," but the men gave satisfactory statements in reply to questioning by officers and no revolver was found in the possession of either, so they were released.

This forenoon Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith went to work on the case, but Broeze did not make the same statements to the officers as he did when he reported the robbery, and to acquaintances Broeze made still further conflicting stories.

Private funeral services for Louis Engstfeld, formerly a government civil engineer and whose death occurred several days ago at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at 43 Shapley street, Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James Episcopal church, officiating. The bearers were Edward Wheeler, Frank W. Allen, J. Harry Meadnis and John N. LaPointe. Interment was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Joseph Gordon and infant son, 9 Park street; Stanley Williamson, United States Coast Guard destroyer Fanning; Mrs. Guildo Julliani and infant daughter, 372 Jefferson avenue, and Mrs. Robert Dodds, 18 Pacific street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

May Gladgwsky and Frances O'Hearn, inmates at the State Farm for Women, East Lyme, made their escape from the institution last night. When the girls were found to be missing the New London police were requested to be on the lookout for the runaways, but no trace of them was found about the city.

The flagstone at the crossing, Manwaring and Hempstead streets, was discovered to be in a dangerous condition last night by Patrolman Edward Daniels, for the stone was in such a crumbled condition that the limbs of pedestrians using the crosswalk were in danger. This morning the danger spot was reported to the highway department.

One of the old-time tramps was before the police court this morning when Henry F. Ladd, a middle-aged man, was charged with begging in the street and with intoxication. He admitted that he was drunk yesterday but that he was a beggar in the highway—never. He made the statement under oath. Ladd said he came here from Saybrook and that he was on his way to the island where Fort Wright is situated. He got as far as the wharf and there he fell in with old acquaintances and they had "a few" together. He said he would be glad to get out of town and to stay out if the court would afford him the opportunity. Evidently Judge Prince thought about that before he decided for he called the arresting officer, Sergeant Cavanaugh and Patrolman Martin, who related a story that led the judge to decide that the place for Ladd was in custody for a while. The officers said that complaint came to them that Ladd was soliciting money from men in the street. He had lead pencils which he was offering for sale, with little success. Then he asked those he encountered for money. At the Star lunch he was given a dime by one man and he solicited money from others. That was proof that he was a vagrant with visible means of support. He admitted that he was intoxicated. He was sent to the workhouse to stay thirty days for begging and was fined $10 for intoxication. So he will not see the boat races next week.

Dan Flanagan was charged with intoxication. He admitted that the charge was a proper one to make against him. The officer arresting him said Flanagan had seen service in the World war as a member of the Canadian forces. He seemed to be suffering from the experience he had in that service, for he was dazed and his eyesight was defective. He came here from Fall River and to that place he was allowed to return. He is the victim of a tumor, so his condition was such that to shut him up would be to his detriment.

Charles E. Rhodes, who is a traveler by automobile, engaged in soliciting orders for raincoats and overcoats, came here from Roxbury, Mass. He was careless about leaving his auto for he parked it two feet from the curbing on the west side of Main street, a thoroughfare where there is little room for parking when street cars are moving. As a result he hindered traffic and held up cars for several minutes. Rhodes explained that the front wheels of his car were at the curbing even if the rear wheels extended so close to the car tracks that a trolley car could not pass. Judge Prince told Rhodes that he was strongly tempted to fine him for his carelessness, but he did not do that, though he read him a lecture on ascertaining the rules that apply to traffic in all well-regulated cities.

A case against Clarence White who was accused of obstructing an officer in the discharge of his duties, appeared by postponement of his case from a fortnight ago. The matter was continued still farther and White was allowed to go on his own recognizance.

Mrs. Isadora Crandall, 68, wife of Rev. J. Edgar Mongomery, Niantic, pastor of the Niantic Methodist Episcopal church, died at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital late yesterday, where she had been under treatment about a fortnight. Mrs. Montgomery, besides her husband, is survived by two brothers, three sisters and a foster son, the latter being Allen Henderson, New York. The body will be forwarded to Los Angeles, Cal., for interment.

Thomas J. Maloy, 61, of 235 Huntington street, died this morning at his former residence, death ending a lingering illness. He is survived by two sons, Robert and Leo Maloy, this city and a daughter, Mrs. Herbert Lewis, Newark, N. J. Mr. Maloy was employed many years as a pipe-fitter by Palmer Brothers. He was born in New York, but had resided in New London the greater part of his life.

Margaret, year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Samuel, 11 Richards street, died at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital last night.

Judge and Mrs. William Williams Derby, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs Henry D. Earley, Ramsdell street, Groton.

Mr. and Mrs. David Banks, New York, have arrived at their summer residence, Waterford and will be joined within a day or two by their daughters, the Misses Celia and Jean Banks.

An edict issued by President Benjamin M. Marshall, Connecticut College, has been announced, the edict making it mandatory that students will not be admitted to the fall term at the college unless they have submitted to vaccination within three years. The ruling is made so as to insure the safety of the health of students so far as it is possible to do so by precautionary measures.

Valuables Still Go by Rail

Although the air mail has been developed at astounding rapidity since the close of the war in 1918, banks and bond houses still are slow to take up air mail as a means of quick transportation for valuable papers. The reports that came out of the middle west not long ago that valuable papers and money were being sent by air mail to both the Pacific and Atlantic centers called forth a denial on the part of one of the inter-mountain region postal superintendents in charge of air mail. Bonds that are carried by air mail are usually non-negotiable, according to Harry Hulking, superintendent of the mountain division at Cheyenne, Wyo.

Shell Contains Net

Albert Juaron, French inventor, has perfected an anti-aircraft shell containing a net, which spreads when the projectile bursts, enveloping the airplane, smashing or stopping the propeller or breaking the wings, thus bringing down the machine. He intends to sue the Japanese government, which has announced adoption of a similar net shell.

Mining for Timber

Timber mining goes on in a swamp not far from Chicago. Seven or eight thousand years ago a terrible storm flattened out a forest of white oak and in the course of centuries the timber was buried, but preserved by some chemical agent of the soil. While the outer layers are decayed, the timber is very hard and of exquisite color and fetches very high prices.

Your Mission.

If you cannot on the ocean
Sail among the swiftest fleet,
Rocking on the highest billows,
Laughing at the storms you meet,
You can stand among the sailors,
Anchored yet within the bay,
You can lend a hand to help them,
As they launch their boats away:

If you are too weak to journey,
Up the mountain steep and high,
You can stand within the valley,
While the multitudes go by,
You can chant in happy measures,
As they slowly pass along,
Though they may forget the singer,
They will never forget the song:

If you have not gold and silver,
Ever ready to command,
If you cannot to the needy,
Reach an ever open hand,
You can visit the afflicted,
O'er the erring you can weep,
You can be a true disciple,
Sitting at the Savior's feet:

If you cannot in the conflict,
Prove yourself a soldier true,
If where fire and smoke are thickest,
There's no work for you to do,
When the battlefield is silent,
You can go with careful tread,
You can bear away the wounded,
You can cover up the dead:

Do not then stand idly waiting,
For some greater work to do,
Fortune is a lazy goddess,
She will never come to you,
Go and toil in any vineyard,
Do not fear to do or dare,
If you want a field of labor,
You can find it anywhere.

What is said to be the oldest manufactured jewelry in the world, ivory, bone, horn and stone beads used as ornaments by cave men and cave women of prehistoric Europe, was recently brought to America by Alonzo W. Pond, of the Beloit College Museum and is now on display at Beloit, Wis. Besides the beads, which were found in the cave Le Blanchard, department of Dordogne, France, the sharp blades and stone drills with which the beads were pierced, are also included in the collection. In order to display the collection to the best advantage, the various beads have been strung in the form of a necklace similar to the one which may have been worn more than 24,000 years ago.

The Little Jumpers Sit Tight

Who does exactly as he's told
Will seldom hear his parents scold.
—Mrs. Jumper.

The four little Jumpers saw their mother bound away with Reddy Fox at her heels. But they didn't move, where they were. Had you happened along that way you wouldn't have seen them at all. They looked so exactly like their surroundings that, as long as they didn't move, it was almost the same as if they had been covered with something to shut them from sight.

When they had seen their mother bound away it had been hard work not to bound after her. You see, they had learned their first lessons by imitating mother. They had learned to sit still by sitting still when she sat still. So when she jumped to her feet and raced away it seemed as if little springs in their long heels were bound

He stopped and sniffed and sniffed

This is exactly what Reddy Fox was to send them flying after her whether they wanted to or not.

But mother had told them over and over again that if ever she suddenly went bounding away as fast as her long legs could take her, they must remain right where they were without moving. "I shall never run away from you like that unless there is great danger. Then I will take the danger with me. You must remain without moving until I come back, even though I may be gone a long time."

So now the little Jumpers sat tight. Each one wondered and wondered what it could all mean. Who was this fellow in the handsome red coat who had gone racing after mother? They couldn't understand how any one so handsome could possibly mean them any harm, yet they knew by the way mother had raced away that this stranger in red must be an enemy.

It seemed to them that they had been sitting still a very long time waiting for mother to return, when at last they heard the rustling of leaves. They thought it was mother returning, and they were tempted to run to meet her. But they wisely waited and sat tight. There would be time enough to meet her when they saw her.

The rustling of dry leaves drew nearer. Then each little Jumper held his or her breath, for here was the handsome stranger in red, and not mother. Such a sharp face as he had! He ran back and forth with that sharp nose of his to the ground. He stopped and sniffed and sniffed. It was quite clear that he was looking for some one, and those little Jumpers knew without being told that he was looking for them.

This is exactly what Reddy Fox was doing. He had guessed from the anxious way in which Mrs. Jumper had run that she had some children from whom she was trying to lead him away, so he had turned back and now he was looking for them. Had one of those little Jumpers moved only a teeny, weeny bit, the chances are that Reddy's sharp eyes would have seen that movement. But none of the little Jumpers did move. They didn't even move their wobbly little noses. So, though more than once Reddy looked right at one of them he saw nothing that looked like a baby hare. And though he sniffed and sniffed he could get no scent, for all the Merry Little Breezes were also sitting tight. Finally with an air of the greatest disappointment Reddy trotted away. Even then the little Jumpers continued to sit tight. They sat tight until Mrs. Jumper appeared and with a light thump called them to her.

FATALITY RATE FROM AUTOMOBILES DECLINING

Though the 1924 automobile death roll probably will contain not fewer than 20,000 names when all the reports are in and verified, Frederick L. Hoffman, LL. D., consulting statistician of the Prudential Insurance company of America, says the fatality rate in proportion to the number of motor vehicles in use has declined to one-third since 1913.

The auto accident death rate per 100,000 of population has increased from 9.8 in 1913 to 41.8 in 1923, the last year for which data covering the entire country are available.

"But," says Dr. Hoffman, "in determining the motorcar fatality rate it is hardly fair to make use exclusively of the relation of the population to the automobile death roll. As the motor vehicle commissioner of Connecticut points out, in making statistical comparisons it is necessary to consider also the increase in the number of motor vehicles registered and in use."

From this viewpoint Dr. Hoffman has found that the fatality rate per 100,000 cars in use has declined from a maximum of 302.8 in 1913 to a minimum of about 100 in 1924.

"Which shows," Dr. Hoffman added, "a decline in fatalities in direct ratio to the number of motors in use."

According to a table, for which Dr. Hoffman acknowledges indebtedness in part to the National Safety Council, the automobile fatality record during the ten-year period from 1913 is in detail as follows:

| Year | Regis. | Deaths | Rate per 100,000 Cars |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1912 | 944,000 | 2,782 | 294.7 |
| 1913 | 1,258,062 | 3,823 | 303.8 |
| 1914 | 1,711,339 | 4,231 | 247.2 |
| 1915 | 2,445,666 | 5,928 | 242.4 |
| 1916 | 3,512,990 | 7,327 | 210.6 |
| 1917 | 4,963,840 | 9,184 | 184.3 |
| 1918 | 6,146,617 | 9,672 | 157.4 |
| 1919 | 7,565,446 | 9,827 | 129.9 |
| 1920 | 9,231,941 | 11,067 | 119.8 |
| 1921 | 10,463,295 | 12,293 | 117.5 |
| 1922 | 12,238,375 | 12,656 | 115.8 |

"In justice to the motor car industry," commented Dr. Hoffman, "the preceding table is highly suggestive of actual improvement in conditions when all the facts are taken into consideration. It is certain, however, that the 20,000,000 motor cars at present in use represent potentially a much greater hazard than there was in 1912, when fewer than 1,000,000 were in use."

Discussing the situation generally, Dr. Hoffman said that variations in the death rates for the larger cities were hardly sufficient to justify conclusions other than that the traffic hazard was evenly distributed, and that such differences as did exist were largely due to topographical conditions.

"As yet," he concluded, "the influence of the local safety movements has had but a temporary and comparatively slight effect. The number of traffic officers and the rules governing motor operation have been of course increased. Yet the evidence is overwhelming that reckless drivers are not dealt with as severely as they should be; especially is this the case with those found driving at excessive speed or while under the influence of liquor, though it is to be noted that there has been some improvement in judicial methods of dealing with offenders.

"There is, however, a most urgent need for a radical revision of our arterial highway system, and a reconstruction or reapportionment of streets for surface traffic. Parking space everywhere occupies valuable ground which should be used for other purposes or to give room for traffic increase. In some cases main streets require reconstruction at enormous expense, particularly in such cities as Boston. The garage situation requires modification. Garages should be provided in downtown areas with elevator facilities to furnish space for thousands of cars which now occupy space by the hour in streets which should be open to traffic."

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT WATCHES MOTION PICTURE TAX

The post office department at Washington took an active interest in the motion picture tax bill pending before Governor Trumbull, according to announcement by Benedict M. Holden, representing the State Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors. He said he had been advised by telephone from New York that First Assistant Postmaster-General Bartlett had wired the governor late in the afternoon that he had been informed the proposed new law would require postal employes delivering films to exhibitors in Connecticut to see that the state tax was paid.

George Lee, general traffic manager of the American Express Company, arrived at Hartford Thursday, Mr. Holden said, to appear at the governor's hearing in the afternoon, in opposition to the bill on the ground that it would require express delivery men to pay the tax to the state whenever films were sent into the state by express. This contention is based on a construction of the first sentence of the bill which reads:

"No person, firm, corporation or other association shall deliver any motion picture film or copy thereof for the purpose of exhibiting in this state any motion picture therefrom without having registered the same and paid the tax thereon as required by the provisions of this act."

In further support of the contention is cited another sentence that "any person, by himself, or as agent or employe of any corporation, company or association, who shall deliver any film or copy thereof in violation of the provisions of this act shall be fined not more than $100 or imprisoned not more than sixty days or both."

By appointment arranged with former Postmaster General Will H. Hays, Governor Trumbull gave a hearing on the bill at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon preparatory to deciding whether to sign or veto the measure; then met its opponents in the executive chambers by invitation of Governor Trumbull.

If the bill should be signed, its constitutionality would be promptly challenged, Mr. Holden announced, as the motion picture exhibitors of Connecticut are preparing to ask for an injunction forthwith to restrain Tax Commissioner Blodgett from collecting the tax. He said the United States supreme court had ruled in the case of Binderup vs. Pathe News that motion picture films are articles in interstate commerce, remaining so whenever exhibited, as they are exhibited only under lease. He said that President Coolidge's statement in his message to congress that "the amusement and educational value of moving pictures ought not to be taxed" will also be cited to the governor in the plea for a veto.

Dispute Durant's Contention

The motion picture exhibitors' association of the state dispute representative Durant's statement that the tax would amount to only 20 cents an exhibition for each film. The reply is that it would amount to an additional expense of about $100 a week in some theatres which, they maintain, would be sufficient to force motion picture theatres in the smaller towns of the state out of business. They will lay before the governor statistics to show that 8,259 reels were sent into Connecticut by producers last year. The opposition also includes objection to the censorship features.

Tax Commissioner Blodgett attended the hearing.

Issued 7,146 Tuberculin Certificates

Tuberculin test certificates for 7,146 head of cattle were issue during May by James M. Whittlesey, commissioner on domestic animals. Of these, 2,448 came under the accredited herd class, 1,953 under the official tuberculin test, and first test certificates were issued for 2,745 head. The number of cattle tested was 394, comprising 8,566 head, 913 of these being condemned and ten ordered in quarantine.

Permits were issued for the importation of 746 head of cattle for dairy and breeding purposes and 65 head for immediate slaughter. There were 263 horses imported in May, 9,125 swine, five sheep, and 34,616 chickens for immediate slaughter. Single treatments for hog cholera were given in 896 cases by department agents and 529 double treatments in addition to 1,523 treatments for aggressins.

Carnegie Alumni Clan

The Connecticut Alumni Clan of the Carnegie Institute of Technology will hold its annual dinner and dance Saturday night, June 20 in Ye 1711 Club inn at Meriden, according to an announcement from the officers of the Connecticut Clan. Nearly all of the forty members in the state, and a majority of the Connecticut students now attending the Pittsburgh institution are expected to attend the gathering.

The officers of the state Clan are: President, R. W. Arnold, 353 Sigourney street, Hartford, formerly of Norwich; vice president, C. E. Rutherford, Hartford; Secretary and treasurer, Kenneth W. Finlay, Hartford.

MODERN TENDENCIES.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

Some of my more pessimistic friends find cause for foreboding in the curious laxity of morals which is characteristic of the younger generation.

Judged by the standards of the 19th or even the 18th century the manners of 1925 flappers and "floppers,"—if I may be allowed to coin a word for their male running-mates,—are certainly lax, not to say loose. They assuredly give the most melancholic pessimist ample basis for his grouch.

But, after all, flappers and "gloppers" are simply a sort of scum on the surface, like the froth and spume cast up on its beaches by the restless sea. If the great body of the ocean preserves its aseptic and wholesome salinity, we needn't worry over-much about the color or smell of the sudsy foam it spits up along its shores.

Likewise, if the great body of the people manage to keep themselves reasonably clean-bodied, clear-minded and healthy of soul, we needn't lose sleep over the vagaries of callow adolescents. We may fairly anticipate as well as hope that they'll outgrow their "freshness," just as chickens outgrow their thin-feathered gawkiness.

That last "if," however, is a rather important one. It can't be ignored, or even assumed as a fact without demonstration. I'm perfectly frank in saying that, should I start out on the job as past pluperfect pessimist to the universe, I should be a good deal more weighed by the dumbheadedness and shortsightedness and muddy-mindedness and crass selfishness of the grown-ups who really manage the world than by the vagaries of the youngsters.

The shrewd old Swedish diplomatist of two hundred years ago, whose son resisted his urgings to enter public life on the modest assumption that he wasn't wise enough to undertake the problems of government, wrote in response: "Do not ignore, my son, with how little wisdom the world is governed."

Those were the days when the people, as a mass, were governed from above and outside by kings and lords and barons and "the gentry." Now, that same mass governs itself,—or is supposed to. And a far from pretty mess it is making of its job.

We've established our own law-mills which regularly grind out several thousand new laws every year, to thicken up the muddle of the more than 40,000 laws already on the statute-books. We have made those law so complicated and often contradictory that even a Philadelphia lawyer, — who is supposed to to be able to see his way through a hoarding, a brick wall, a forest, and the roots of a mountain,—can't make anything certain or definite out of them. As to us of the common run they are no more intelligible than the edicts of Hammurabi, king of Chaldea, 4,000 years ago. Why, a prominent lawyer of a neighboring state recently took a year off to look up the laws he was supposed to obey. He reported that, while he had always intended to be law-abiding, he found he had been all his life breaking from six to a dozen laws a day and, as a matter of cold fact, couldn't have lived without breaking some of them.

And yet we complain about the spread of "lawlessness!"

We have turned our votes over to the control of a gang of self-appointed "bosses" and leaders, who pick out for us the representatives we are to "elect." We have developed the idea of organization to such an extent that, in politics, we are mostly hide-bound partisans, willing to vote for the devil if he is nominated by our caucus; in business blindly accepting "the market" as our master; in society worshipping before the mushroom throne of some "Mrs. Grundy."

Why the professional pessimist should waste tears over the pecadilloes of fledgling flappers when the vastly more offensive and dispiriting faults and failures of his mature fellow citizens poison every breath of the air he inhales is a wonder.

There is hardly any subject in which so universal and so deep an interest is taken by the well known "average man" as that of dollars and cents. Even the weather takes a back seat when dollars and cents enter the discussion. They used to say of certain overthrifty Yankees of ye olden time that they always squeezed a penny before letting go of it. Very few of us, their descendants, pass out a dollar bill without turning up an edge or corner to make sure it's only one bill we're paying. Yet, when it comes to spending millions of just such dollars by the states or the cities or the towns or the school-districts for either desirable improvements or simple fads, we show just about as much intelligent interest as a flock of barnyard Leghorns do in the occultations of Venus.

In fact, all that a coterie of money-spenders usually has to do is to shout their demands long enough and loud enough and we free and independent voters flock to school meeting or city meeting or town meeting or state election and vote 'em the dollars with a whoop.—And then go home and spend the rest of the week patting ourselves on the back for our own "public spirit" and wisdom. If there isn't money enough on hand to pay the bills and no visible means of collecting enough in cash, why, we order the issue of a lot more bonds.

More than half the states and cities and a considerable proportion of the towns and school-districts, even, of this country are today staggering under the burden of bonds issued by the free and easy voters of the past. Not only that, they are adding almost yearly to those burdens. It is easy enough to see why people with money to invest like to buy state or municipal bonds. They are liens on the total property of the issuing electorates, and about as secure as anything financial can be. But why people with no money to invest and hardly enough to pay their taxes should vote to issue bonds on every trifling occasion is more of a mystery.

A bond is simply a promise by the bond-holder to pay from $1,500 to $2,000, eventually, for every $1,000 he is given to use now. Interest and sinking funds, etc., etc., see to that. It's quite like pie for the bond-buyer, but it's a mighty dry sort of sawdust pudding for the bond-issuer.

Did you read the statement as to Connecticut's financial condition and policy, recently issued by Senator Wolcott of the legislative finance committee? If you didn't, hunt up your Bulletin of June 2 and read it. Not so much for the enhancement of state pride which it may waken in your breast, as for the candid and clear statement which it gives of the evils of this bond-issuing, evil-day-postponing craze which has swept over the country.

Senator Wolcott sets forth the "pay as you go" policy as one to which the state government of Connecticut is traditionally committed. He adds: "It requires courage to maintain this policy, for the easy and unhappily the usual method is to postpone a large percentage of state and municipal obligations by borrowing through the issuance of bonds and notes." . . . "One of the most insidious and subversive habits which lifts its hideous head out of the desolation of war's aftermath is a kind of fatalism which is expressed in utterly reckless extravagance." An extravagance which, when it can't find ready money enough to spend on its desires, plunges into the money market and borrows at strangling rates of interest. And here is one paragraph which is so candid, so sensible, so informative, that I simply cannot resist the temptation to reprint it in full. It can't be read too often, nor its lessons too carefully studied:

"Suppose the financial advisers of this state during the last six years, this period of deflation and readjustment, had adopted the easy, the politically expedient and popular course, and issued bonds for the payment of these current state obligations. They could easily have held the taxes down to a lower rate and postponed the settlement of these enormous debts for several years; in a weak and cowardly fashion shifted the financial burden to those who were in no wise responsible for it, but at the terrible cost of principal plus interest. Furthermore the lessening of this present burden would have encouraged much larger current expenditures to the point of recklessness. Many states and cities in this country have followed this easy course through these trying six years and a day of reckoning will soon be upon them."

As has been repeatedly shown of late, the federal government is doing a simply phenomenal work in economizing, solely for the benefit of the over-burdened taxpayers. Yet, at the very same time, the state and local governments, which are supposed to be more directly responsible, or at least more delicately sensitive to popular opinion, have been plunging into all sorts of reckless expenditures and inflating enormously their already too swollen debts.

A recent cartoon in a New York newspaper ought to be reprinted and circulated so that it could be pasted on the wall at the foot of every voter's bed where he couldn't help seeing it every morning when he woke. It represents a water-logged boat in mid-ocean, with its gunwales scarcely showing above the waves. In the center stands Mr. Tax-payer frantically waving a rag fastened to an oar and bawling stentorianly for help. At the bow President Coolidge is bailing with might and main and flinging pailsful of water over-board. Straddled complacently across the stern a pussy and begoggled grafter representing "State and Municipal Extravagance," is deliberately dipping water out of the ocean in a bigger bucket than Mr. Coolidge's, and pouring it into the foundering boat.

And that is what certain state and municipal managers proudly designate as "High Finance!"

High taxes are no special hardship to the profiteers of business and labor who are grabbing exorbitant profits and extortionate wages. Easy come, easy go may be said of their money.

But how any farmer, with the paltry income to which the combination of deflation and manipulated markets restricts him, can assist in, or even condone, or fail to oppose with all his power, this bond-issuing mania is a mystery which even a cross-word puzzle champion might fail to solve.

It is not only, as Senator Wolcott outspokenly calls it, "weak and cowardly" and bearing a "terrible cost," it is a specially oppressive burden on the farmer, whose buildings and fields can't be hidden from the eyes of the assessors as too many bonds can be,—and are.

If there isn't a speedy change in public sentiment and a radical reversal of present tendencies in this direction, we might as well all turn pessimists, and devote the rest of our lives to digging cyclone cellars as possible refuges from the wrath to come.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

Internal treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant parts. Internal treatment is the only safe method.

Dr. E. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it for many cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to use and can always be found at any druggist's, who will gladly refund your money if HEM-ROID fails to stop your Piles.

Wm. D. Parker's Health Improves.

William D. Parker, the old-time Republican campaigner of New Haven county in general and Meriden in particular, writes Norwich and New London friends from the assessor's office in Meriden where he is clerk of the board, that his health was greatly improved by his trip on a Morgan liner to New Orleans and back and that his rheumatism is, he thinks, a thing of the past. Mr. Parker at 73 is full of pep. He has attended state and national conventions for 40 years. He was a political pupil of Orsamus R. Fyler, whom he thinks was the best organizer the party in this state ever had, and he has been on friendly terms with every Republican governor since 1880, including the present executive, John H. Trumbull, whom he particularly admires.

Pension Award

Among recent pensions awarded by the U. S. pension bureau to Connecticut citizens was a pension of $15 to Joseph G. Guilford of Willimantic.

Norwich enjoyed a light fall of rain in the early hours of Wednesday morning when an electrical storm passed around the north of the city.

New Haven 178,735, Bridgeport 166,644, Hartford 160,195, Waterbury 102,124, New Britain 67,884, Stamford 42,218, Meriden 36,351, Norwich 30,425, Norwalk 29,595, New London 29,902, Bristol 24,621, Torrington 24,492, Middletown 22,429, Danbury 21,931, Ansonia 19,034, Willimantic 14,868, Derby 12,500, Shelton 11,134, Winsted 9,139, Putnam 8,990, Rockville 8,822.

HOLDING BIBLE STUDY ON LIFE OF JACOB

Wednesday evening at the local Y. M. C. A. a good group of men spent an hour in Bible study. It was the fourth consecutive study on the life of Jacob, the topic being "Jacob's Return," scripture from the 32nd and 33rd chapters of Genesis being used in the discussion. Among the points brought out were the following. Twenty years had passed since Jacob ran away from his angry brother, and during that time he had married and had a large family, and had become rich. He heard that Esau was coming toward him with hundreds of men and he naturally felt that at least Esau was going to kill him. Jacob began to pray with great earnestness that God would save his life and cause his brother to forgive him; his mind was still greatly troubled and his conscience pricked him for his great sin against his brother. No man can get away from a guilty conscience, even though the human law never apprehends him, yet he suffers and pays the penalty oftimes by real suffering in heart.

Jacob had an unusual experience wrestling with the angel, and he showed great determination in prayer when he said, "I will not let thee go unless thou bless me." One reason why many of our prayers are not answered, we are not earnest and determined enough. Jacob realized that he had not only wronged his brother, but he had wronged God also, and therefore it was necessary to secure Gods forgiveness as well as the forgiveness of Esau. Jacob, so it proved, was needlessly worried about what Esau would do to him, for instead of attempting to kill him Esau ran and kissed him, and evidently forgave him. It is quite difficult to forgive one who has greatly wronged us, but possibly even more difficult to admit, in a manly way that we have wronged another; both acts call for the help of the Almighty. One reason why the peace conference across the water has not accomplished much is because each nation seems to be determined to stand for its rights. We can afford to give up some of our strict rights for the sake of peace, especially when a principle is not at stake. Among other good points of the late President Harding one is told in the story of his life in these words, "Friends, I want to be neighborly."

STATE AGENCY SECURED EMPLOYMENT FOR 3,469

The report of the state labor bureau, shows that during May the five free employment agencies in the state received 4,622 applications for employment and secured positions for 3,469. There were 3,865 applications for help. The applications for employment were distributed as follows: Hartford, 1,415; New Haven, 965; Bridgeport, 1,009; Waterbury, 935, and Norwich, 298.

The number of situations secured were according to cities, as follows: Hartford, 1,012; New Haven, 888; Bridgeport, 824; Waterbury, 593, and Norwich, 152.

Of the male applications for employment, 72.6 per cent were supplied with situations against 71 per cent in April. The percentage of female applicants who secured positions were 79.2, while in April the percentage was 80.2.

Of the total number who applied for help, 89.7 per cent were furnished with help, as against 92.5 in April.

During the afternoon a social time was enjoyed and in the evening the treat consisted of potato salads, cold tongue, rolls, olives, cake, coffee and nuts. After giving their hostess a vote of thanks for the enjoyable day spent at the shore the members departed for home by automobile shortly after 7 o'clock.

SHOWER IS GIVEN FOR MISS ANNIE NELKIN

A miscellaneous shower was given Tuesday evening for Miss Annie Nelkin by Mrs. Bertha Rosenberg at the Y. W. H. A. rooms. There were about 50 present and the evening was a very enjoyable one. During the evening Miss Nelkin was escorted to the center of the room where there was a large basket, in white, under a large bell and containing numerous pretty and useful gifts.

Refreshments were served and music and dancing enjoyed. Miss Nelkin was also presented a handsome silver cup by the Y. W. H. A.

BISHOP ACHESON CONFIRMS EIGHT AT GRACE CHURCH

Campion Acheson, suffragan bishop of the Connecticut diocese, administered the rite of confirmation to eight candidates at the confirmation service at Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. Attending the service, besides the large congregation, were Archdeacon I. Eldred Brown, and Rev. Robert E. Day, the rector.

Given Surprise Shower

TO LAY CORNERSTONE FOR DORMITORY, I. O. O. F. HOME

About 5,000 delegates from I. O. O. F. lodges in the state and hundreds of delegates from the state Rebekah order are expected to be present at Fairview, Groton, Saturday afternoon when the cornerstone of the new infirmary and dormitory at the state Odd Fellows Home is laid. The laying of the cornerstone which is one of the most impressive of Odd Fellows ceremonies, will be conducted publicly by the officers of the grand lodge with Grand Master Alfred L. Lillie of Hartford presiding.

The programme will start at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and will last about an hour. Following the opening ode of the order by the assembly, invocation will be offered by the grand chaplain, the Rev. Charles H. Smith of Granby, Mass. Grand Secretary William S. Hutchison of New Haven will then render the proclamation of the day and read the names of the donors of gifts. The responsive service will be conducted by the grand chaplain and the assembly. The ceremony of laying the corner stone will then be conducted with Grand Master Lillie leading the service.

Grand Master's day will also be observed Saturday afternoon following the laying of the cornerstone. At this time donations to the home, either in money or furnishings, will be accepted from the lodges of the state.

Members of Home Rebekah lodge, No. 50, of Groton, under the direction of Mrs. Catherine Dowsett, noble grand, will serve light refreshments to the visitors.

Building operations in the new dormitory and infirmary will have reached the half-way mark by Saturday, according to the expectations of the builders. The building is now in the process of roofing and plastering. It is expected that the work will be completed by Thanksgiving day and ready for occupancy by the first of next year. The money for furnishing the building will be given by the Rebekahs.

The new building will contain 50 dormitory rooms and two infirmary wards. With this new addition to the facilities of the Odd Fellows home, the institution will be able to provide accommodations for 114 residents.

The Fairview Odd Fellows home has been carrying on the work for 33 years during which about 185 brother Odd Fellows and 35 wives of Odd Fellows have been given a home in which to spend their last years.

Overlooking the Thames river, with its face towards the setting sun, the Odd Fellows home is indeed a beautiful haven of refuge for those brother Odd Fellows and their wives with whom fate has dealt less kindly. Life at the home, under the direction of Superintendent Herbert J. Phillips, has given that measure of happiness to the residents which was the object of the Odd Fellows in erecting the home. But small quarters and facilities sufficient only to take care of those in reasonably good health did not permit the care of brothers who were in failing health and up to this time their applications for homes have been, by necessity, refused. The new home will provide these additional facilities and comforts which heretofore have been lacking and with the earnest support of all Odd Fellows in the state, this new home has been made possible.

WATERFORD TOWN COURT HANDLES AUTOMOBILE CASES

Three offenders, charged with violation of the motor vehicle laws were fined in Waterford town court Wednesday evening. All paid and were permitted to go their way. The court session got under way at 7 p. m., with a large gathering present to witness the proceedings.

Robert Patterson, Jr., of West Orange, N. J., pleaded guilty to the charge of reckless driving in Waterford on June 7. He was operating his car at a high rate of speed and collided with a Franklin car operated by Charles Cutler when the latter had parked by the roadside. Prosecuting Attorney J. James Floyd recommended the minimum fine and Judge Frederick N. Dimmock taxed him $25, to which costs were added. Damage to the cars was adjusted by insurance companies concerned. The arrest was made by State Policeman Joseph Bobnick of the Groton barracks.

Claude DeRoberts of Providence, R. I., entered a plea of guilty to the charge of reckless driving in Waterford on June 7. He was summoned into court by State Policeman Bobnick while traveling in excess of 40 miles per hour in the vicinity of Mossbroker's corner. DeRoberts paid a fine of $25 and costs.

R. Packer of East Lyme, charged on four counts with operating in a reckless manner, without proper license in his possession, without proper registration and with having passed intersecting streets at an excessive rate of speed, pleaded guilty to the second count and not guilty to the other three. Packer was arrested on June 7 by State Policeman Bobnick, who testified against the defendant. The prosecutor recommended suspension of judgment on the minor counts and upon the evidence brought out, Judge Dimmock assessed a fine of $25 on the count alleging reckless driving and suspended judgment on the other three.

The bond of $15 given by F. H. LaPierre of Stonington for infraction of the motor vehicle laws on June 8 was ordered called by the court when LaPierre did not appear. He was placed under arrest at that time by Constable Herbert W. Dayton.

William A. Devine of Uncasville and Oscar H. Karelitz of 23 Pliny St., Hartford, who figured in an automobile accident at Quaker Hill, Sunday night, were present in court, having been summoned in by State Policeman Kenerson of Groton barracks.

No arrests had been made and statements of the state police officer failed to disclose any evidence of reckless driving. Settlement of the damage to both cars having been effected out-of court and under the circumstances, Prosecuting Attorney Floyd declined to take jurisdiction.

The three one-act plays are being presented instead in order to complete the program.

WARNING GIVEN AGAINST FAKE FURNITURE SALESMEN

Information has been received from the Waterbury Chamber of Commerce by the local organization that two salesmen operated in that city purporting to represent a well known New York City furniture company. A deposit of $50 was paid on the articles ordered from the New York concern, and the purchaser, becoming anxious, inquired from the Waterbury Chamber if there was such a furniture company in New York. The Waterbury Chamber then called the firm in New York who told them that they had no solicitors doing business outside of New York City and New Jersey, and would prosecute these fake solicitors to the fullest extent of the law if they could be apprehended.

This warning has been broadcast by the Waterbury Chamber throughout Connecticut, and the local chamber takes this means of preparing the public to be guarded against these solicitors, or any other unknown solicitors who demand a deposit. Chambers of Commerce everywhere are endeavoring to protect the public in their respective communities against these bogus and fake solicitors, and the people of Norwich are urged by the chamber to co-operate with the local organization whenever they are solicited by unknown persons claiming to represent reliable business concerns and demanding a deposit, so that the Norwich Chamber can make full investigations and make every effort to protect Norwich from these fake solicitors.

LIONS' WEEKLY LUNCHEON HEARS PASTOR SPEAK

The Lion's club held their regular weekly luncheon meeting Thursday at the Wauregan hotel. President C. Edward Carpenter presided at the meeting, Herbert Corey was song leader and the entertainment part of the program was in charge of Dr. Charles Solomon. Guests at the luncheon included Messrs. Bahres, Pate and Sadtler of the Augustin Stock company, now playing at the Palace theatre and Manager Walker of the theatre. Mr. Bahres paid a tribute to the beauty of the city saying that in his experience as a showman he has traveled over the greater part of the continent and that Norwich is the most beautiful city of its size, that he has seen. Mr. Pate sang several songs, accompanied by Mr. Walker.

Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, was the speaker of the day. His topic was Cause and Effect. Rev. Mr. Ricketts said that he is an evolutionist and that evolution is in no way opposed to the Bible. Those who are opposed to evolution probably do not understand the Bible and evolution. The speaker pointed out that young men and young girls who simply slide past their examinations by merely pulling through, cannot be regarded in the same light with those who give all there is in them to attain the top and so in life, those who give the best in them not only for themselves but for their fellowmen are living a life worth while.

The meeting came to a close with the Lions' roar, for the benefit of the guests, and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

OPPOSED TO FREEING SHERIFFS OF SUPERVISION

Fourteen county commissioners, representing every county in the state, appealed to Governor Trumbull in an interview Wednesday to veto a bill which would allow sheriffs to make purchases and pay all expenses of jails without supervision of the commissioners as at present. The commissioners declared the bill had come from the judiciary committee during the last week of the session and that in their opinion may have been incorrectly phrased, due to last minute haste. No public hearing was given, they said, and the bill was explained in both the senate and the house as a measure to authorize sheriffs to purchase jail supplies under the supervision of the commissioners.

The commissioners told the governor that all sheriffs who had been interviewed were opposed to the bill, that it would not increase efficiency in county management and that there was no apparent reason for changing the present law. They further declared that allowing the sheriff to spend county money would necessitate two sets of books, that friction might arise between the commissioners and sheriffs and the bill put no restrictions on the amounts the sheriffs may spend.

The two branches of the county governments now work in harmony.

DEATH OF WARREN S. STONE PRESIDENT B. L. ENGINEERS

Died Late Yesterday in a Hospital in Cleveland, Where He Went Tuesday to be Treated For Bright's Disease—Was One of the Leading Labor Leaders and Labor Financiers of the Country—Telegrams of Condolence Received From Railroad Magnates, Labor Leaders and Chambers of Commerce—The Brotherhood Now Controls Enterprises With Assets Approximating $150,000,000.

Cleveland, June 12.—(AP)—Warren Stanford Stone, 65, labor leader and financier, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and all its far-reaching activities, in banks, trust companies and other business ventures, died in a hospital here late today from an acute attack of Bright's disease.

Funeral services and burial will be held here Monday afternoon.

Mr. Stone's wife was at home here when his death occurred. They had no children.

Telegrams of condolence were pouring into the Brotherhood offices tonight from railroad managers, national labor leaders, chambers of commerce and other organizations from the many parts of the country.

Mr. Stone was taken sick in New York last April. He came home and went to a hospital for two weeks and then returned to work, going to New York two days later. He returned from a business trip a week ago yesterday and was at work until late Tuesday of this week when he was taken from his office to a hospital suffering from an attack of uraemic poisoning. He was only semi-conscious from that time until his death.

Officials of the Brotherhood tonight said that several presidents had offered Mr. Stone appointment to political offices and that he had received tentative offers to cabinet positions. All were declined to continue his work in the Brotherhood.

At the triennial convention of the Brotherhood here last June the convention created a new office, president of all the Brotherhood's activities, and elected Mr. Stone to this position for six years. His previous title had been grand chief engineer.

William S. Prenter, first vice-president of the Brotherhood, under the organization's constitution, succeeds Mr. Stone until the advisory board elects his successor. Mr. Prenter will call the board to meet in Cleveland immediately after the burial for the purpose of electing a new president.

Politically, Mr. Stone was a Republican but strongly favored all progressive movements. He was one of the originators and leaders in the conference for progressive political action and was one of the chief financial backers and supporters of the progressive political movement which sponsored the candidacy of Senator Robert M. LaFollette for president in the last campaign. He often said he believed it his duty to take part in progressive political movements.

Mr. Stone's activity in connection with the Plumb plan of railway ownership agitation and the LaFollette presidential campaign are perhaps his most notable connections with politics.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, through its ownership of 51 per cent., or more of the stock, controls enterprises with assets of approximately $150,000,000.

These include the Empire Trust company, New York, resources of $32,000,000; Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Co-operative National bank, Cleveland, resources $28,000,000; Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Co-operative Trust company, New York, resources, $6,650,000; the Philadelphia B. of L. E. Co-operative bank, Birmingham, Ala., Co-operative bank; Spokane, Wash. Co-operative banks; Seattle, Wash., Co-operative bank; Tacoma, Wash., Co-operative bank; Portland, Ore., Co-operative bank; B. of L. E. National bank of Boston; Transportation Brotherhood National bank of Minneapolis; People's Co-operative State bank of Hammond, Ind.; Labor bank of Montana, Three Forks, Mont., and Farmers and Workingmens Savings bank, Jackson, Mich.

Financing Companies.

Brotherhood Investment company, Cleveland, resources $10,000,000; Brotherhood Holding company, Cleveland, resources $1,000,000; Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Securities corporation of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia; Southern Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Securities corporation, Birmingham and Pacific Brotherhood Investment company.

Office Buildings.

Equitable buildings of New York; Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers building, Cleveland, valued $4,000,000; Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Co-operative National Bank building, Cleveland, valued $6,000,000; Euclid Avenue building of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Co-operative National bank, Cleveland, valued $3,000,000, and several other office buildings occupied by Brotherhood banks.

Sketch of Life of Warren S. Stone

When Warren S. Stone completed his academic education in May, 1879, his father wanted him to take up the study of law, while the son was inclined toward surgery. As a sort of compromise, if it may be called that, the son, in September of the same year, began firing a locomotive on the Rock Island railroad out of Eldon, Iowa. Whether he sacrificed a distinguished career in law or surgery will remain unanswered, but the work he chose eventually made him internationally known and a leader in two widely diversified fields—as head of an international labor organization and president of labor's first national bank in America.

One of the characteristics of Mr. Stone in doing a thing was a determination to do it as well as any one could. In that spirit he began firing his locomotive and in that spirit he continued, although promotion was slow. He worked five years and nine months at the firing job before he was promoted to engineer. Then he rounded out a quarter of a century on the road by putting in 19 years and three months at the throttle in freight and passenger service.

Through all these years Mr. Stone had innate executive ability, for the timber of which he had little opportunity in the locomotive cab. But he did express it in the councils of his fellow engineers and while still holding his job in the cab was called upon in August, 1903, to fill the position of grand chief of the international Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which had become vacant by the death of Grand Chief P. M. Arthur while delivering an address at Winnipeg, Man. Up to the time he started for Cleveland to take up his duties, Mr. Stone never had been east of Chicago.

Early in his administration Mr. Stone was confronted with a serious situation because railroad workers generally had become dissatisfied with their wages. The new leader handled the problem skillfully and in the end brought about satisfactory agreements. He grouped the transportation systems of the country int oeastern, western and southeastern sections. After reaching agreements with the railroads in the two latter sections his negotiations with those of the eastern section became deadlocked and the matter went to arbitration, an agreement being reached on the basis of those of the other sections.

As grand chief of the engineer's brotherhood, Mr. Stone took an active part in the campaign of the railroad employes' organizations for the Adamson law. In all negotiations he earned a reputation for always keeping his word and never losing his temper, and although he became one of the most prominent labor leaders in the country he had gained the distinction of never having been called upon to lead a strike. He was quoted once as having said: "It is a fundamental principle without which no labor organization can hope to exist, that it must carry out its contracts."

One of Mr. Stone's early achievements in behalf of the engineers was the erection of the brotherhood 14-story office building in Cleveland. It paid for itself in ten years, at the end of which time it was valued at more than $3,000,000. Another feature of his administration was compulsory life insurance for all engineers. During more than 20 years as chief executive of the brotherhood it increased from a membership of 57,000 with $60,000,000 insurance in effect to nearly 90,000 members carrying approximately $300,000,000 of life, sickness and accident insurance.

With wide experience in money matters as a result of having handled millions of dollars of brotherhood dues and insurance and having made an exhaustive study of cooperative banks throughout the world, Mr. Stone presented a plan for an engineers' cooperative bank at the triennial convention in 1918 and was authorized to start such a bank in Cleveland. It was opened November 11, 1920, with a capital of $500,000, and a surplus of $500,000. Three years later its resources were nearly $25,000,000. This was followed by the establishment of several other banks, throughout the country, controlled by the brotherhood and in addition a substantial interest was acquired in the Empire Trust Company of New York.

Because the brotherhood cooperative bank could handle only a limited amount of business under the restrictions of the national banking laws, the Brotherhood Holding Company, conceived by Mr. Stone, was incorporated in 1922 for $1,000,000, the stock being sold entirely to engineers. A year later the Brotherhood Investment company was incorporated with a capital of $10,000,000. The brotherhood retained 51 per cent. of the common stock of the enterprises. A 21-story building for the bank was erected in Cleveland and the Brotherhood Building association acquired a 17-story building in the same city.

Under Mr. Stone's guidance the engineers as individuals invested more than $3,000,000 in coal mine properties in Kentucky and West Virginia and financed a mail order store on a profit-sharing basis to provide themselves with the necessities of life.

Mr. Stone was born on a farm near Ainsworth, Iowa, February 1, 1860. As a boy he worked on the farm in the summer and attended a country school three months in the winter. He rounded out this preliminary education with study at Washington Academy, Washington, Iowa, and at Western College, Iowa. He became a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in 1884, six months after being promoted to engineer. His ability and his interest in the organization was recognized by his election as secretary-treasurer of his local division. Then he was made head of the local grievance committee and later chairman of the central committee of adjustment for the brotherhood of the entire Rock Island system.

When he became head of the brotherhood he made his home in Cleveland and took an active part in all its civic enterprises, being especially interested in educational affairs.

TWO SAILING SLOOPS STOLEN AT SOUTHPORT

Southport, Conn., June 12.—(AP)—Two sailing sloops, the "Little Hope," owned by Helen B. Van Schaick and the "Bagheera," owned by Dr. Dougal Bissell were stolen from the Southport outer harbor early this morning by Sound pirates, who evidently towed the boats out into the Sound with another sail boat, as no motorboat was heard by any of a crew sleeping on a nearby boat. The "Bagheera" was found drifting outside the harbor, abandoned by the thieves when they discovered that it was rudderless. The search for the "Little Hope," a 27-foot sailing cabin sloop valued at $2,000 was unsuccessful although the alarm was spread all along the coast and was also communicated to points on Long Island.

Last fall the Van Schaick home was entered by thieves who stole all of the trophies won in boat races.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Belgian Race Not Decided.

Brussels, June 13.—(A. P.)—The Belgian Aero club tonight decided to withhold the final ranking of the competitors in the Gordon Bennett gas balloon race until Mm. Veenstra, pilot of the Belgian bag Prince Leopold returns to Brussels with documents officially attesting where he came down. No reply had ben received by the Aero club tonight from Veenstra to several messages sent him for information where he descended, whether on Belgian territory or in the Atlantic ocean off the coast of Spain.

PROBABLE SUICIDE IN CONNECTICUT RIVER

Middletown, June 12.—(AP)—Two girls, Lillian Hagland, 14, and Rose Carta, 16, returning from Portland, over a footpath on the highway bridge late last night, saw a form move ahead of them, heard the wire on the railing rattle and then heard a splash in the river 40 feet below, they reported to the police here.

Today, the state police reported that they had received word that William Gregory, 32, had disappeared from the Y. M. C. A. in Hartford, May 26, and it is thought possible that the person who jumped or fell into the river last night may be the missing man. He is the only person reported missing in this section, the police said.

Gregory, who is believed to have been a war veteran, as he had three war medals, is described as being five feet, seven inches tall, weighs 150 pounds, is of light complexion and walks with a limp.

JAMES GIZZI SAYS HE SHOT IN SELF DEFENSE

Waterbury, Conn., June 12.—(AP)—Throttled by the slain man in a violent quarrel Sunday afternoon, James Gizzi, 67, alleged self-confessed murderer of Donato K. Gaudiosi, whose shot-riddled body was found within 200 yards of his home on Lakewood road, feared his alleged antagonist and killed him as he walked to his work armed with a revolver, Monday morning, according to alleged stories of the accused man, and his daughter, Mrs. Mary Castaro, tonight.

The revolver, Gaudiosi's own property, was found with the 12guage shotgun, said to have been used in the slaying, in a rock crevice, a short distance from where the body was found.

Gizzi is said to insist that the slain man carried a revolver in his swinging right hand.

Authorities claim the revolver, taken from Gaudiosi's drawer several weeks ago was found loaded and had been carried by Gizzi as double insurance that Gaudiosi would die.

COAST GUARD BOATS SEARCHING FOR BODIES

Atlantic City, June 12.—(AP)—Six coast guard patrol boats were still searching tonight for the bodies of four victims of the pleasure yacht Chrystal, which caught fire after an explosion last Thursday night, with a total loss of five lives.

The body of Miss Debra Knight, 19, Pleasantville, N. J., has been recovered but those of John Hannum, 17, Joseph Wilson, 18, both of Northfield, and Warren Dilks, 18, Lynwood, and Martha Weist, 15, Pleasantville, have not been found.

SCARLET LOBSTER WAS FOUND IN SHIPMENT

Newark, N. J., June 12.—(AP)—A live lobster, scarlet in color, arrived here today in a shipment from Portland, Me., to a local fish dealer.

The native lives on shell fish at the American Museum of Natural History in New York, when notified of the phenomenon, said that a red lobster was a freak among lobsters, similar to the albino among humans. He stated that the museum was in possession of a blue lobster and asked the fish dealer to present the red lobster to the museum.

TO SACRIFICE EDITORIAL PAGE FOR NEWS MATTER

Billings, Mont., June 12.—(AP)—The Billings Gazette today announced the elimination of its editorial page, as such, beginning Saturday, because of "tight space." The paper expressed the belief that its readers are more interested in news of the community, state and nation, rather than perusing editorials.

Blunt Warning Given Mexican Government

That the United States Cannot Countenance Mexico's Violation of International Obligations.

Washington, June 12—(A. P.)—Blunt warning to the Mexican government that the United States can not countenance violation by Mexico of her international obligation or failure to protect American citizens, was served by Secretary Kellogg today in a formal statement.

The strong language employed by the secretary came as a surprise, although it had been indicated he would make a public declaration as a result of recent conversations with Ambassador Sheffield.

The secretary's statement declared that while relations with the Mexican government were friendly, "conditions are not entirely satisfactory and we are looking to and expect the Mexican government to restore properties illegally taken and to indemnify American citizens."

"It should be made clear that this government will continue to support the government in Mexico only so long as it protects American lives and American rights and complies with its international engagements and obligations," Mr. Kellogg said.

Additional significance attaches to Mr. Kellogg's statement because it was issued after White House conferences which are known to have been concerned almost wholly with the Mexican situation. Ambassador Sheffield has been the, president's guest since he arrived in Washington, and Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, also was a dinner guest last night at the White House. There is every reason to believe that it was informally agreed during that conference that, because of the gravity of the situation in Mexico as it affects the right and security by American citizens, a step as drastic as the declaration of Secretary Kellogg must be taken.

Ask for Advertised Goods.

A little Polish boy, without telling his parents, changed his name in an American school. He had a fine Polish name but he was in America, in a new world, and he wanted a name that would symbolize his great change.

European women, upon coming to America, quickly revolutionize the manner of things they buy for their tables and their homes. An authority has estimated that foreign born women ask for goods by their advertised names within two weeks after they have begun housekeeping in America.

They are quick to sense that in the new world the good things are advertised, and that unknown goods in unknown stores are likely to be of unsatisfactory quality.

As the European woman quickly learns, American advertising is for the buyer's protection. If you read it in The Bulletin you can expect to be satisfied. An advertised product bears a proud name. It has a reputation to uphold.

THOUSANDS OF REFUGEES ARE FLEEING FROM CANTON

Are Passing Through the Foreign Concession on Their Way to Hong Kong—Bolshevist Secret Agents Are Said to be Busy in Canton Agitating for a General Strike of Workers in Public Services—Kwangtung Army Leaders Have Threatened to Bomb Canton From the Air.

Canton, June 12.—(AP)—Thousands of refugees are passing through the foreign concession here on their way to Hong Kong and safety, the result of a week of civil warfare in Canton.

Hong Kong steamers changed their schedules today, leaving earlier that they might pass between the two forts at the Bocca Tigre, the entrance to the Pearl River (Chukiang) before the coming of darkness. The foreign concession Shameen, is the only point at which the Hong Kong steamers now can land, all other approaches to Canton being blocked.

The second week of fighting, which has been continuous since Saturday afternoon, found Shameen, which is a separate island, separated from Canton by a narrow strip of water, well protected, and its commanding positions fortified thus far. The combatant armies have not disturbed Shameen, although promiscuous firing in Canton has killed many noncombatants and injured many more. Several cases of looting in the native city also have been reported.

Military report today showed few developments in the war situation. One report said that the Kwantung army seeking to capture Canton had broken through the Yunnanese lines with 5,000 men. General Yang Hsi-min, commanding the Yunnanese troops holding Canton, issued another statement in which he declared his loyalty to the Kuomintang (people's party, the organization of which the late Sun Yat-Sen was head), and reiterated his refusal to join the faction fostering bolshevist principles.

Bolshevist secret agents are said to be busy in Canton agitating for a general strike of workers in public services. The strike of Chinese seamen is reported spreading.

FEAR FOR CHRISTIAN MISSIONS IN CHINA

New York, June 12—(A. P.)—Grave concern over the immediate future of Christian missions in China, in view of recent outbreaks and the development of an anti-foreign and anti-Christian movement in the former Celestial kingdom were expressed today among representatives in New York of the more than 5,000 American missionaries in the China field.

The first word of withdrawal of missioners from outlying posts to guarded cities was received today by the Department of Missions of the Episcopal church. To whom Bishop A. A. Gilman of Hankow cabled:

"Situation serious. Women and children missionaries have been ordered to this port."

The Episcopal mission has about fifty families in the Hankow region, which includes the provinces of Hupeh and Hunan, around the middle Yangtze.

Representatives of other missions opresed the opinion that their own workers around Hankow would be ordered to follow the example of the Episcopalians. Bishop Gilman's cablegram did not say whether the consular authorities had ordered the withdrawal or if it was made by his own order.

The Episcopal mission board had also received word of the closing of four of its principal schools in the lower Yangtze valley owing to the anti-foreign disturbances in Changhai and surrounding cities.

SITUATION IN HANKOW IS REPORTED QUIET

Hankow, June 12.—(AP)—Late tonight the situation in Hankow still remained quiet, largely owing to the efforts of General Hsia Yao-Nan, military governor of the province of Hupeh, who today issued a proclamation in which he threatened to execute any Chinese who disturbed the foreign concession. There was no repetition today of the rioting of Thursday night, in which a number of Chinese were killed or wounded while making an attack upon the British volunteer army.

It is estimated that 5,000 Chinese soldiers were stationed around the concession tonight.

PROGRESS IN TRIAL OF WILLIAM O. SHEPHERD

Chicago, June 12.—(AP)—The prosecution today won the right to present its murder case against William Darling Shepherd, Chicago lawyer accused of using typhoid germs to slay his millionaire foster son, William Nelson McClintock, unhampered by instructions from the bench, but the defense was able to turn in its own favor all medical testimony introduced by three state witnesses.

A lengthy argument came late today when the six attorneys retired to the chambers of Judge Thomas J. Lynch and for nearly an hour debated the defense contention that the court should force the prosecution forthwith to establish the "corpus delicti" or forfeit its case.

The defense contended that while it had been established "Billy" McClintock had lived and was dead, it had not been proven that he died through criminal means. The state's insistence upon calling witnesses to prove a motion for Shepherd to have slain the youth was but a step to prejudice the jury against Shepherd, the defense contended.

The state successfully contended that the introduction of each witness was a step in establishing the "corpus delicti," which would be fixed by only circumstantial evidence, since admittedly there was no one who would testify that he had seen the typhoid germs administered, although by various witnesses the chain of evidence against the defendant would be welded.

POLICE FROM HALIFAX HAVE SUBDUED MINERS

Sydney, N. S., June 12—(A. P.)—The colliery district of Cape Breton was reported quiet tonight with 500 soldiers and police from Halifax temporarily quartered in the plant of the steel company here ready for any emergency.

At New Waterford, where the thirteen-week old strike of the United Mine Workers of America against the wage rates of the British Empire Steel corporation culminated yesterday in a clash in which one miner was killed and two-score wounded, all was peaceful and quiet.

The power plant, which the corporation police won by a surprise attack yesterday morning and lost in a counter attack yesterday afternoon when their forces were routed by the miners, presented a deserted aspect tonight. There were no pickets and no company officials. They were not necessary this evening because the power plant was a complete wreck and beyond all usefulness for weeks to come.

It was estimated by the company that looting of the company's property during the night resulted in a loss of from $75,000 to $100,000.

SENATOR LAFOLLETTE IS IN BED WITH HEAVY COLD

The Senator will be 70 years old next Sunday. His present illness is a recurrence of an attack of grippe and influenza which he suffered several years ago.

DOROTHY PERKINS TRIAL ADJOURNED TILL MONDAY

New York, June 12.—(AP)—The trial of Dorothy Perkins, alleged slayer of her suitor, Thomas A. Templeton of Jersey City, was adjourned until Monday when the girl collapsed today and was carried out of the court room for treatment by a physician.

Sydney R. Lash, her counsel, indicated an adjournment that Dorothy was the only remaining witness to be called by the defense. The girl's collapse came when the prosecution introduced a letter said to have been written to "Mickey" Conners, her sweetheart, from her cell in Jefferson Market jail and intercepted by Mrs. Conners. The contents of the letter were not divulged.

Conners, a truck driver, was brought to the court from the workhouse, where he is serving a six months' sentence for wife beating. When he entered Dorothy's head fell on her arms and she did not look at the witness during his testimony.

Conners testified that he was not near the Perkins' apartment at the time of the shooting. Under cross-examination, however, he admitted that the girl came to his home about six o'clock that evening. Questioned as to his relations with the girl, he declined to answer on the grounds that it would incriminate him.

Captain William A. Jones, pistol expert, testified earlier in the afternoon that a hole in the coat worn by Rudolph Perkins, father of the accused, was made by a pistol bullet, and that powder stains indicated the muzzle of a revolver had touched the cloth.

Mrs. Letitia Dunlap, Dorothy's aunt, testified that Templeton was struggling with the girl and her parents for possession of the weapon when the fatal shot was fired. Harry Brown, who said he was the sole witness to the shooting, did not come into the room until after Templeton had been wounded, Mrs. Dunlap declared.

Harold Perkins, the defendant's brother, denied he had said his sister avowed the shooting. Young Perkins was questioned by the assistant district attorney a month ago. The record was read today to show he had so stated at that time.

Harold was not in his home when the shooting occurred, having taken one of the girl guests home before he left, he said. he heard Templeton say to his sister:

"Well, Dot, if we can't be sweethearts, we can be friends."

Harold testified that Brown had been been drinking throughout the evening.

An inspection of land on the Capen estate, on the North Windham road, just over the city line, by Henry Scott, sanitary engineer for the state department of health, has privileged the strikers' committee to use that land for a camping place. This is the site selected by the committee, by Mr. Scott, City Health Officer Dr. W. P. S Keating, Senator John H. Powers and Acting Fire Chief Henry J. Kellogg, after going over the Bacon lot, the strikers' first selection, on Wednesday. As the site on the Capen property lies outside the limits of the city, the sanitation and fire hazards of the tented city will come outside the jurisdiction of city officials. The sanitation will be under the jurisdiction of Town Health Officer Dr. E. F. Wilmot, through jurisdiction of the state board of health. The strikers have been notified that sanitary regulations are to be carried out to the letter, and daily inspections will be made under committee, with occasional visits from an inspector for the department of health. Friday, several strikers were clearing up land on the premises, preparatory to the erection of tents.

The one addition is that of a passenger train on the Air Line leaving Willimantic at 1:25 for New Haven. It may be noted in passing, however, that on the new schedule the two trains that pass over the lines during the day will run direct to New Haven instead of quitting at Allston as they have been doing in the past. There are to be two trains daily on the Providence division Sunday service on both the Hartford and Midland divisions will be practically the same as on week days. No. 113, now leaving every day for Boston at 5:40 will not pull out of Willimantic week days until 6:45, but on Sundays will leave at 5:40. The "mixed special," No. 120, now leaving in the afternoon for Putnam only, will leave on week days at 5 a. m.

Mountain Chains

T theory of mountain chain formation based on the slow sliding of whole continental blocks over a substratum of volcanic glass was proposed at the American Philosophical Society by Dr. Reginald A. Daly of Harvard University.

According to Dr. Daly's theory, great sections of the earths crust slowly heaved and tilted out of a stable position, gradually migrate in the direction of their slope. This slope may be very slight, and migration very slow, even a few inches a century, yet it goes on for such long periods that great changes, even the formation of huge mountain ranges, may take place.

Such a "downstream" migration of a continental block, Dr. Daly said, could not be imagined over a fixed and rigid base; but "for good reasons we may assume the earth's crust to be underlain by a universal substratum of basaltic glass at a temperature of 1,200 to 1,600 degrees Centigrade, or 2,200 to 2,900 Fahrenheit. The rigidity or stiffness of the substratum is great because of the hydrostatic pressure upon it, yet as is the case of pitch, the the resistance to flow breaks down with the passage of time, if a permanent, one sided pressure or stress be applied to the substratum material.

Two things happen to a migrating continent Dr. Darly continued. The edge of the "downstream" side, upon reaching the limit of its migration and encountering resistance, wrinkles and crumples into mountain folds, like the outer edge of flowing tar or molasses. On the "upstream" side the crust is stretched and finally cracked, allowing the interior magma to come to the surface as great non-volcanic lava flows.

A Squirrel's Appetite

Tests of the appetite of the average Rocky mountain mantled ground squirrel and the San Francisco mountain chipmunk are being conducted by the biological survey, United States department of agriculture, at the southwestern forest experiment station. These little animals show an astonishing capacity for pine seeds, the ground squirrel eating 340 pine seeds in one day and night, while the chipmunk can account for 237. It is found that a group of four seed trees in an acre of cut-over western yellow pine land will produce about 92,000 seeds in a good year, which would be just enough seed to carry one family of squirrels and three families of chipmunks about two weeks. What the rodents do for the remaining fifty weeks or what they do in a poor seed year does not appear, but in a good year, at least they seriously interfere with the natural reforestation of western yellow pine.

Great Dane Mothers Lion Cubs

The raising of three cub lions, the offspring of Senta, the prize lioness of the Berka zoo, has been entrusted to a Great Dane. The cubs upon their birth immediately were taken from Senta, who showed a disposition to kill them. The foster dog mother nurses them carefully, to the great delight of hundreds of children who are watching the development of the playful young lions.

Two hundred and five thousand children are now in institutions or cared for by agencies in the United States.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Possibly many timid people will be all "wheed" up over that Frank Weeden has again, and for the sixth time, regained his liberty after twisting the bars of his cell and getting out of the Rhode Island state Hospital for Mental Diseases at Howard. And then again they may not.

It will be recalled that this same Weeden escaped in July, 1923, and was believed to have made his way into this territory, the northeastern section of Killingly being searched by state officers and armed posses for days in an unsuccessful effort to find him. In the meanwhile the countryside was in a state of fear that this maniac would kill someone, as he was believed at that time to have killed a boy at Johnston, R. I., this almost immediately after he had escaped from the hospital. This corner of the state knew Weeden as murderously inclined and was apprehensive as to what he might do in one of his mad moments.

Weeden had been confined since 1902, excepting during the periods he was at large after his various escapes, for having attempted to kill his cousin, a young woman with whom he was infatuated. He was for years regarded as extremely dangerous, but is said now to be as harmless as a kitten, this being the opinion of officials of the institution where he has been confined.

He is a powerful man, tall, weighing about 190 pounds and with his left eye missing. An ugly looking customer at the best, those familiar with his appearance say.

The last time he escaped, getting out of New England though posses were hunting him, he went to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and was confined in an institution there until he was identified and returned to Rhode Island. He had been at large in about six weeks.

In the meantime, Killingly people will recall, bones of a man found in the rear of the Ayer property at Dayville were at first thought to be Weeden's, but this supposition was finally established as unfounded.

People here also will remember about Everett Harrington in connection with the Weeden case. Harrington, an inmate of the state hospital in Norwich escaped soon after Weeden gained his liberty. He came up to Killingly, his home town, and heard all the hullabaloo about Weeden. This may have inspired Harrington to instigate his now notorious scheme of luring Edward Pinkham, an East Killingly boy from his home in that place, over into the territory west of Holy Cross Cemetery, Danielson, there to make Pinkham dig what was intended to be his own grave. Pinkham did not entirely agree with this program, not being quite ready to die, and when opportunity offered, though perhaps a bit thoughtlessly, banged Harrington over the head with the shovel that Harrington was forcing him to carry and knocked the lunatic for a goal, as the boys say.

That affair again stirred up this excited countryside and another man hunt was on, this time for Harrington. Harrington got over to Webster and told officers who apprehended him there that a man named Maynard who had died at the state hospital in Norwich really was Weeden. He produced a note which Howard officials said was in Weeden's hand writing and reading: "Money, money, money; kill, kill, kill. Frank Weeden, State Hospital, Cranston, R. I." This afterwards proved to be a fake of Harrington's for he had invented the entire story and written the note himself. Now Weeden is out again and Harrington is in again, as they used to say of the Finnigins.

Getting attendance is the easiest thing about the Textile Products exhibit of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association at the state armory here. About everyone appears anxious to see the show. They have come from far and near. Groups of mill men from New Bedford, Fall River and other Massachusetts cities, from Providence and from all sections of eastern Connecticut were present on the opinion night, numbers of them officials of high estate. Over 1,000 people saw the exhibits on the opening night and on Friday night other hundreds flocked to see the show. It is estimated that the throngs that will flock to the armory this afternoon and evening will run the attendance during the three days to nearly 5,000 people. The exhibit is fully worthy of all the attention it is receiving and it is one splendid success.

It is a great booster for eastern Connecticut's pride in its greatest industry—that of textile manufacturing. No finer goods of the lines shown are made in America. This is the verdict of experts who have inspected the exhibits.

Showings of a marvelous line of imitation silks by the Aldrich mills of Moosup, of similar lines by the Lawton mills of Plainfield and of kindred lines by the Pace company and the Westfield Textile company, both Danielson concerns; by the Lorraine mills, by Grosvenordale, Ashland Cotton, Pomeman, Quinebaug and Wauregan has aroused the enthusiasm of the crowds The displays of the woolen and worsted mills are no less remarkable. Assawaga of Dayville, Central Worsted, Farnsworth, American Woolen impress with the beauty and quality of their products. Then there are the fine displays of the mill machinery and mill supply and accessory houses. The show is 100 per cent. good and everyone is delighted with it.

Of special interest to Danielson is a unique display in the booth of the Killingly Worsted mill. This includes a pair of men's worsted trousers from one leg of which is suspended a keg containing 100 pounds of nails, while the other leg is stretched out to be attached to a hook at the top of a tripod. Here is evidence that the trousers will not rip under an abnormal strain. W. K. Litch of the Killingly Worsted company, pointed out that the material in the trousers is woven in this town for use in manufacture of a line of trousers that are nationally known and advertised. It is of interest that cloth made here comes back here after being manufactured into trousers for sale through one of Danielson's best known retail stores.

Carroll Czarkeski, Antonio Alphonso, Raymond Lariviere and Raymond Cookahuit, all youths and all of New Bedford, have been turned over to New Bedford officers to answer for the theft of an automobile in that city. Inspectors Bolton and Dupuis came here to take them back.

This quartet was apprehended near Hampton Hill by State Officer Edward Streeman of the Danielson barracks while he was on his way from Willimantic to investigate a robbery reported as having taken place at the William Creasey house on the state highway between Wauregan and Brooklyn.

There arrest, the fixing of responsibility for the break on Czaroski and Lariviere, was followed by a quiss that led to uncovering the fact that the boys were involved early this week in the theft of an automobile in New Bedford, this car being later abandoned at Greene, R. I., when its supply of gas gave out. It was ascertained that all the boys have records in Massachusetts. They will answer in that state for the automobile theft before paying such penalty as may be later inflicted upon them in Connecticut for the Creasey affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Glendenning returned to Boston after coming here to attend the textile show. Mr. Glendenning is now business manager of one of the best known textile periodicals in the country.

The Rhode Island state police, newly organized, began to function Friday. They will do road patrol duty, among other things, throughout the neighboring state.

Charles Aldrich, Providence, of the firm of Aldrich Brothers, Moosup, came here Thursday evening to attend the textile show.

Friday at noon the body of Mrs. Grace Marsh Miller was brought here from Boston for burial in Westfield cemetery. Mrs. Miller, who was a Christian Science practitioner, died in the Christian Science Sanitarium in Brookline. At the grave here the committal service was conducted by Arthur A. Dean of Danielson. Mrs. Miller was a native of Killingly, a daughter of Charles Marsh. Her husband, dead a number of years, was John Miller. Mrs. Miller was about 62 years of age. Her residence was in Brookline at 514 Harvard street.

Herbert Arthur Keech, 16, died early Friday morning at the Keech home on Hutchins street. Death followed a long illness, which became acute some time since. He was the son of the late Herbert C. Keech and Mrs. Maud A. Douty Keech and was born December 19, 1910, in this town. Besides his mother he leaves three brothers, Jerome, Stanley and Harold, and two sisters, Miss Mildred Keech.

This Saturday morning will mark the elimination of the boat train from the railroad schedule. Something touching the boat train's history is of interest, especially to the older residents of this section, who in years gone by will remember the boat train, as being the last word in high class and special railroading. Ever since the Norwich line of boats was established the boat train has been operated over this iron. For many years, this great train made no stop at Jewett City. North bound, it was due at 5 a. m., and at one time north, there were two, one going through here as early as 3 o'clock in the morning. The south bound train was due here for many years at 10:17 p. m., and back 45 years ago, when Mr. Cooper and later Thomas O'Niel were its engineers, it was a sight to see it sail down through Jewett City. Every night in summer time, people went to the depot and waited to see the boat train whiz by, half invisible in a cloud of steam and smoke. Nobody was ever able to disprove the claim made by many, that some nights back in Cooper's time, it made the curve in the cut above the depot, upon two wheels. Connecticut state laws, for many years demanded that the boat train be "watched," that is, that a man should show a white light, at the first switch it crossed, at every station in this state. Bill Harvey and Israel were the first two men here that held the important position of watchman of the boat train. They were followed by Henry Jones, John Sharkey, Harry Darling, and, beginning in 1887, the writer of this column, held down the job for five years. The pay was the munificent sum of 50 cents for each train. The law was repealed in 1893. If the flagman overslept, and failed of his duty, the engine driver would stop his great train and blow a dozen blasts. Tom O'Niel could do it proper, fit to wake the dead. After which, with much puffing, the train would proceed with care, until all the switches had been cleared.

Postmaster W. T. Crumb has written the superintendent of the First division of the railway mail service, asking that a direct pouch be made up for Jewett City, either on the trunk line, night shore line mail trains 29 and 30, or by the R. M. S. transfer clerk in New London. If this is done, such a pouch could be sent in the baggage car, or the freight which will handle the milk car, arriving at 6 a. m. On that train a baggage car will handle made up mail.

Isabel Flynn and Wallace Burke, of Plainfield grammar school, and Miss Day, of Central Village school, were winners of the dictionary. ## ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Betty Compson's new Paramount star picture, New Lives for Old, coming to the Broadway theater on Sunday abounds with graphic pictures of the World war, but so much as was fought in the front line trenches, but as it was worked out by secret service agents behind the lines.

With the rumble of the war as atmosphere, New Lives for Old tells the story of a French girl, a celebrated Parisian dancer and the toast of the French capital, who becomes involved in the intricate workings of her country's secret service. Her first assignment is to check up on the movements of de Montrichard, believed to be an enemy spy parading in the uniform of a French officer. Theodore Kosloff, featured with Wallace MacDonald and Sheldon Lewis in the picture, portrays this role. MacDonald is cast as Hugh Warren, and American officer whom Betty meets on her aunt's farm in Normandy where his company is billeted on its way up to the front. Lewis is in the role of Kosloff in the production, which was adapted for the screen by Adelaide Heilbron.

Betty later learns that by intercepting a message from de Montrichard to his superior officer she had saved the life of Warren. Hugh and the girl are married and go to America, where the old life seem about to pass for Betty and a new one open up before her. But, by a queer twist of fate, de Montrichard, who has escaped, is in Washington and not only that, he is engaged to marry Hugh's sister.

Here's a situation. Betty and the spy come face to face; there is instant recognition and—

Jack Joyce, Joe Dowling, Edward Faust, Margaret Seldon, Helen Dunbar are among the more prominent players in the supporting cast of the picture, which is said to be as big as The Humming Bird, which created such favorable comments when exhibited at this theater last year.

Palace Theatre.

The final performance of "The Gal and Canary" which has been delighting and thrilling large audiences at the Palace theatre all this week will be given today and those who miss this wonderful mystery play at either the matinee performance or the night performance today will miss seeing something worth while in the line of entertainment. Be sure and you don't miss out on it.

For the first three days of next week, starting Monday night at 8:15, the Augustin Stock Company will present a melodramatic adventure some 'comedy' that is decidedly different, "Almost a Hero." The play rushes through four hilarious acts that are packed full of surprising situations, intrigue and sparkling comedy. Dramatic device is developed along fresh and novel lines. The story is worked out on a basis of sound psychology and it strikes a strong human note. The play is a high powered entertainment. William Augustin will be seen in the leading role of Sam Jones which gives him unusual opportunities to excel in the sort of a part he does best. Ruth Floyd has the charming role of Mag Devereaux, a role that gives her ample opportunity to display her histrionic abilities. Arthur Behrins, Claire Haslin, Nellie Gray, Bernard Pate, Frank Calder, Joe Angell, Herbert Brown and others also will cast in roles that will make them new friends at every performance. "Almost a Hero" ran for twelve weeks at the Moresco theatre in Los Angeles and for three months at the Ritz theatre in New York. In securing this play for presentation next week the management of the Palace theatre has again shown his wisdom and foresight for "Almost a Hero" was not only be a new play to local theatregoers, but will at the same time fill the always present want of the good, wholesome, cheering and refreshing amusement.

Round Table Meeting at Y Sunday

Men who are interested in the discussion of practical religious topics are most cordially invited to attend a meeting at the local Y. M. C. A. at 4 o'clock tomorrow, (Sunday), where under the cooling breezes of large fans such a discussion will be conducted, the topic being, "The relations of a Christian to his fellowman."

The discussion will be based on the teachings of the Bible and it will be absolutely informal. Cooling refreshments will be served to all attending. All men are invited.

Breed Theater

Lovers of the sea will find a realm of real enchantment in "Another Man's Wife," which will be shown at the Breed theater for three days beginning Sunday. The opening scenes aboard the steamship Alexandria, the collision in the fog with a barge-towing tug and the closing scenes aboard the rum-running barge are calculated to stir the pulses that beat in rhythm with the restless sweep of the sea. And then there is the rescue by the submarine S-36 that is a "knockout" in film realism. James Kirkwood, Lila Lee, Wallace Beery, and Matt Moore have the principal roles.

Sweden Collects Radio Fees.

Twelve per cent. of Sweden's entire population are now licensed radio fans, the latest statistics show, and since the police have begun for the first time to round up illicit listeners the demand for official permits has grown by leaps and bounds. To meet the expense of operating the public broadcasting stations, the department of telephones and telegraphs which has charge of the country's radio system, charges a license fee of 6.25 for each receiving set. At the beginning of 1924 only 4,536 such permits had been issued, but today the figure is about 70,000.

A new air-cooled engine for small airplanes to be flown from ships at sea has been developed by the United States navy.

NOT FOR UNCLE SAM

The United States has no intention of being dragged into European troubles if it can help it. For that reason this government makes it known that it will play no part in the western Europe's security pact.

The proposed agreement is to include four countries, Great Britain, France, Belgium and Germany, and it is the desire of Germany that the United States should be made the repository of the pledges. That of course would mean that every time any question came up in regard to the pact Uncle Sam would be called upon to act as the interpreter. It would be quite the thing to look to us to act as arbitrator and when there are such things as boundary matters which may be easily brought into question it is evident that the United States has no reason for getting involved in the European tangle.

The desire of this country has been to avoid European entanglements. We are still clinging to that position and there appears to be no prospect of our departure. The state department has made it clear that no such proposition has been put before this government, however, Germany may have expressed itself. We have declared ourselves sufficiently in the past to have made it unnecessary to seek our participation, but if that was not the case, the new declaration, based upon the possibility of such a request being actually presented, would appear to forstall such a thing.

Under the circumstances the Berlin idea is to be regarded as only a suggestion, but that is as far as it will get as far as the United States is concerned. The expression by this government must serve to cause the abandonment of any such effort. When it comes to dealing with the boundaries and the peace of Europe it is a large task but it is one which the countries of Europe must shoulder, and for their own good it would be well if it were done along somewhat different lines than have prevailed in the past.

SMUGGLED ALIENS

When it is estimated that there have been about 200,000 immigrants smuggled into this country in the past twelve months it indicates that the barriers which have been erected against these people are not sufficient or we should undertake more stringent enforcement of our immigration laws.

Getting aliens across the borders on our shores is apparently a profitable business. Those who are disappointed in passing the requirements or who are stopped by the quota limitations are finding it possible to get in without observance of our laws. It may cost them more money but they are willing to pay the price, and once they get in they are quite as able to carry out their purposes as if they had come through the immigration stations. They find that it is not necessary to respect our laws in this important direction: What can be their regard for other laws of the country?

The fact that such a large number is estimated to have been helped under the fence does not mean that the immigration law should be abandoned if it does call for stopping the holes. If it is not possible to maintain a guard of sufficient size to accomplish this the job must be tackled in another manner, and it is not improbable that the other method would be more successful.

Let the enforcement of the immigration law be strengthened wherever possible, but when the situation has gotten to the point that there are 200,000 snapping their fingers at this particular law it seems to be time for this country to require all aliens to register. By that means it will be possible to keep tabs on these people. If they can show that they have received proper entrance papers they have nothing further to worry about in that respect. If they cannot it will mean that they can expect to experience early deportation.

Will it be wise to wait until the boot-legged aliens reach a total of 400,000 each year before some such means of restriction are applied? Unless something is done the number smuggled in will soon exceed those arriving through legitimate channels.

SHOOTING IN A FRENZY

Strange are the workings of some courts, and more and more difficulty is it becoming to understand their operations. A young man in Pennsylvania has recently admitted he tried to murder his sweetheart who had refused to marry him. He pleaded guilty in court and the court took the position that a young man had quite as much reason to develop a frenzy under these circumstances as a young woman would have, and that if it had been the young woman the sympathy of the court would have been enlisted in her behalf. Thus the court felt it only proper to refuse to send him to jail and gave him his liberty under a suspended sentence.

As far as a young man being entitled to the same degree of leniency that might be shown to a young woman there seems to be no difference be entirely proper, but what is there in the case of those who carry firearms and use them that entitles them to escape the penalty of the law?

The judge in addressing the prisoner said: "When you fired that shot you were driven to it by the frenzy of a disappointed love, fed perhaps by intoxicants which led you to attempt your own life immediately afterward. Poor man, with human comprehension for your plight, I have too much pity on you to inflict more punishment. You have suffered tortures already."

The judge didn't quite tell the prisoner that he had done just right, but what interpretation are others going to place upon the disposition of this case and the reasoning of this judge? Is it going to be the thing for others who are thrown into a frenzy under similar circumstances to resort to similar acts and shoot and possibly be a bit more accurate in their aim and actually kill? Frenzy may be as justifiable in man as in woman, but how long since such conduct was justifiable in either? Are all those who feel inclined to use a gun in Pennsylvania going to be able to have the judge excuse their acts because they were in a state of frenzy? If so the Keystone state may as well make preparations for a large increase in the number of shootings.

MEXICAN CONDITIONS

While this government has extended recognition to the present government of Mexico and indications have been that the situation below the Rio Grande was experiencing an improvement, it has been evident from the despatches which have concerned the return of Ambassador Sheffield to Washington that all was not what it ought to be.

Further light on the situation is furnished by the statement made by Secretary Kellogg following a conference with the ambassador which makes it clear that our recognition of the Mexican government if not necessarily permanent, that we are willing and anxious to give whatever aid we can to that republic but we expect it to live up to its responsibilities in return and when it ceases or fails to do that it can be expected that there will be danger of a severance of diplomatic relations.

It is apparently a question of upholding American rights in Mexico, the restoration of properties and the indemnification of Americans for illegal seizures. These matters have been pressed by Ambassador Sheffield without obtaining a proper degree of satisfaction. Lack of success has resulted in his presentation of the case to his government and the expression by the secretary of state means that the time has come for this government to give Mexico to understand what the situation is and what is necessary if there is to be a continuance of the present relations.

Secretary Kellogg's statement is bound to act as a warning. It should bring Mexico to a recognition of its responsibilities and hasten the improvement in conditions and thereby a strengthening of the bonds of friendship between the countries. As is well said by the secretary "Mexico is now on trial before the world."

THE RIGHT OF WAY

The Automobile Legal association, in one of its bulletin's asks "Do you know what the 'right of way' law is?" and then proceeds to explain what is required at the intersection of streets in Massachusetts, where the right of way is given to the car coming on the right if when seen it is about an equal distance from the center of the intersecting streets or nearer.

It takes the position that the "right of way is mostly a matter of good judgment and a desire to avoid accidents which both parties should observe."

It is unfortunately the case that too many accidents result at intersections because of the insistence on the part of both drivers that they have the right of way, when as a matter of fact little if any effort would have been required to permit the other fellow to pass and avoid trouble. Many of the mixups occur because of a lack of care and a too rigid insistence upon rights whether they actually exist or not.

It is golden advice which the association gives when it says "Drive slowly, be watchful—forget the right of way fetish. Use the good judgment every auto driver should have and which most auto drivers do possess, don't you be pigheaded if you meet one who is, but let him pass, if he insists; lose a second or two and go home to your family safe."

Too many are the instances where insistence, whether justified or not has resulted in smashed cars and a visit to the hospital when the use of care and good judgment would have prevented it all, and in these days when autos are so rapidly increasing in number there is no chance that too much care will be used.

Those who are watching others prepare for their graduations are wishing they were old enough or young enough to participate with them.

The killing of one and the wounding of another bandit by a midwest farmer helps to show up the unhealthy chances connected with banditry.

Now that there is talk about deepening the river to Derby, we are reminded that some such effort has been undertaken in behalf of the Thames, but we shall not dwell upon it.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Perfectly normal people learn from experiences. If they have ever failed with the drink habit they know of its demoralizing effect. It is quite possible to learn from experience without abiding by its suggestion. It is tragic, that so many will not learn from observation, but must have the experience before their eyes are open. Many of our crude and callow youths of both sexes will try out synthetic gin, wood alcohol and the "raw whiskies" with their irritating ingredient of fusel oil." But the price will have to be paid, and the awful risk will have to be run, even if it is done in a spirit of bravado, and urged on by the smart Alec spirit. It is said that this condition exists at many of the schools of the young people. If so what an opportunity it is for young women to show a real moral stamina by refusing to have anything to do with these dummies that masquerade as young men!

The writer is by no means influenced in his judgment by the cheap talk that is current to the effect that the Volstead act has tended to increase the drinking habit of the American people. No one with eyes open can deny that the law is openly violated; that great effort is made to sell the stuff because of the high price that it brings. But if one will carefully study the record as given in reliable statistics he will see that the contrary is most decidedly true. But the Volstead act is not a 100 per cent gain for temperance, and one of the most serious criticisms to be brought against it is that it seems to have put an end "to the great crusade for temperance that had so long been maintained in schools and churches, and through societies whose members were pledged to total abstinence." To down the rum business there must be moral suasion as well as legal enactment.

"Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap" is verified in moral as well as in natural law. If he sows brambles he doesn't gather corn. If he sows the habit of dishonesty and intemperance he doesn't build up a reputation for straight dealing and sobriety. No one can deliberately hurt another person and get away with it. True he may be cunning enough to evade statute law—the law made by man—but he can't get away from the law of God. Punishment has an organic relation to cause and effect. It ought to be remembered that punishment for the most part is self imposed. Of course there will be pain and sorrow that do not result from wrong doing. They are not punishment, but simply the price we pay for the glory of living. But if a man deliberately strikes the laws of his own being in the face he pays for it. Take the man who drinks synthetic gin and becomes blind, who is it that inflicts the penalty, a kindly Heavenly Father who warns us against "all the wiles of the adversary," or the man who drinks the gin?

Is not the converse of this proposition true, that the result of right action is reward? It is a strange law that does not work both ways. Law is designed to help the good and thwart the evil. If there is such a thing as cause and effect, then reward follows with the same logical certainty that punishment follows bad action, simply because effect is an organic part of cause. An inevitable fulfilment must follow casual action. As no one yet has succeeded in getting away with a carefully planned act of injustice, neither is one wholly left unrewarded for his good deeds. We must, of course, face the unpleasant fact that many crimes evade the laws of man, but they cannot get away from the laws of God. Man is often mocked but the Almighty never. Somehow, sometime and somewhere the balance will be struck.

There is a conspicuous difference in following these opposite lives as to the method of procedure. To lead a consistent life of moral and spiritual integrity will require constant and energetic action. To get into evil one need not do anything at all. It takes no energy to fall down stairs or to tumble down hill. Simply do nothing and one will drop by force of gravity to a lower level. There is no surer road to evil than idleness. Suppose the giant Leviathan is midway across the Atlantic, when for some reason her engines break down, and she entirely loses her propulsive power. Now what in all human probability is going to happen? Unless she regains her motive power she is going to float. No craft, unless securely anchored, will remain stationary on the ocean. She is at the mercy of both winds and tides. Now where is the great Leviathan going to float to? Back again into the mouth of the Mersey, or forward into safety in New York harbor? Did you ever hear of derelicts doing such a stunt as that? Sooner or later if the floating continues it will get into the breakers to be pounded to pieces by the pitiless waves. That is the logical end of floating.

Does not this apply to the unfortunately big numbers of human floaters? Shall I call them derelicts? Perhaps not yet, but they will be if they keep on floating. It is one thing for our young people to be on the streets nights if they have some virile, constructive purpose that justifies their presence there, and is worthy of them; but if they are there merely as floaters-why that is something entirely different. There is a radical difference between live fish that can stem the tide, and swim up stream, and dead fish that always float with the tide. The derelict comes in when floating begins. When one begins to float he ceases to be energetic, and then he becomes the sport of every wind that blows. Just where these floaters end up—especially the unfortunate girls—our newspapers have recently been telling us, in pitiable tragedy. Whether it is the Leviathan or human beings that float, the end will be the breakers where the human hulk will be battered to pieces by the merciless waves unless (and this is extremely important) unless they regain their own propulsive power. To get into evil ways all one has to do is to float.

While in principle it is true that punishment follows crime as an inevitable consequence, and that reward is the logical result of right action, still in many cases there is a long distance between deeds and their ultimate rewards and punishments. It is a notorious fact that here in the United States (and to a less extent in most of the countries of Europe) that many capital offenses never find their way into our courts of justice. The deadly record tells us that in Chicago alone in the last 20 years there have been 423 unapprehended murderers. On the other hand how many of our fellow beings have gone down to their graves broken-hearted because there had been no apparent appreciation of their self-sacrificing services. Now as justice is a feature of God's moral law, must there not be an hereafter where all these things can be adjudicated? As many things are not adjusted in this life does it not constitute an argument in support of immortality?

An automatic subway freight service is proposed by M. H. Loughridge, a New York engineer, who claims to have perfected a system that could be operated under Manhattan.

CORRECT USE AND PROPER TREATMENT OF THE FLAG

Our flag long cried in need of regulations governing and coordinating its use. The organization received this indorsement of Hon. Charles E. Hughes while Secretary of State:

"It is fitting that we should have organized effort to direct attention to the correct use of the flag, and that, finding common ground on which all good citizens may unite, without regard to race or creed, we should emphasize our national ideals, and rejoicing in the benefits of liberty under law, work together to maintain the institutions of the republic. I am, therefore, in hearty accord with the United States flag Association whose mission is the achievement of these purposes."

This association is strictly non-partisan politically, religiously, and racially. In accordance with this policy the founders—thirteen in number, typifying the 13 original states symbolized by the 13 stripes of the flag, and representing the basic principles and ideals for which the flag stands—were: Charles E. Hughes, Thomas R. Marshall, Cardinal O'Connell, Rabbi Abram Simon, Bishop James E. Freeman, Dr. Robert R. Moton of Tuskegee Institute, Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, Senator Oscar W. Underwood, Governor Alfred E. Smith, Curtis D. Wilbur, Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, Judge Elbert H. Gary and the late Samuel Gompers.

The incorporators—three in number, typifying the red, white and blue of the flag—were Admiral William S. Sims, General Amos A. Fries and General George C. Rickards.

The 48 stars of the flag are typified by the National Council of which the governor of every state of the Union is a member, representing his state as symbolized by its star on the flag.

The only qualification for membership in the association is American citizenship. All citizens of the United states are eligible on an equal footing, irrespective of age, color, sex or creed. A life membership costs only $1 for adults and 25 cents for children. There are no other fees or dues of any kind, but anyone desiring to help along the work by rendering financial assistance can do so by making contributions.

There have never been any government regulations of the use of the flag, although the several branches of the military service have their respective rules. The only general rule is that the flag must not be used for advertising purposes, and there is a general public sentiment against draping the flag.

In 1923 a national flag conference was held in Washington and was composed of delegates from the principal national patriotic, fraternal, educational and civic organizations. This conference adopted the following rules for displaying the flag:

1—The flag should be displayed only from sunrise to sunset, or between such hours as may be designated by proper authority. It should be displayed on national and state holidays and on historic and special occasions. The flag should always be hoisted briskly and lowered slowly and ceremoniously.

2—When carried in a procession with another flag, or flags, the flag of the United states should be either on the marching right, i. e., the flag's own right, or when there is a line of other flags, the flag of the United States may be in front of the center of that line.

3—When displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, the flag of the United States should be on the right, the flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag.

4—When a number of flags are grouped and displayed from staffs, the flag of the United States should be in the center or at the highest point of the group.

5—When flags of state or cities or pennants of societies are flown on the same halyard with the flag of the United States, the National flag should always be at the peak. When flown from adjacent staffs the flag of the United States should be placed above or to the right of the flag of the United States.

6—When flags of two or more nations are displayed they should be of approximately equal size. International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of another nation in time of peace.

7—When the flag is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony or front of building, the union of the flag should go clear to the head of the staff unless the flag is at half mast.

8—When the flag of the United States is displayed in a manner other than by being flown from a staff it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out. When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right, i. e., to the observer's left. When displayed in a window it should be displayed the same way, that is with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street. When festoons, rosettes or drapings of white and red are desired, bunting should be used, but never the flag.

9—When displayed over the middle of the street, as between buildings, the flag of the United States should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east and west street or to the east in a north and south street.

10—When used on a speaker's platform, the flag should be displayed above the speaker. It should never be used to cover the speaker's desk nor to drape over the front of the platform. If flown from a staff it should be on the speaker's right.

11—When used in unveiling a statue or monument, the flag should not be allowed to fall to the ground but should be carried aloft to wave out, forming a distinctive feature during the remainder of the ceremony.

12—When flown at half-mast, the flag is the symbol of the living nation lowered to the half-staff position, but before lowering the flag it is raised again to the peak. On Memorial Day, May 30th, the flag is displayed at half-mast from sunrise until noon and at full staff from noon until sunset for the nation lives and the flag is the symbol of the living nation.

13—When used to cover a casket, the flag should be placed so that the union is at the head and over the left shoulder. The flag should not be lowered into the grave nor allowed to touch the ground. The casket should be carried feet first.

14—When the flag is displayed in church it should be from a staff placed on the congregation's right as they face the clergyman. The service flag, the state flag or other flag should be at the left of the congregation, if in the chancel, the flag of the United States should be placed on the clergyman's right as he faces the congregation and other flags on his left.

15—When the flag is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, it should not be cast aside or used in any way that might be viewed as disrespectful to the National colors but should be destroyed as a whole, privately, preferably, by burning or by some other method in harmony with the reverence and respect we owe to the emblem representing our country.

While it is true that a number of societies and organizations are working to educate the citizens of this country to pay greater reverence and respect to the flag, such work is only incidental with them, and it is felt that there is a need for an organization whose principal purpose is "to bring into greater consideration and higher appreciative regard by the citizenry of the republic the flag of the United States as the visible, symbolic representation of our national sovereignty, ideals, traditions and institutions."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bible Reading and Bible Study

Mr. Editor:

Quite recently we read of a piece of statuary donated—we think—to the Smithsonian collection—which represented the sculptor's idea of an important Bible subject—namely—as the paper entitled it—"Jacob Wrestling With the Angel."

The artist, so far from giving an historic representation of the scene, evidently had not read nor studied the story as given in the divine narrative. His angel had the appearance of a female character with wide extended wings, as it was pictured in the cut, not particularly in holds with the figure supposed to represent Jacob. A simple reference to the story as related in Genesis, Chap. 22, would have shown him that there was no winged angel in connection with the scene at all and that the name angel could only be applied in the free sense of messenger.

The writer in Genesis is particular to state that it was a man, with which Jacob wrestled.

Without quoting the entire story, which is a most interesting one, the narrator tells us in verse 24th—"And Jacob was left alone; and there wrestled a man with him, until the breaking of the day."

When the narrator tells us that it was a man, and we substitute in place, a winged object of the conventional type and attitude, the hope of gaining the lesson of the story seems unobtainable.

The Genesis with its simple description, we may be sure is right, the interpretation of which must be more readily reached.

It is not the purpose of this writer to introduce the lesson apparent to him, in the story, a re-reading of the whole narrative as it is found corrected will reward any thoughtful mind. Scripture is its own best interpreter, and makes itself plain often in spite of misleading artists and commentators.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Are We Ready?

Now the question comes, Are you prepared? Are you getting ready? A southern slave owner died, and some one said to one of his slaves: "I hope your master has gone to Heaven." "I'se don't tink he has gone dare," said the negro, "for I'se never heard him talk of it. I allus seed him when he was goin' Norf or to the Springs, pack his trunk and git ready, but I'se did not see him git ready for Heaven." Are you getting ready for Heaven? Are you packing your trunk and setting everything in order for your departure? You can take nothing with you, you say! Oh, yes, you can. You can take a trunk packed full. Your heart is the trunk and you may pack it so full of love, truth, faith, hope, joy and patience, that the lid will hardly shut down. It takes a long time to pack that trunk, you will want literature by the way; that postman team is the mind. Give it the Christ; and let Him fill it with that ready learning which will best serve you in time of need. You must be prepared all over. From head to foot, without and within, you must be bathed in "the crimson tide that flowed from Calvary," disclosing in your hands the nail-points, on your brow the thorn marks, and every Christ mark about you, with trunk filled, and portmanteau packed and leaning heavily on the strong staff of trust, and always, in clear or cloudy weather, keeping the golden gates in view.

Hermann Sudermann, the Drug Clerk, the Great Novelist

Poor Hermann Sudermann he'll have to go to work now!" sighed the neighbors in far away Eastern Prussia, almost on the Russian border, when Hermann Sudermann's father lost his small property and threw his family into want. "There's to be no more school for him—and he so steady in school too!" "To be sure," came the answer, "but' isn't he almost 14 years old? And don't other boys have to work? Why shouldn't he? Let him work!"

At any rate, Hermann Sudermann had to drop out of the school that he had been attending. He found a job mixing drugs and running errands and doing useful work for a chemist or druggist as we say. He had been brought up in a little village where his father had operated a very small local brewery, and he had been accustomed to work and to think of work as a duty and even a pleasure. Therefore he worked hard for the chemist—but he kept on working for himself. He used his spare time for study, kept up what he might have done in school, and finally found the opportunity to continue his work in a real school. Without money, but aided by friends, he went through the university, delighting especially in dramatic presentations of the past, as shown in history. His formal education completed, he was obliged once more to go to work. This time he became a private tutor in rich families, and for a number of months kept up his studies just as he had done while working for the chemist. He had ideas, and he had learning, so he turned to writing, with the good result that when he was 24 he became an editor. He enjoyed writing for the fun of writing, and so he wrote a number of short stories. At 28 he published them in a volume called In The Twilight. When he was 30 he wrote a novel called Dame Care, that attracted much attention and that is still widely read. The very fun of working kept Sudermann going, and he wrote a play called Honor that woke up all Germany. Here was something new, something that at once delighted everyone. The young man was then only 32 and at one bound he seemed to have leaped into fame. Really, it was his long, steady effort in writing that had prepared him, but to the world it looked as though he made his success over night. After that he wrote many novels, and many plays and became the leading German writer. His novel It Was, went through 15 editions in 12 months. In his work there was no digging for things that disgust, nor was there a getting too far away from reality. He wrote about real life from the point of view of an idealist. The misfortune that set him hard at work in early life was his greatest blessing.

Stories That Recall Others

Second to Go South

A fellow who went south last winter stopped at a boarding house. It was a boarding house wherein two northerners and many southerners were living. For weeks he was heckled by a southerner who spoke rather unkindly of the north.

"A great uncle of mine was the first and last one of our family who ever went north," said the heckler. "And he came back south quick."

The winter visitor's nerves became more and more frayed. Finally he spoke up "Well I'm the second of my family to come south," he said. "My grandfather came through here once—with Sherman."

From then on all was quiet.

Museums Take Notice

The fat gentleman starting to cross the street stopped abruptly and stared at the pavement in astonishment. His companion, too, stopped. Both peered, bending lower. The fat gentleman, puffing heavily, squatted down and pawed grotesquely at the dusty pavement. Passersby, seeing nothing, stopped and stared, wondering mildly whether the heat had made him crazy. Puffing louder and with perspiration on running in streams down his face, the fat gentleman set his jaw and continued to pick and scrape at the pavement, undeterred by the rapid gathering of the crowd. At length he straightened up with a broad triumphant grin and showed his "find" to his companion. Both broke into loud guffaws of surprised delight. The small crowd strained on tiptoe to see what he held in his hand. Grinning still, the fat gentleman held a small object aloft. It was long, surprisingly new in appearance and it glinted brightly in the morning sun. The fat gentleman chuckled. "Now I know," said he, "how the scientist who discovers the remains of a prehistoric beast feels!" A few of the women and all of the men in the small crowd laughed. He had picked up a long and heavy wire hairpin.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Charles A. Dunning, who has been given a further tenure of office as premier of Saskatchewan by virtue of the Liberal victory in the elections just held, is one of a number of English farm boys who have risen to prominence in Canadian public affairs. Only a little more than 20 years ago, as a lad of eighteen, he arrived in Saskatchewan from his native England. Within an hour after he had stepped off the train he had hired himself out to a farmer at $10 a month and board. A little later found him a homesteader and a leader in his little community. By 1910 he had become a director in the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association, and he and it developed until he was general manager of the world's largest elevator company. Though prominent in the Farmers' Co-operative Associations, Dunning in politics has maintained his original allegiance to the old time Liberal party. In 1922, after serving for a time as provincial treasurer, he reached the premiership.

CHILD TRAINING

TEACH CHILDREN TO LOVE THEIR WORK.

W. E. Farver.

I remember so well my own boyhood days, full from morning till night of general childish labor which was required of us. I remember also how we performed it without ever receiving, as it seemed to us, the least remuneration. Only too well do I remember the rebellion that filled our little hearts, because work to us seemed unendurable punishment. Then there were the frequent quarrels that followed because of the shirking of one or perhaps all. This was followed by father or mother having to scold us and to start us off again with no greater love for work; we knew that we must do it or take the consequences.

When I married and had children of my own, I resolved that they should not grow up with the same feeling toward work that I and my brothers and sisters had had when we lived together at home. My plan was to teach them to love work, to have them give their very best efforts to their tasks, not because they were told they had to accomplish a certain amount, but because they were assigned the work they loved.

The eldest showed a fondness for the chickens, so a certain part of their care was intrusted to him. This was a special task he loved, and he never needed to be reminded. He was allowed several chickens all his own, and the receipts from these constituted a fund which he might spend or put in the bank. He is growing up in love with his work, and as he gradually branches out into occupations of a broader nature, he takes more and more pleasure in whatever he has to do.

Our youngest is but a tiny tot, yet he is growing to love to do little things. He does not expect to be paid for the help he gives, but he feels that he has a share in the work of the home and usually begs to do his "bit."

My neighbor has a boy who helps his father in the fields. He is not driven to work, instead, he wants to help. In order to foster this spirit, his father gave him a little patch of ground; all he raises here belongs to him. How his eyes sparkle when he is praised for the excellent work he does on that patch and for the vegetables he produces on that ground! Nor is he less helpful. He is the more interested in his father's work, since he is in the same business himself.

Their little daughter is a real "mama's helper." She likes to do things about the house. She does not have to be driven. She is not a bit vain yet it makes her feel good to hear her father praise her neatly set table and the tidy room when he comes in from work. She does not expect to be paid for what she does, but each week she receives a small allowance part of which she deposits in the savings bank. This adds to the joy of doing her tasks and there is no thought that her mother is driving her to work.

We praise our children for the efforts they put forth. Remembering our own childhood days, we strive to keep our children from following the unhappy path we trod. It is so much better to have them accomplish little tasks because they love them, than to compel the performance through fear of punishment.

The days of the horse-drawn cab in Berlin appear to be numbered and with its passing will go an historic institution of old Berlin. Time was when the different colored "stovepipes" worn by the drivers indicated whether the cab was first, second or third class. Now there is only one class, and that is thoroughly dilapidated. The few remaining cripples are well beyond 40 and their numbers will not increase, as new licenses are issued only to motor-driven vehicles. Owners of horse cabs have a hard time making a living as there is little call for their vehicles except at the arrival of trains, when all the automobiles and taxicabs notwithstanding the rage among Ger are engaged.

WOMAN AVOIDS AN OPERATION

Awful Pains and Misery Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lima, Ohio.—"I want to tell you how your medicine has helped me. For years I suffered with awful pains from indigestion and I was to bed nearly every month. I would suffer so much that I would cry. I could not eat a thing but soup and I would vomit after meals. I would get so weak I could hardly walk across the floor. It was the doctor for me to attend, and he said I had a retroverted womb and that I would have to undergo an operation. I was told I would surely be in my bed for six weeks after the operation. I did not believe I could stand it and I had read so much in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I told my husband I would try it before I gave up. I soon began to feel that it was doing me good. The awful misery began to leave me, also the backache. I have a good appetite and am gaining in weight. Many of my friends are taking the medicine and I do not hesitate to say to all my friends: It has saved me from a threatened operation and I am still taking it."—Mrs. Irene Townsend, 734 North Pine St., Lima, Ohio.

Small Bills in Pads

A New York broker gets new $5 and $1 bills from the bank and sends them to his stationer, who makes them up in pads. The stationer puts one white sheet on the face of the pad as a protection to the first bill underneath. The broker claims it is an easier way to carry small bills and that they never get mussed up.

Footwear Styles of 1850

A forgotten sealed shelf in a Liberty, Mo., shoe store disclosed 20 pairs of shoes, never worn, that had been in there since 1850. The dainty dancing slippers that twinkled in and out from under a hoopskirt and the sturdy shoes with copper toes for boys were among the interesting specimens that will be placed on exhibition as a sample of the old-time shoemaker's art.

—A blend that would make any ice cream good. But Tait Bros. Venetian Ice Cream has the basic goodness that comes with pure, rich cream and milk from properly supervised dairy farms.

Plan your dinners for the week to include Tait Bros. Caramel Nut. There's a Tait dealer "around the corner" from most everybody.

Supersensitive Crystal

Parisian radio fans are hopeful that a new substance to replace the galena crystal will prove to be the dreamed-of supercrystal and not just another substitute. The substance was discovered by chance by Feltz Thuand, prominent French steel manufacturer. While studying the by-products of steel Thuand noticed a material that was somewhat like the crystal used in radio sets. He chipped off a few pieces and had a radio fan try them. Their report was that concerts were heard over longer distances and with greater clearness than with galena points. Thuand also found that it was not necessary to hunt for special points of contacts, as the new material was adequately sensitive at any point. The basis of the material is a combination of silicon and iron, with the former dominant. The product can be made in an electrical furnace or in an ordinary crucible. It can be sold at about one-fourth the price of substance now used.

AFTER HUNT AND [illegible] OFFICERS

An occurrence that had marks of the Wild West and the movies ended in the arrest in the woods in Montville Friday afternoon of Charles Laskey, 20, of New London, and Francis Antoniac, 21, of East Lyme, after a wild ride through this city, a battle with an officer at Montville, and the escape of the two men in their automobile, from which they took to the woods and were there arrested.

The excitement began when the two men, with Antoniac driving a Maxwell touring car, dashed through Franklin Square at the reported rate of about 50 miles an hour. They were coming from the Greeneville direction and they shot through the square on the left of all the traffic signals. Rounding the flashing beacon and Traffic Officer Michael Carroll at Shannon corner, they turned into Shetucket street, where they sideswiped a soda water truck that was parked at the curb. The Maxwell careened up on two wheels from the force of the blow, but landed on all fours and kept on going. Down around past the dock and through Commerce street, the machine shot towards the West Side and down towards Montville, while the Norwich police broadcasted the alarm to catch the speeders and stop the machine which had registration N-321, in the name of George Antoniac, a brother of the driver.

At Montville, a federal prohibition officer, Harry W. Avery of South Windham, who knew the men were wanted, jumped on the running board and told them to drive to a store where there was a telephone. Avery started to telephone to the state police barracks, but as he put in the call Antoniac attacked Mm and was seconded by Laskey.

Avery drew his blackjack to subdue the men, but the strap broke as he swung it and one of the men got hold of it and began to belabor the officer over the head. Avery put up one hand to protect his head and the blows that were showered upon him broke one finger. He fought back, swinging his handcuffs into the faces of the two men, and the three struggled out into the street, where a dozen men were standing around but none offered any help to the officer.

Avery pulled his gun and fired several shots but the two men got into their machine and made off towards Oakdale.

State policemen Johnson and Mugavero from the Groton barracks responded to a telephone call and reached Montville in short order. They followed the trail of the fleeing men and found the automobile abandoned by the roadside where the men had taken to the woods. After a search the officers found both men and took them to the office of Dr. John J. Donohue in Montville and then to the Norwich police headquarters where they were locked up on the charge of reckless driving and evading responsibility.

Federal Officer Avery was attended by Dr. John J. Donohue at his office in Montville. The officer had a finger broken on one hand and a bad gash in his head.

The two men will have to answer charges in the Norwich city court and will also have to face charges in the Montville court for their attack on the officer.

BODY OF SLAIN STUDENT RECOVERED FROM RIVER

Shreveport, La., June 12.—(A. P.)—The body of Robert Dead, 25, of Converse, La., a student of Centenary college was recovered from an old river, near Pleasureville, a swimming resort, today.

Read was drowned Wednesday night during a fight in the river with Geo. W. Gill, 23, senior law student of Loyola college, New Orleans, Gill told officers.

Reads' body was floating not far from the spot where his boat was abandoned on the night of the tragedy.

A charge of murder was filed against Gill yesterday by District Attorney Blancard and he is being held without bail.

Gill confessed Thursday to having fought with Read at the resort. In a statement he said that Read, who had been a sweetheart of Mrs. Gill before her marriage, called his wife by telephone an dasked her to meet him at the swimming resort, threatening her with blackmail if she failed to do so.

"My wife told me about it, and we decided to go down there," Gill said. "I intended to beat him up but not to kill him."

OVER 1,000 AT INDUSTRIAL EXHIBIT AT DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, June 13.—Over 1,000 people attended the Eastern Connecticut Mill association exhibit here tonight. Exhibitors state that more real prospects have been encountered here than at other exhibits at which they have shown.

The first two nights brought out an attendance of 2,000 or more. It is estimated that fully 3,000 will attend the show tomorrow, swelling the total attendance to 5,000 or better, which was the aim of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association. ### Left-Handedness

Men lead women in the tendency toward left-handedness, according to Prof. June E. Downer of the University of Wyoming, who recently completed examination of 400 men and women. She found that those who could use either hand with equal ease were generally superior intelligence. It was also discovered that, while fewer women were left-handed, there were also fewer women who were strongly right-handed; that people who place the left thumb over the right when folding the hands are inclined toward left-handedness, and that, for many individuals, the distinction between left and right is not nearly so well developed as that between up and down. In fact, many people have to rely upon some special mark to differentiate their hands.

JUDGE THOMAS' ILLNESS WAS DUE TO OVERWORK

Norwalk, Conn., June 12.—(AP)—Judge Edwin S. Thomas will be fit to return to duty in the U. S. district court within a day or two it was stated tonight by Dr. Robert E. Perdue, who attended him after he had been taken home following his collapse on the bench at the special session here. The case in progress was that of Ramsey vs. the Marlin Arms company, and arguments were being heard when Judge Thomas toppled to the floor. Court officials and lawyers rushed to his side, and he regained consciousness and was taken to his home.

Dr. Perdue said Judge Thomas' illness was nothing seriously. But was a signal of overwork and an undue nervous strain, and that soon he must take a rest. It is believed he will be able to complete the work pending before adjournment for the summer.

New Comet Coming

A faint comet, which may, however, become bright enough to be seen by the unaided eye as a small patch of light, has been discovered by Prof. Richard Schorr of the Bergedorf Observatory, near Hamburg, Germany according to advices received at Cambridge, by Dr. Harlow Shapeley, director of the Harvard College Observatory.

The celestial visitor is said to be Tuttle's comet which was first discovered in 1790 by P. F. Mechain at the Paris Observatory. After this it was lost until 1858, when C. W. Tuttle, then at the Harvard Observatory, rediscovered it and found that it was periodic, returning to the neighborhood of the earth every 14 years. Now it has returned for the fifth time since his observation.

At present it is of the eleventh magnitude, so that it can only be seen with the aid of a telescope of moderate power. It is in the constellation of the Sextant, below the bright star Regulus, which is directly south about 8 o'clock in the evening. Regulus is at the end of the handle of the "Sickle," a group of stars in the constellation of the Lion resembling that gardening implement. The comet is moving toward the northeast, so that it is coming into a better position for observation. As it is not a very large comet, however, and when nearest is farther away from the earth than the sun, we will not get a very close view of it at the best.

FRENCH OFFICIALS ARE AT WORK ON BUDGET

Paris, June 13.—(AP)—An agreement seems to have been reached between the government and the left parliamentary groups on the budget and the financial question, or rather, a truce has been proclaimed which it is believed should allow the 1925 budget to be voted before July 14, when the parliamentary session, under normal conditions, closes. The agreement as outlined tonight, attaches the proposed measures for the financial rehabilitation of France to the 1926 budget, which should be voted before December 31.

This understanding came after a meeting of all the left groups this morning at which M. Blum, the socialist leader still insisted that a capital levy ought to be substituted for the financial schemes of Finance Minister Caillaux. The other groups maintained there was not enough time for the chamber to discuss properly such a grave question before the 1925 budget was voted. Finally a compromise was accepted, and a deputation sent to M. Caillaux late this afternoon had no difficulty in obtaining his consent to the agreement. Thus unless the unforeseen occurs the capital levy question which has caused considerable discussion and dissension, will be shelved temporarily.

Rings on Trees

Scientists of the Field Museum of Natural History expect to learn what the weather has been like for 200 years or more in the vicinity of Chicago by studying the rings on oak and willow stumps. It has been found that trees of various kinds register within their trunks a fairly accurate record of the seasons, because the wood that grew in the summer and that which grew in the spring can be distinguished in the annual rings. By these comparisons, deductions as to the amount of rainfall and sunshine that the trees received can be made. Carrying the study further, the microscope is expected to disclose what part of the wood was formed during the cold, rainy and dry seasons, for the structure of the little sap tubes differs according to these conditions. Experiments and observations also have shown that the greatest growth in trees occur on the side opposite to the direction of the winds. For instance, there are trees in Colorado in which the heart of the trunk is close to the bark on the side from which the prevailing winds blow.

Mined by the Ocean

On the beach of Buckhaven, Scotland, the sea piles up coal some two or three feet high. From the town come men, women and children with buckets, boxes, bags and wheelbarrows to get the family supply. The coal is actually mined by the sea. Ground swells break away the seams outcropping in the Firth of Forth and slowly carry the treasure to the shore. In stormy weather the product greatly increases.

MANY FAST BASEBALL CONTESTS SLATED FOR TODAY AND TOMORROW

Several good baseball attractions are slated for the week end in the eastern part of the state. Most of the teams have their schedules complete and from now on fans can look for some real baseball games. Today the Taftville A. A. takes on the Airlie team of Hanover in what is expected to be one of the feature games of the week end. Another contest that is scheduled for this afternoon is the J. B. Martin-Crompton-Knowles classic. Riverview clashes with the Hudson A. C. at the State Hospital and there will be a game at Willimantic when Windham meets Meriden high.

Taftville A. A. vs. Airlie

Lefty Jarvis, Academy hurler, will pitch today in the uniform of the Taftville A. A. against the fast Airlie team of Hanover at the Providence street grounds. Jarvis made quite some record with the local high school team and will keep his hand in the during the summer pastiming with the Taftville club. Hanover will oppose Jarvis with either Papineau, a veteran of many seasons at Briggs, a new comer to the Airlie aggregation. The remainder of the Hanover team is a mystery but from all reports coming from Hanover the team will be one of the strongest to oppose Taftville this season.

Taftville on the other hand is not going to let the invaders get away with anything and will send its strongest combination into the battle this afternoon. This team includes Eccleston c, Jarvis p, A. Dugas 1b, Cardin 2b, Gauthier ss, Yerrington 3b, Gaudette lf, Leo Jarvis cf, Baille rf.

Velvetmen vs. Crompton Knowles

The attraction to be at the J. B. Martin Park, on Saturday will be the fast Crompton-Knowles team of Worcester. This team needs no introduction to the fans in this vicinity having been seen on the local field in the past two years and playing a wonderful brand of ball will make the Velvetmen fight to come out on the winning end of the score. The Worcester boys are out for revenge after being defeated last season on the J. B. Martin grounds by the score of 3-2 and also on their home ground at Worcester by the score of 2-0. The Crompton-Knowles are sending down their strongest lineup consisting of: King, formerly with Albany in the eastern league who will do the backstop work with either Brown or Keyes on the mound; McNabb, the heavy hitter, will cover first, Campbell at second, Coyle will be seen at third, and Connelly, will take care of the shortfield. The outfield will be taken care of by Garvey, Molloy and Martin. Subs: Nawn, Bergman, Dumas. The Velvetmen will lineup the same as in previous games: J. Murphy will be behind the bat; Lemieux or Pepin on the mound; J. Joubert will cover first; C. Krauss or F. Murphy will cover second; F. Gley at third; Decelles at short. The outfield will be taken care of by W. Gley, J. Murphy or E. Joubert, and Dona. There will be no game played at the J. B. Martin grounds on Sunday.

Ashland vs. Danielson

Sunday the fast traveling Ashland club takes on Danielson at Jewett City. The visitors are without doubt the fastest team that has appeared in Jewett City this season. Stanley, who joins the New London Tabs 3 to 1 in an eleven inning game last week, will again be on the firing line for Ashland. This boy is sure coming fast. Weston will probably be on the receiving end. The rest of the team will be practically the same as that played last Sunday. The Danielson boys are coming down strong and have some of the fastest men in this vicinity in their lineup.

Hudson A. C. vs. Riverview

The strong Hudson A. C. of New Haven will be the opponents of the Riverview Club on the State Hospital grounds this afternoon. Morin and Curran will officiate. This club comes to Norwich well recommended and should give the local club a good argument. Their last appearance in Norwich was several years ago, when they played the Norwich K. of C. at the fair grounds. They will lineup as follows: Della c, Bergeron or Bucholtz p, L. Burke 1 b, Caron 2 b, R. Burke s s, Jordan 3 b, Boebel l f, Houlihan c f, and Miller r f. The Riverview will take the field as follows: Belair c, West p, Mills 1 b, Hamel 2 b, Normandin s s, Dugas 3 b, White l f, Noell c f, and Duffy r f.

Manager Bill Donovan was notified on Monday of this week that the J. B. Martin club was without a game for this Sunday. He immediately got in touch with the Taftville manager and was informed that such was the case, and that the J. B. Martin outfit would undoubtedly take on the Riverview club, but he would have to talk it over with the boys first. Yesterday he called Bill Donovan and told him that the boys decided that they would not play the Riverview Club on Sunday as they were playing Saturday and would be too tired to play on Sunday. Yet, the Riverview Club has a hard game this afternoon and are not too tired to play tomorrow.

The next game with the Sub Base will be played Friday, June 26th, at the Sub Base grounds.

Voluntown at New London Sunday

The Voluntown team will play the fast Tabs at Morgan field, New London on Sunday afternoon. The Tabs have been playing fast ball this season although this is Voluntown's first appearance of the season they always have a fast team. The game is called for 3 o'clock.

COLLEGE POLO TOURNEY OPENS AT RYE TODAY

Rye, N. Y., June 12—Seven college polo teams were here today for the third annual intercollegiate championship, which opens tomorrow with Yale playing Penn Military College of Chester, Pa., and West Point facing Virginia Military Institute.

Harvard, Princeton and Norwich, three other contenders, are scheduled to play next week.

Hard riding and clever mallet work from Yale and P. M. I. is expected tomorrow, since the match renews old rivalry. In their last crash the Militarymen were able to win by only one goal, 7 to 6.

The New Haven combination, as winners of the intercollegiate indoor championship, the national class A and B championship, and the third annual tournament at Pinehurst, will have many supporters when the teams toe up at 3.30 on the Westchester Biltmore club field.

Boston, June 12—(A. P.)—Red Chapman of Chelsea, who is to meet Kid Kaplan at Long Island city, N. Y., in July for the featherweight title, has been matched to meet Al Corbett of Cleveland, in the latter city June 22, his manager announced today.

HEAVY WEIGHT BOUT TO BE HELD AT POLO GROUNDS ON JULY 2

New York, June 12.—Harry Wills will oppose Charley Weinert and Mickey Walker will meet Maloy Greb for the middleweight boxing championship in the Italian hospital fund bouts at the Polo grounds on July 2, if arrangements can be made to remove the temporary seats in time for the Giants to play Philadelphia there, July 3.

The state athletic commission today approved the new date, a postponement from June 19 having been made necessary through an injury to Walker. Jack Kearns, manager said that Walker would be ready to resume training in four or five days.

Kearns also intimated that he desired a license so that he might sit in Walker's corner on the night of the bout, but was informed by the commissioners that he would not be recognized until he managed to straighten out Jack Dempsey's relations with the authorities in this state.

The commission, moreover decreed that Walker's agreement in waiting to box Dave Shade of California must be obtained by June 20, Walker's verbal consent to meet the Californian, who has been a persistent challenger, persuaded the commission to permit his battle with Greb after he had been in bad grace for some months.

It was announced that the finals in the light-weight championship, under the auspices of the commission, will be fought at the Queensboro Stadium in Long Island City June 6. The semi-finals are scheduled for the same ring Monday night, with Cirilino Olano of Cuba facing Stanislaus Loayza of Chile in one bout and Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo, N. Y., encountering Benny Valger of New York in the other.

After the meeting Kearns told reporters that the program for Walker included Greb and Shade and probably Benny Leonard in September. Leonard announced his retirement as lightweight champion during the winter but there have been rumors that he would return to the ring.

Dempsey, Kearns said, will arrive from Europe sometime next month and will second Walker if he arrives in time.

YANTIC BEATS SAINTS IN CLOSE GAME

About 500 fans who were fortunate enough to take in the baseball game last evening at the Duwell Field witnessed the best game of the season when the Yantic Mills team defeated the team representing St. Joseph's Society in a hotly contested battle by the score of 5 to 2. As the score indicates, the game was close and interesting all the way, and at no time was either team more than two runs ahead of their rivals.

Last night's battle had everything that a good baseball game should have, just enough hitting, good fielding, some of which was of the sensational variety, and that element of uncertainty that left the outcome of the game always in doubt.

The Yantics scored in the very first inning. With one out, J. Lamphere was safe when L. Cimmikowski dropped his long fly to right, and crossed the plate when the other Cimmikowski, playing short, fumbled Smith's grounder, and the runner was safe. Smith stole second and scored on Ainsworth's one-base to center. Simmrock then hit a short fly to right field, and Ainsworth was caught off first in a snappy double play, L. Cimmikowski to West.

In their half of the first, St. Joseph's tied the score. After Ibbicki had fanned, L. Cimmikowski singled to left, and stole second, and after another strike-out went to third when Hoffman singled to left. Mileski then walked. Both Cimmikowski and Hoffman tallied on Cimmy's clean hit to left. Busch ended the inning with another strike-out.

The Polish nine went into the lead in the next inning when they scored one run. Tony West, who was playing first, was hit by a pitched ball. Kozlowski

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

OILS FEATURED MARKET

New York, June 12—Oil shares swung upward in vigorous fashion in today's market and carried the general list to higher ground. Trading broadened considerably under the stimulus of easy money rates, reports of trade improvement and stiffening commodity prices. Total sales approximated about one and one half million shares. The largest volume in two weeks.

Speculative interest in the oils was enlivened by another advance in gasoline prices in New York and the mid-continent field, a further drop in Smackover production, rumors of an early advance in crude prices and reports of high current earnings by the principal refining companies. Independent Oil and Gas was the leader of that group, rising four points to 29 1-2, the highest price since it was listed two years ago.

Texas company and General Petroleum attained new peak prices at 54 5-8 and 59 respectively, while net gains of 1 to 3 points were recorded by Atlantic Refining, California Petroleum, Houston, Tidewater and Union Oil of California.

Considerable activity in strength also developed in the motor group. A run-in of the "shorts" in Maxwell Motor B certificates sent the stock up nearly six points to 121. Hudson Motors advanced nearly four points to 54 3-8 and Willys-Overland showed a net gain of 1 3-4 at 19 7-8. Dodge Brothers preferred attained a new peak at 83 3-4.

Standard industrials showed moderate improvement. United States Steel closed fractionally higher at 114 1-2 and American Can and Baldwin each moved up about a point to 186 and 112 respectively.

Strength of Ward Baking B, which jumped over seven points to a new top at 60, was based on unconfirmed rumors of a merger that company with the Continental Baking company. General Railway Signal opened at 144 after being admitted to trading yesterday today ran up to 168.

Rails showed a complete reversal of form on reports that liquidation of those issues for the account of the alien property custodian had been temporarily completed. Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred, Chicago and Northwestern and Lehigh Valley were among the many issues in that group to close from 1 to 2 1-2 points higher.

Call money held steady at 3 3-4 per cent. Time funds were in large supply with the shorter maturities ruling at 3 3-4 per cent. and the longer rates at 4.

Foreign exchange rates were easy. Demand sterling ruled slightly lower around $4.85 1-2 and French francs dropped about 3 points to 4.84 1-2 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, June 12—Wheat registered a sharp break in price today to be plus as 5 1-4 cents a bushel on some transactions, but afterwards rallied to a considerable extent. Rains in the spring crop belt were a depressing factor. The wheat market closed unsettled 3-4 to 2 5-8c net lower, July 1.60 5-8 to 1.60 7-8 and September 1.57 1-8 to 1.57 1-4, corn finished irregular at 7-8c up, and provisions varying from 2c off to a rise of 45 cents.

Persistent selling on the part of houses with eastern and northwestern connections disclosed early that for at least the time being the wheat market was without any aggressive buy-support.

Another consequence was to force into operation a good many standing orders to let go of holdings at various limits intended to stop losses.

Rather free buying however, which developed in the wheat market during the last part of the day and which brought about a reaction, was apparently for some of the most active recent sellers. Their right-about-face action was said to be based on the circumstance that the break in prices carried the market down to about 12 1-2c under the high point on Wednesday. The setback was taken to be more than sufficient to justify new buying based on a possibility that the domestic carry-over of wheat July 1 would be the smallest ever known.

Corn eased down with wheat and as a result of rains over part of the corn belt. Crop damage reports gave firmness to the oats market.

Provisions were responsive to an upturn in hog values.

BOND MARKET

New York, June 12—Rallies in the leading oil company items and in St. Paul Railway obligations enlivened today's bond trading, but the general trend of prices turned downward after an early display of strength.

The movement of the oil issues reflected sympathetic response to the various upturn in the petroleum shares based on advancing gasoline prices, reductions in crude oil output and reports of the strong financial position of the leading companies. The demand included Associated Oil 6s, Pan-American 6s, Skelly 6 1-2s and Sinclair 6s, most of which were brought because of their convertible features.

Buying of the St. Paul Junior bonds was influenced by the announcement that a new organization plan for the railroad would be offered these issues better terms than the program recently outlined by the reorganization managers. Gains of a point or so were recorded by the 4s of 1925, 4 1-2s of 1933 and the 4s of 1954. Most of the carrier bonds were shaded fractionally although Frisco, "Katy" and other southern issues were firm.

The $50,000,000 Belgian loan, offered today by a Norman syndicate, was oversold within fifteen minutes, although a deliberate effort was made to avoid a heavy oversubscription and to obtain as wide a public distribution as possible. In internal dealings on the stock exchange, the new bonds commenced a fractional premier and carried other European issues higher.

With the weekly federal reserve statement testifying to the ease of credit conditions, United States government obligations continued to sell around the year's highest levels. The second Liberty 4 1-2s eclipsed their previous high record.

CURB MARKET

New York, June 12—Strength and activity of the oil shares, coincident with the announcement of another increase in gasoline prices in the New York district, overshadowed all other developments in today's active curb market. Humble assumed the leadership of the petroleum group, touching a new high record at 71 1-2, a net gain of one to 2 1-2 points were recorded by Galena Signal, Gulf of Pennsylvania, Prairie Oil & Gas, South Pennsylvania Oil and Standard Oils of Kansas and Kentucky.

Urgent short covering in Chrysler Motors sent that stock up nearly 8 points in 122 3-8. Heavy trading in Continental Banking R. which touched a new top at $1 3-8, was based on reports that a merger of that company with Ward Baking. American Rayon Products continued its steady advance, attaining a new peak figure at 38 7-8. Coal shares displayed a firm tone.

The public utility list was "spotty," Southwestern Power & Light crossed M for a gain of more than 4 points and American Light and Traction moved up over 3 to 162 1-2, while American Gas and Electric, Electric Bond and Share, Lehigh Power certificates and a few others moved up a point or so. # WESTERLY

Paving matters in Westerly and the immediate vicinity from which many thousands of tons of paving blocks have been shipped in years past both by rail and waters, will be interested in learning that the paving with granite blocks of the Vehicular Tunnel across the Hudson river at New York city and the 15 miles of highway leading from it through Jersey City and Newark to Elizabeth is a matter of actual interest. The paving of the tunnel has probably begun. If not, it will soon be under way and the paving of the highway will, of course, follow in due course of time. The exact location of this tunnel leading from this tunnel through Jersey City and Newark to Elizabeth has probably not yet been determined on by the engineers, there being so many matters of interest to consider in connection with it. However, it is enough for us to know that the highway will be built and that the plans decided on call for a 4-foot roadbed paved with granite blocks at an estimated cost of two million dollars per mile or the whole distance at an aggregated cost of twenty-eight million dollars. Add to this the paving with granite blocks of the roadway of the Delaware bridge and the seven miles of Broad street in Philadelphia above the tunnel, and we have a granite paving block program that undoubterly will result in an unprecedent demand for paving blocks in the near future.

Westerly Shriners and members of Palestine Temple are planning to make a days' outing next Monday, which will be Shriners' day, in Rhode Island with a street parade in Providence and an excursion to Newport, where another parade will be held, a special bake served, and a four-hour ocean sail and supper on the boat on the return trip.

The entertainment committee of Palestine Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, headed by Acting Potentate Henry F. Baldwin has made provisions for nearly 1,500 wearers of the red fezes, and several spectacular features have been arranged for the edification of a large class of novices who will make their first pilgrimage over the desert sands.

The Temple, Dorrance and Pine streets, will be opened at 8 o'clock Monday morning, and the candidates will be given the obligation which permits them to wear the flaming toppiece of a Noble. They will then be "herded" in care of the Arab Patrol until after they are marched aboard the steamer Mount Hope, and then the ceremonial masters will take them in charge.

At nine o'clock the line will form on Dorrance street and will include the five uniform units. The Palestine Shrine Band, Andrew L. Littlehouse, bandmaster; Palestine Drum and Bugle Corps, under Charles J. Proctor, leader; Arab Patrol, under George E. Phillips; Legion of Honor, composed of ex-service men escorting the colors, under Capt. John Johnson, and the Palestine Chanters, under Dwight W. Coulter, will act as escort to the several hundred Nobles, who will be designated by their red fezes.

The routine of march will be Dorrance, Westminster, Mathewson, Weybosset, Exchange and Dyer streets to the steamboat landing. During the trip up and down the bay concerts will be given by the band and the Chanters. A buffet lunch will be served on the return trip.

The regular session of Third District court was held Friday morning in the District court rooms on Union street, when Clark M. Walter Flynn, Jr., read the following:

DOCKET

Judge Turello called Walter Rhodes to the stand to answer to the complaint of having operated an autobile on Main street on June 8 without a license. Town solicitor, John Ferguson, Jr., told the court that the defendant was reported as not having a license and at the time he reported that he had one at home to the police officer on duty and later, the defendant said that he could not find it. Inasmuch as an application had been made for a new one, Attorney Ferguson saying that it was not the policy of his department to prosecute a case in which it was apparent that the license had been secured, recommended that a discontinuance of the complaint be made. The case was discontinued by Judge Turano.

New London, June 13—Lieutenants Potts and Sweeney of the New York police force, who were brought here to look in to the efficiency of the New London department, spent two days here and made every inquiry they deemed to be necessary to carry out the purpose of their mission. They have had access to the record books of the department, which they are free to admit are of little use and are not what the department should have to keep records of persons arrested and to keep record of the disposition of the cases when the arrested persons have been before the court and are either bound over, sentenced, or acquitted. The New York officers held a conference with the city manager and the members of the council late this afternoon in the municipal building and there the parties had a heart to heart talk over the situation as it exists and as it may be made. What was said at the conference The Bulletin is not at liberty to state in so many words, but it may be said that the officers investigating were well satisfied with the personnel of the force here and they had seen it. They found that the sergeants at the desk in the office with Capt. Pinney were courteous and diligent and that all who came in contact with the police were treated with consideration and every thing of a business nature was noted for future reference and study. It is understood that the investigators do not place the responsibility for any laxity that has been noted upon any one person, deeming that to do so would be unfair to a very great degree in as much as the responsibility for the management and the government of the force is divided. The officers did recommend that rules and regulations and a code of discipline shall be established for the force and such rules, etc., the New York officers will submit to the New London authorities. They will be rules that will govern and that will be effectual in improving the efficiency of the New London force. The investigators were very emphatic in declining to put the responsibility for any short comings upon the shoulders of Capt. Pinney. They are said to have expressed the opinion that the rules they will submit and which were embodied in the report of the committee that heard testimony of citizens and members of the police force, when put into effect will practically remedy any dissatisfaction that has existed. The recommendation was stressed that the servants of the force should be assigned to night and day work alternately and that defined duties should be laid out for them. The New London force is understood to have been declared of more than the average of efficiency and a force that can be made much stronger when the rules to be suggested are put into effect. The New York officers recommend that more motor vehicles for use by the New London force should be secured and be made use of at once. Expensive cars are not intended, but that cars are needed was emphatically stated. The investigators returned home this evening and in a few days, a week at the longest, they will submit the rules and the regulations and out line a code of discipline which they will recommend the New London city council for adoption.

The work of repairing the municipal wharf, which was damaged several weeks ago when the tug T2, stationed at the submarine base, crashed against it while an attempt was being made to make a landing, was started today. A force of carpenters were assigned to the task so that the repairs will be completed before race day, next Friday. The cost of repairs will be approximately $1,000.

Dr. J. E. Underhill, well known veterinary, is critically ill at his home, 349 Huntington street and doubts are entertained for his recovery. Dr. Underhill displayed signs of failing health last November and since then his condition has gradually declined. He is now confined to his bed and has been for nearly three weeks. Dr. Underhill is a former alderman in the city council.

At the regular monthly meeting the board of education, held yesterday at the rooms of the Mariners Savings bank, a vote was passed prohibiting the students of the various schools from indulging in canvasses for funds at the schools. It has been a common practice for some time for students to make a canvass whenever drives or campaigns were in progress but the edict of the board puts an end to the practice, no matter what the nature of the drive may be.

The funeral of Mrs. Isador Montgomery, wife of Rev. J. E. Montgomery, Niantic, which occurred at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital last Wednesday, was held this noon at Niantic Methodist church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The body will be forwarded, to Los Angeles, Cal., for burial.

Elizabeth L. Donohue, daughter of Mrs. Bridget Donohue, 2 Mountain avenue, who is apparently of unbalanced mentality, was at the corner of Williams and Granite street for several hours this afternoon and evening, and as the young woman walked but a few feet and then retraced her steps her acts finally attracted the attention of one of the residents of that locality, who communicated with the police. The girl was taken to her home. A few nights ago the girl was found roaming about Jefferson avenue and was taken charge of at that time by the police.

Traffic Officer John Courtney, late today, reported the existence of two dangerous spots in the highway on Bank street. One element of danger is caused by an old-fashioned vent, located near the curb at 137 and the other is a weakened hatchway in front of the property 283. Both defective sidewalks were reported to the highway department for attention.

The police officers have begun a clean-up of autoists who persist in disregarding the ordinances of the city in relation to the parking of cars on the principal business streets. During the months immediately preceding the summer season rules regulating the leaving of cars along the curbing have not been enforced strictly, but now that traffic has increased and the number of autos in use is double what are made use of in the winter the enforcement of traffic ruled seems to be imperative if accidents are to be averted and clear passage through the streets be made possible.

Half a dozen violators of the city's ordinances were arraigned in the police court this morning. The number including one Norwich man, Michael Barras of 149 Mason Street. He parked his car on the east side of Bank street in front of the post office and was tagged. He went to the police court this morning and paid a fine of $1 and costs of $2.67. Barras let it be known that there are standing signs there to tell him of the prohibition. Richard Morris, a young man who sells automobiles, was fined $3 for parking his car away from the curbing on State street, though he stopped only to take on the wife of a prospective purchaser of a car, he said. He was one of the parties complained of who drew a fine. The others were allowed leniency on suspended judgment, but they received warnings they will be wise to heed. John Selderis, a tailor on Main street, left his car at the curbing while he was in his place of business. He was away from the car two hours and a half. Nastralis Faccini had some business at the office of a lawyer on Bank street and left his car parked for an hour and a half, while he was getting a deed to real estate. He said he didn't feel the time slipping away. Ralph Westgate, a salesman from Pitchburg, left his car on the north side of State street more than half an hour and found it tagged when he returned to it. That meant appearance in the police court. A case against Charles B. Tinker was nolled and one against Katherine Waterman was continued till tomorrow.

Three sailors from coast guard vessels were charged with a breach of the peace. They are Samuel L. Davis Carl Heckendorf and Donald Depew. They were at the hose house of the Ockford fire company where a row occurred that woke up the neighborhood. Davis belongs in New London and has been a member of the Ockford company. He invited his shipmates to visit the hose house for a little pleasure. Davis was in his shirt sleeves while he rendered music at the piano. His coat disappeared while he was thus engaged and in finding it trouble was created. Soon there was a wild time. The prosecutor thought that booze figured in it and said it was not the first time of late that reports of wild times had come from the house. He said that women of the neighborhood last night became alarmed and made an outcry and called the police. Four officers responded so urgent was the call. The sailors had no defense to make, but pleaded guilty when the complaint was read. Judge Crandall fined each of the sailors $5, warning them that a repitition of the conduct would bring a heavier penalty. They all paid.

GEORGE H. BECK DIES AT NEW LONDON HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, June 13—George H. Beck well known resident and conspicuously indentified in court cases a number of years, because of his having acted as bondsman in many cases that appeared in the police, superior and United States courts, died suddenly at his late residence, 41 North Bank street, early this morning, death resulting from a heart attack that Mr. Beck suffered at a time it was believed the victim was enjoying sound health Mr. Beck was about 70 years of age and is survived by two daughters and a sister, the latter being Mrs. Addie Burns, this city. He was a resident of New London about 35 years, coming to New London from Bridgeport. Mr. Beck for many years was proprietor of cafes and during his latter life was proprietor of a book store. He furnished bonds for many important cases that appeared in the local courts and in doing so he provided the largest surrities on bonds of cases that appeared in the police and United States courts, particularly was this the case in becoming surety on bonds in cases where violation of the prohibition law was charged after the capture of many of the operators of boats receiving supplies of liquor from the rum fleet of Rum Row.

Mr. Beck was about his place of business throughout yesterday and late last night he was about the streets as late as 10 o'clock. He retired about midnight feeling as well as usual, but about 2:30 o'clock he was awakened because of belaboring breathing. His sister was summoned and she in turn summoned Dr. F. C. Wellington. The physician reached the Beck residence about 3 o'clock and a stimulant was given the victim, which failed to rouse the heart to respond and Mr. Beck expired five minutes later.

All the fuel, with little exception, to be used during the coming year at charitable, educational and penal institutions of South Dakota, will be from the state's own lignite mine near Harres, N. D. The mine, operation of which by the state began in 1919, is now on a profit paying basis and producing in such quantities that its manager was able to offer all the institutions to use the coal at a saving.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

ELKS

Norwich lodge of Elks will emphasize the patriotic side of the order in the observance of Flag Day, on Sunday, June 14th, with exercises at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the Elks home. The address for the occasion will be given by Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church and chaplain of the American Legion post. The music will be by Swahn's band. The exercises are public and all who attend will be welcome.

B'NAI BRITH

Rose of New England lodge, No. 893, Independent Order of B'Nai Brith, and the Ladies Auxiliary, No. 46, I. O. B. B., held a joint initiation at the Buckingham Memorial Hall Thursday evening. Abner Schwartz, the president of 893, opened the meeting and after outlining the program for the evening, he turned the meeting over to Mrs. Alexander Pasnik, president of the Auxiliary. Mrs. Pasnik opened the ceremonies with the singing of America, and then the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Dave Trachtenberg, who acted as president of the ladies degree team. Assisting Mrs. Trachtenberg in the initiation, Miss Augusta Sheresheveky acted as vice-president, Mrs. Herman Sears, monitress; Mrs. Barney Rubenstein, guide, with Mrs. Alex Manes at the piano. The initiation was a very impressive affair with many beautiful tableaux inculcating moral lessons, in which several ladies of the Auxiliary took part. Those initiated were Mrs. Sternschuss, Mrs. T. Bendett, Miss Sarah Sachner and Miss Ruth Clark.

After the women completed the degree work the men's degree team took charge. Judge Josiah Greenstein acted as president of the degree team assisted by Rudolph Henschel acting as vice president, Max Hanover, monitor, Ruby Rubinstein, assistant monitor, Charles Jacobson, treasurer, and Jacob Weisinger as warden. The candidates initiated were Max Schwartz, Harry Schwartz, Charles M. Gordon, Philip Hertz, Louis Tiger and Sidney Shabecoff.

It was indeed a very proud evening for Abner Schwartz for having the honor of initiating his father and son in one evening in the lodge of which he is president. Rose of New England lodge No. 893 I. O. B B. now has the distinction of having three generations of membership, that of father, son and grandson, bringing the lodge up to the honorable distinction heretofore held by the Rose of New England Auxiliary No. 46 I. O. B. B., where the Bruckner family were represented by mother, daughter and granddaughter belonging to the same lodge.

Alex Pasnik and Joseph Lahs at the head of the entertainment committee, were voted full power to arrange a grand picnic, the proceeds of which will go to the Norwich Hebrew Free School.

After the close of the meeting all adjourned to a fraternal entertainment at the Broadway Soda Shoppe where the ladies were the guests of the men's lodge.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich grange, No. 172, had an interesting programme for Flora's night after the business meeting at its regular meeting Wednesday evening in Steiner Hall. The programme which was in charge of Mrs. Herman Pukallus, Flora of the grange included an amusing sketch, How the Story Grew, which was given by the cast comprising, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Bean, Mrs. Rice, Mrs. Toothill, Mrs. Snow, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. White, Mrs. Carl Brown, Mrs. Beaver, Mrs. Murray, Mrs. Pukallus, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Rush, Mrs. Spencer, Mrs. Waters.

Other entertaining numbers on the programme was a solo, Asleep in the Deep by William H. Rush, readings by Mrs. Gertrude Toothill and Herbert Richardson, a reading, How to Make a Rose Bed, by Mrs. John E. Fanning, and a solo, Miss Rose, by Mrs. Ida Richardson.

The next meeting will be Neighbors night for which the Ashaway, Westerly, Stonington and North Stonington granges have been invited.

In August the grange is to give a supper for those who are to attend a state lecturers' conference at Storrs and make a sight seeing tour which will bring them to Norwich in time for supper.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

Senior Regent Mrs. Mary Hunter opened the meeting of the Women of Mooseheart legion at Moose home Thursday evening, with a very good attendance. One candidate was initiated and routine business was transacted. Mrs. Teresa Waters, chairman of the entertainment committee announced a whist and pinochle for Friday evening, June 19th, at the Moose home. Mrs. Emma Beaver was appointed as a delegate to the Baltimore convention, which is being held by the Loyal Order of Moose, starting June 21st. The lodge voted to have the regular meetings during July and August and a new auditing committee was appointed of Mrs. Teresa Waters, Mrs. Martha Wunderlich and Miss Pauline Wunderlich. Plans have been started for a past recent's night in the near future. Remarks on the good of the order were made by Mrs. Anna Crowe, Mrs. Nora Willett, Mrs. Emma Beaver and Mrs. Waters. After the meeting refreshments were served.

ORIENTALS, I. O. O. F.

Plans are well under way by the committee of arrangements of which A. C. Hans is general chairman, for the anniversary celebration and ceremonial of Ahab Sanctorum, No. 230 O. O. of H. and P., on June 20 in Mystic. Koran sanctorum of Hartford is to be present with a band as well as Asic sanctorum of Providence with its band. Swan's band of Norwich has been engaged by the Mystic sheiks so there will be plenty of music on the occasion. Sanctorums of New Haven, Worcester, Springfield, Greenfield, Pittsfield and Poughkeepsie are invited and at least 1,500 Oriental Odd Fellows will be in Mystic.

The recently organized patrol under the direction of J. E. Stinson is drilling weekly in preparation for the event.

The stores along the main street are to be decorated and a banner was hung this week welcoming the visiting Three Linkers.

The program as arranged will be as follows: Welcome to Orientals at 3:45, keys of the town being presented to the visitors by Selectman John Fribance in behalf of the town of Stonington.

This will be followed in succession by a parade at 4:15, patrol drills at 5:15, noon feast at 6:15 which will be served by Providence caterers, regular meeting of Ahab sanctorum at 7:45, ceremonial at 8:15 and last but not least an entertainment until midnight.

Willow Point casino has been engaged for the meeting and ceremonial as it is the only place large enough to accomodate the large number that is expected.

JUNIOR AMERICAN MECHANICS

At the regular meeting of Buckingham Council, No. 14, Wednesday evening with Junior Past Councilor E. Leesman, presiding, the first nomination of officers took place. The relief committee and special committees reported to the council.

Several applications for membership were referred to the investigating committees. The second nomination of officers will take place next Wednesday night.

The bus will leave today for Waterbury at 2:30 p. m. where Buckingham Council's degree team will work the degrees. A number of candidates of this council will be initiated at Waterbury.

P. C. Fred Shappee warned the members that there was only two weeks left until the special dispensation on new members expires and he wants to see many new members before the time is up, after which the regular routine of business was taken up. A lecture on "health" was given by Dr. Manion, which was very interesting to all. A class of 36 candidates was initiated, the degree work and the drill work being put on by the Manchester review guards. The drill work was put on in a very fine manner.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

Sedgwick W. R. C., No. 16, held its regular meeting Friday afternoon at the Buckingham Memorial with the president, D. Louisa Atterbury in the chair, and the customary reports were presented and accepted. One name was voted on and one application was received. Cromwell home day is to be held June 17, for which a good sized delegation from the Corps is planning to make the trip to the home.

A memorial service for six members of the corps who have died in the past year was impressively conducted, honoring the memory of the following deceased members:

A selection, Trudy's Flag, was read by the patriotic instructor, E. Grace Fowler, in recognition of Flag Day and the meeting closed in the usual form.

FORESTERS OF AMERICA

In spite of the hot weather Court City of Norwich, No. 63, held a well attended meeting, Tuesday evening in Steiner hall. The treasurer's report was very satisfactory. Three candidates were initiated and two applications were received. All members are expected to attend next meeting, who can, as the social room committee expects to report to the court. Every member should be interested as this is a very important matter. The brothers are urged to attend next meeting as this is the most important matter that has come up to this court in a long while.

REBEKAHS

Hope Rebekah Lodge, No. 21, at the regular meeting next Wednesday evening will have as their guests, Mrs. Emma C. Wilson of Stamford, president of the Rebekah State Assembly, Mrs. Elizabeth Watrous of Glastonbury vice president, and Mrs. Louise Holmes of Jewett City, district deputy president. Hope Lodge will celebrate the 41st anniversary of the lodge, with an anniversary supper at 6:30.

AMERICAN LEGION

The active participation of hundreds of the highest leaders in public life in the raising of the American Endowment fund is indicative of the universal trust in which the Legion is held by the public. It is the one organization which these men and women of success in every walk of life believe can intelligently meet the problems of the disabled veterans and properly care for the orphans of former service men.

A moment's review of the membership of the national committee gives clear understanding of the unanimous of the support given this Legion support.

The church is represented by Cardinal O'Connell and Bishop Brent.

Labor indorses the endowment fund through its new president, William Green.

These are only a few. There are scores of others, each high in thought and achievement and leadership. In each state the active committees are composed of these foremost citizens.

There are two reasons for the widespread indorsement. First, is the worthy purposes for which the fund is being created. Second, is the faith held by the public in the legion.

The Legion now begins the work which its creators undoubtedly has envisioned for it back in 1918. Caring for the disabled and orphans of veterans is a job primarily suited to the Legion's organization and membership. The public will surely respond to the appeal.

POETRY

THE GROVES OF BLARNEY.

The groves of Blarney they look so charming,
Down by the purling of sweet, silent brooks,
All decked with plains, that spontaneous grow there,
Planted in order in the rocky nooks.
'Tis there the daisy, and the sweet carnation,
The blooming pink, and the rose so fair,
Likewise the lily, and the daffodilly—
All flowers that scent the sweet, fragrant air.

'Tis Lady Jeffers owns this plantation,
Like Alexander, or like Helen fair;
There's no commander in all the nation
For reputation can with her compare.
Such walls surround her, that no sling-bounder
Could ever plunder her place of strength;
But Oliver Cromwell, he did her pommel,
And made a breach in her battlement.

There's gravel walks there for speculation,
And conversation, in sweet solitude;
'Tis there the lover may hear the dove, or
The gentle plovar, in the afternoon.
And if a lady should be so engaging
As to walk alone in those shady bowers,
'Tis there her courtier, he may transport her
Into some fort, or all underground.

For 'tis there's a cave where no daylight enters,
But cats and badgers are forever bred;
Being moosed by nature which makes it sweeter
Than a coach-and-six, or a feather bed.
'Tis there the lake is, well stored with perches,
And comely eels in the verdant mud;
Besides the leeches, and the groves of beeches,
All standing order for to guard the flood.

There's statues gracing this noble place in,
All heathen gods and nymphs so fair;
Bold Neptune, Plutarch, and Nicodemus,
All standing naked in the open air.
So now to finish this brave narration,
Which my poor genii could not entwine;
But were I Homer or Nebuchadnezzar,
'Tis in every feature I would make it shine.

—Richard Alfred Millikin.

DAISIES.

Over the shoulders and slopes of the dune
I saw the white daisies go down to the sea;
A host in the sunshine, an army in June;
The people God sends us to set our hearts free.

The bobolinks rallied them up from the dell,
The orioles whistled them out of the wood;
And all of their saying was "Earth, it is well!"

—Bliss Carmen.

He was taken back to England in July, 1922, and died at the Cobham Stud, Surrey, four months later.

W. H. Fletcher, of Brant, Alberta, has written the department of agriculture of the Canadian province that his from encouraging slaughter of coyotes, which has long been a provincial policy, the killing of one of these animals should be made a crime. He explained that jack-rabbits, by consuming crops and damaging trees, had become a scourge to farmers. He expressed belief that coyotes had formerly kept down the number of rabbits. Fletcher predicted that if coyotes were not permitted to prey upon rabbits, the latter would become such a evil as they did in Australia.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

THE WORST BRAKES ON YOUR PROGRESS ARE SELF APPLIED

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
Step a Bit and Grin

When your castles all are falling,
And your hopes are growing dim;
When Trouble's on you calling,
And you can't get rid of him;
And the sun is out of sight;
When your soul with dread is cowering
And you want to quit the fight—

Pucker up your lips and whistle,
Step a bit and grin;
Start right in and smash old Trouble,
Swat him on the chin;
Be a game sport in the battle,
Stick it out and win;
But, no matter how you struggle,
Don't forget the grin.

For Fortune loves the fighters,
Loves the man with grit to smile,
When his fate hangs in the balance
And his manhood is on trial.
So, whatever is the trouble,
Step a bit and grin,
Pucker up your lips and whistle,
Then—wade—in.

Tides

Here upon the shore I listen
To the waves that beat the strand;
And I see the constant glisten
Of the many-sided sand.

Comes the thought: my life is swaying
Like the tides below my feet,
Back and forth. Despite my prayings
Failure and success I meet.

Yet I trust, like tides of ocean
Should I leave the highest bound,
God will give me back devotion
Till His pardon I have found.

If the ebbing tide receding
Symbol is of woe or sin,
Surely grace for use is pleading
When the flowing tide comes in.

The Path That Lead to Nowhere

There's a path that leads to Nowhere
In a meadow that I know,
Where an inland island rises
And the stream is still and slow;
There it wanders under willows
And beneath the silver green
Of the birches' silent shadows
Where the early violets lean.

Other pathways lead to Somewhere,
But the one I love so well
Had no end and no beginning—
Just the beauty of the dell.
Just the windflowers and the lilies
Yellow striped and adder's tongue,
Seem to satisfy my pathway
As it yields their sweets among.

There I go to meet the Springtime,
When the meadow is aglow,
Marigolds amid the marshes,—
And the stream is still and slow—
There I find my fair oasis,
And with care-free feet I tread
The pathway leads to Nowhere,
And the blue is overhead!

All the ways that lead to Somewhere
Echo with the hurrying feet
Of the Struggling and the Striving,
But the way I find so sweet
Bids me dream and bids me linger,
Joy and Beauty are its goal,—
On the path that leads to Nowhere,
I have sometimes found my soul.

TRUE AND TRIED RECIPES

Dear Cornerites: For the Corner cooks I am sending a few suggestions.

Arrange the halves of fresh, ripe peaches, drained from the syrup, in nests of cress or lettuce leaves. Fill the seed cavity with fresh hickory nuts, chopped fine, pour over French dressing, adding 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon celery salt, and 1 teaspoon of grape juice.

Pineapple Salad: Drain canned pineapple from liquor, arrange each slice in a nest on lettuce leaves. On top of each dispose a mound of the following combination. Equal parts of white celery cut in small pieces.

Fish Salad: Finely chop 1 pound of cooked halibut, season with salt, pepper, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, onion juice and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Whip 1-2 cup heavy cream until solid; beat the whites of two eggs until stiff, combine with whipped cream and fold into fish mixture. Fill buttered dishes with mixture set in a dripping pan, half around with water, cover with a buttered paper and bake in a moderate oven until firm. Chill and remove from moulds. Arrange each in a nest of crisp lettuce heart leaves or individual plates. Put a service of salad in each nest; mask with a rose of mayonnaise and a sprinkle of finely chopped green pepper, or you can use pimento.

Shrimp and Pea Salad: Remove shrimps from can, wash thoroughly in cold water; remove intestinal vein (a dark thread like lying in the narrow groove in back) cut up shrimps (all but 10 of the most perfect ones) until you have 2 cups. Marinate the cut up shrimps with French dressing.

Drain 1 1-2 cups peas from the liquor in the can, mix with French dressing, let stand for one hour, then drain both again, and mix with mayonnaise. Arrange in a mound, surround with a border of bleached endives. Garnish with whole shrimp, arranged crosswise. Sprinkle with finely chopped parsley.

Italian Salad: Cook very tender in salted water 2 cups of macaroni, rinse in cold water to prevent stickiness and set it get cold. Chop it and add 1-2 cup of celery cut up small and a third of a cup of onion. American cheese, or cream cheese will do. 1-4 can of canned tomatoes and add seasoning with pimento, one will do. Mix all together with plenty of mayonnaise and serve on a bed of lettuce.

CLUB NO. 4'S PICNIC

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Having had such a nice time at the picnic of Club No. 4 at East Killingly has inspired me to write again so soon after my last letter.

We had our picnic last Friday, one of those scorching hot days when it seemed an exertion just to step out doors. But after we got there what an ideal place we found. The old church is situated at the top of a high hill and we had a nice breeze all day and large trees to shade us.

It was worth the trip there just to get the view.

One stands at the top of the hill and stretching away before one is a beautiful valley with a river winding through it and bordered on each side by hills covered with all the shades of green from the bright green of young maples to the darker green of the pines and oaks. In the distance are glimpses of hills dark in the foreground, but growing hazy to a blue haze in the far distance. It reminded one of Longfellow's "Forest Hymn" in the line "Standing with reverence amid the shades of the ancient forest."

Of course we enjoyed all outdoor games and sports and the days of planning for the vacations soon, as this is the season for lovely trips in every direction.

Dear Leaf: 2 pounds of raw lean beef, 1 cup of rolled crackers, 2 eggs, 1-2 teaspoon of salt, chop meat fine, mix all together, and form a loaf. Cover the top with small pieces of butter and bake one hour in moderate oven.

Boiled Salad Dressing: 2 teaspoons of sugar, 2 teaspoons of dry mustard, 2 teaspoons butter, 2 teaspoons flour. Blend all together, add one egg, and 1 cup of vinegar. Beat up well, then boil to a cream and mix into whatever you have prepared for a salad while it is cooling.

These recipes are handy for the summer menu. Hoping they will help in suggestive additions to people who are getting up picnic lunches, etc. Hope all the Social Corner people have a pleasant summer.

HELPS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: When small pieces of pie crust are left from making pies, instead of forming them into tarts as is usually done, secure some round hard wood sticks about four inches long, and, after the pieces of crust are rolled out thin, cut them into narrow strips with a knife, flour the sticks and roll the strips around them, letting one edge drop over the other. Place these on a tin and put in a hot oven to bake. When the crust has partly cooled, slide the stick out till with jelly, whipped cream or marmalade and the family will be delighted with the new dish.

Don't use soda in washing china ornaments with gilding. I find soda will in time surely take off every bit of gold from the pattern. Soap may be added to the water with impunity, and it will do the work of cleansing without roughening the hands of the operator, who, in cold weather especially will find soda has a very bad effect on the skin. Gilt frames are easily cleaned. You will find the white of an egg will be found most efficacious in removing the stains, a soft camels hair brush being employed in applying. Dull frames may be improved by an application of onion water. Boil a couple of good sized onions with water to cover, then use water after the straining.

Did you ever make tablecloths of flour sacks? I read in some magazine that if you take six flour sacks after they have been thoroughly washed and bleached; match them, joining the seams and covering with rick rack braid or bias-tape or simply seam together, hem, sew rick-rack braid to the edge so that the one row of the points extends beyond like a little tiny scallop. They wash beautifully, are cheap and everybody admires them.

A brown supporter of spools is a simple and convenient device. Screw two large empty spools high upon the middle frame of the door, just far enough apart to allow the handle of the broom to slip on. The broom rests on the spools.

Did you ever grease your bread pans or cake pans with lard and then flour them?

Onions if rinsed several times in fresh additions to boiling water before they are cooked, are much more digestible than if boiled in the ordinary manner.

The bent point of a sewing machine needle may be sharpened on a whetstone and need not be discarded.

A small bag of talcum powder should be kept in the work box to rub on the fingers when they perspire.

After starched garments have been ironed they should be hung in the sunshine to thoroughly dry, and the sun may take away any yellow spot caused by too hot irons.

Fish scales can be easily removed by pouring hot water over the fish, until the scales curl, then scrape quickly. Wash in several waters, having the last water cold and well salted, so that there will be no slime left.

RENEWING OLD ACQUAINTANCES

Dear Social Corner: Good morning J. E. T. Your greeting of last week was very pleasing I am sure.

Glad to see that you are inclined to be a little more sociable with an old friend. I do not see why you should think that I was trying to tease you. Such a thing as that is very far from my thoughts at this late date.

I am just trying to make myself known to some of my old friends that is all.

Never mind I see that you are just as good natured as ever and I am wondering if you are as stout as when I last saw you.

The old saying is that stout people are generally good natured. Perhaps that is why I am so thin and skinny.

I notice that your letter is signed Norwich Town. The last time that I saw you was when you lived on the farm in Franklin, happy as a clam in high water with a handsome flock of Rhode Island reds, two cows and a calf or two calves, and a cow. I don't just remember which, horse and buggy, sun bonnet and all.

Now I can't think of you following the city life in all it's gaiety. Contrast from those pop corn parties and husking bees that we had on the Kingsley farm where the big straw hat and calico gown cut some figure and the red ears considered a prize.

Someday, somewhere, perhaps it may be on Broadway or Washington street I trust that I will have the pleasure of meeting you once more for a friendly chat.

AT ANNIVERSARY PICNIC

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: First of all I want to say, Thank you, to Club No. 4 and guests for their generous contributions at our anniversary picnic. After ice cream was paid for quite a sum turned into the church treasury. As treasurer, in behalf of the Union Baptist church I will say Thank you the best I know how.

I'm sure that we all appreciated Avon's beautiful gift, and will give her a rising vote of thanks.

We were glad to see so many come and thankful to have Esmeralda with us as we expected to have to get along without her.

I hope some of the sister's will write an interesting account of our good time as the picnic comes will have about to pass by. Was glad to welcome Lolo into the Corner. It reminded Old Lady Sleep to see her sending that epistle.

Dear Social Corner Editor: You certainly started something interesting when you offered the Social Corner pin to all Corner members. I see they are still better asked for, and I am even greatly enjoyed and appreciated by me. After a week of torrid [illegible] to enjoy these days.

[illegible] in enjoying all outdoor [illegible] sport and the days of planning for the vacations soon. All sorts of picnic parties are making plans for the coming [illegible].

Have you your pineapple pie recipe handy? I will truly say it is good.

I hope you greet all prepared [illegible] early today changed to moistes and will call for plan at a moment's notice.

I see about the letters and recipes that are coming from week to week are all grand, and no doubt we'll be hearing from the vacations soon, as this is the season for lovely trips in every direction.

Beef Loaf: 2 pounds of raw lean beef, 1 cup of rolled crackers, 2 eggs, 1-2 teaspoon of salt, chop meat fine, mix all together, and form a loaf. Cover the top with small pieces of butter and bake one hour in moderate oven.

Boiled Salad Dressing: 2 teaspoons of sugar, 2 teaspoons of dry mustard, 2 teaspoons butter, 2 teaspoons flour. Blend all together, add one egg, and 1 cup of vinegar. Beat up well, then boil to a cream and mix into whatever you have prepared for a salad while it is cooling.

These recipes are handy for the summer menu. Hoping they will help in suggestive additions to people who are getting up picnic lunches, etc. Hope all the Social Corner people have a pleasant summer.

HINTS ON EYE CARE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Always hold your head up when you read, never stoop over. Hold your back 14 inches from your face and never read in a bad light—even "just for a minute." Never read with the sunlight shining directly on the book. Never face the light while reading. Let the light come from behind or over the left shoulder. Avoid books or papers printed indistinctly or in small type. Rest your eyes by looking away from the book every few moments. Cleanse your eyes daily. While attending a moving picture exhibition close your eyes for a few seconds as often as possible. Take your fixed gaze off the screen frequently and glance around the room. Do not sleep or rest with direct light striking your eyes. Don't rub the eyes, bath them, rubbing may injure and it never helps. Be careful with towels and handkerchiefs. Close the eyes for a few minutes as often as possible. This rests the eyes. Eyes that smart or burn need rest badly.

Bathe your eyes with witch hazel-camphor mixed. If you must work with light coming from the front or side wear a green eye shade. Bathe your eyes 2 or 3 times a day and at night take cotton dipped in this mixture, bend head forward and close eye to be treated, put a half teaspoon at a time in your eye, close for few minutes then bend head backward slowly, open eye, this helps to brighten your eyes and takes out inflamation.

I want to thank all the sisters who remembered me on my birthday with a shower of cards and other presents.

Mr. E. B.: Very nice of you, also Lo, True Blue, Gavilla, Crimson Rambler, Eca and Randal Iron. Have not received name of party that sent pretty handkerchief.

Balsam Fir: Am very sorry about your aunt who was 91 on June 7. How nice if she could have been with us on Sunday. I am sure all sisters would send her cards though a little late. Just the same tell her I will not forget her. We must respect old age and write such persons happy with a card and a little present besides. I am very fond of elderly people. Received your card June 8.

PAULA.

GRAND TIME ON PRESTON PLAINS

Dear Corner Sisters: Am sending in a report of the lawn party held at the home of Mrs. H. H. Pendleton on Preston Plains last Saturday, it being the celebration of the birthday of three members, Eca, Gavilla and Paula. Those present were Eca, Gavilla, True Blue, Crimson Rambler, Paula, Maple Leaf, G. E. M., Lorna, Lo, Lo's Mother, U. C. E., M. E. B. A right jolly good time was enjoyed. Each of the three sisters received many beautiful presents in honor of the occasion.

Mrs. Pendleton met us as we arrived, dressed in the club color and the joy that shown in her eyes, and the smile on her face will long be remembered by each sister. As she spared no pain or expense to make all have it was a jolly crowd and if any one wants to have a good time they should attend a Social Corner gathering. The house was prettily trimmed for the occasion and flowers were everywhere in abundance. The time passed quickly and it was soon twelve o'clock and time for lunch which was served on the spacious lawn under the trees, which consisted of salads, pickles, sandwiches, fruit and numberless kinds of cake. The day being a very warm one iced drinks were provided. While lunch was being served many choice selections were played on the victrola. I doubt if Mrs. P. ever served lunch to a jollier crowd than she did that day and she is a great entertainer. Lunch hour being over the afternoon was given to one long social visit with the members and as the sun faded away in the west, the party returned to their respective homes with kind wishes to Mrs. Pendleton. All being of the same mind, saying they had the day of their lives which never will be forgotten, and hoped they would all meet once more when summer comes again. So ended one peaceful day, June sixth, 1925.

U. C. E.: Hoped you reached home safely and in due time. We're you lucky in making good connections? I hope so. Hear you are very fond of lavender, and think the pretty articles you showed us were extremely beautiful. I, too, am very fond of the same color.

Best wishes to all Corner members.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

A TRIP TO KENT FALLS

Dear Social Corner Friends: A few weeks ago I wrote the Corner People for information regarding the distance from Hartford to Kent Falls. I had previously seen a picture of the falls and I am enthusiastic over New England scenery, particularly that of my own state of Connecticut. The[illegible] answered my inquiry, telling of a new highway, under construction, in that particular vicinity; also, she informed me that her old home was not far from this picturesque country. So I fancy she may be interested to know that I was most pleasantly surprised to find myself landed within a stone's throw of the falls on a day last week.

The occasion was a family picnic, partly consisting of six children (ranging in ages from 4 to 13 years,) parents, grandparents, great aunts, etc. 19 in all, the writer being one of the fortunate aunts.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

In Norwich 50 years ago this week the republican party elected H. H. Osgood mayor of the city, C. A. Converse, the democratic nominee being defeated by approximately 500 votes. The same week business and financial circles in Norwich were greatly stirred over the discovery that Charles C. Fuller, president of the Chaplin Paper Company and James T. Mowry, its secretary and treasurer, had fled leaving outstanding obligations of about $70,000, most of the obligations bearing fraudulent endorsements or signatures. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of June, 1875, are as follows:

Monday, June 7, 1875—The Norwich district Ministerial Association of the M. E. church will hold its session in Rockville commencing on Monday evening, June 14th. The Stonington Union Association will meet this year with the Third Baptist church, North Stonington, the Rev. F. B. Dickinson, pastor, of the 16th and 17th of June. The Rev. S. Howell of Noank will preach the introductory sermon.

At the democratic caucus Saturday evening, James A. Hovey was appointed chairman and John Parker, secretary. It was voted to make all nominations by passing in front of the chair. This rule was adhered to except in the case of city clerk and treasurer who were nominated by acclamation. After a long session the following ticket was made up:

Mayor, Charles Augustus Converse; aldermen, H. A. Briggs, W. P. Potter; councilmen, Charles McChesney, C. J. Willis, John Steiner, Currie Gilmour; clerk, J. M. Meech; treasurer, Charles Webb; sheriffs, J. J. McCord, J. Enright; water commissioner, James S. Carew. Charles McChesney declined to serve but the caucus tabled his resignation.

Tuesday, June 8, 1875—The annual election for city officers took place yesterday, passing off very quietly. The republican ticket, was, of course, elected. Col. Osgood receiving the very flattering compliment of the largest majority ever polled at a regular city election. The vote was as follows:

| Mayor | |
| H. H. Osgood | 842 |
| C. A. Converse | 339 |
| Aldermen | |
| A. W. Gibbs | 785 |
| H. A. Briggs | 402 |
| L. W. Carpenter | 795 |
| William P. Potter | 449 |

Wednesday, June 9, 1875—The first races of the season at the fairground under Mr. Sanderson's management will take place Friday. They will be mile heats, best three in five and will be called promptly at 3 p. m. good day and track.

A pile driver was towed into the Shetucket yesterday, and the construction of the coffer dam, preparatory to building the east abutment of the Norwich & Worcester railroad, was commenced.

Dr. Wilson Potter while crossing the Laurel Hill bridge yesterday afternoon, was struck on the head by a stone from a blast at the tunnel and sustained a severe wound. Another man in Shetucket street was wounded in the leg in the morning. Great and general complaint is made of the reckless manner in which the blasting is done.

Thursday, June 10, 1875—The A. M. E. Zion church on Franklin street is nearly completed and it is expected that the dedication will take place on Sunday, June 20th. The church is still in need of funds and it would be a handsome thing to help them open the new edifice free of debt.

N. D. Sevin and Costello Lippitt have been presented with nargilehs from Beirut, Syria, and have concluded that a man who makes a practice of smoking one doesn't have time for any other be an unusually good one.

Friday, June 11, 1875—The residence kind of business.

The water in the Shetucket has been very low and the mill owners were apprehensive that the supply would reduce them to short time.

Bluefish have appeared on the eastern coast of Block Island in great numbers and the season promises to liant wedding at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, W. B. Young of Norwich, of Mrs. W. L. Dr. Eita Paine, a female physician of Westerly, served as surgeon through the late war, and was presented with a flag from Sumter by Major Anderson. She hung out this short riddled flag on Decoration day and the band serenaded her.

One of the excitements of the afternoon yesterday, was a horse which deliberately fell down at the corner of Main and Market streets without just cause or provocation. It was a lean and hungry looking horse, however, and someone suggested that it had seen a load of hay and had fainted at the sight.

Saturday, June 12, 1875—The Park church pulpit is to be occupied tomorrow by the Rev. Hiram Eddy, remembered by many here as the chaplain of the 2d Connecticut Regiment of three months men.

There was great excitement in business and financial circles yesterday caused by the discovery that Charles C. Fuller, president of the Chaplin Paper Company and James T. Mowry its secretary and treasurer, had fled the city, leaving outstanding obligations to the amount of nearly $70,000. The excitement was redoubled by the subsequent discovery that a large part of these obligations were fradulent, the endorsements or signatures being forged and that a number of our leading citizens were involved.

The interest once manifested in the Laurel Hill tunnel is foolishness, compared to that which the pile driver in the Shetucket now excites.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Lessons of the Little Hares

A lesson learned is knowledge gained,
And wisdom slowly thus attained.
—Old Mother Nature.

The first lesson of the little Jumpers was at sitting tight, as you already know. This was, and always is, a most important lesson. But there were other lessons these children of Jumper the Hare had to learn. You see, Mother Hare believes in sending the children out into the Great World at an early age. She believes that children should be taught to look out for themselves and not depend on the old folks. So she carefully explained that the Hare who would live long must learn four things: He must learn how to "freeze," as sitting perfectly still is called; he must learn how to get the most speed possible out of his legs; he must learn how to dodge; he must learn how to look for enemies.

The first lessons in running and dodging the little Jumpers got in chasing each other in play. Especially did they enjoy playing in the moonlight. It was at night, or just as the Black Shadows were beginning to creep through the Black Forest, that mother let them out of the home nest to go look for good things to eat. Each night she led them a little farther. When they had eaten a little they would play in some dusty spot where the moonlight fell, mother keeping watch for Hooty the Owl or Reddy Fox or Yowler the Bob Cat or Old Man Coyote.

They played hide and seek. Presently one of them discovered that if he jumped high he could see farther. That was an important discovery. A little later he noticed that when mother started out she gave one or two high jumps in order to look around. Pretty soon all four of the little Jumpers were doing the same thing.

They soon learned that at night there were fewer eyes to see them, and so they were safer. Once mother signaled them to "freeze." Then they saw her hop out in the moonlight. What seemed like a moving black shadow suddenly appeared behind her. Mother ran. My, how she did run! But fast as she ran that moving shadow crept after her until Then, just as two sets of great cruel claws were reaching down to seize her she dodged. Before Hooty the Owl, for of course you have guessed it was Hooty who was after her, could turn, she had reached a place of safety.

After Hooty had flown away in disgust, Mrs. Jumper called the children around her. "Did you see what happened out there in the moonlight?" she asked.

They all said they did. "Then you have had a good look at Hooty the Owl," said she, "and you have seen one of your greatest enemies. Perhaps you noticed that his great wings made no sound. Did you see what happened when he was reaching for me with those great claws of his, and thought he had me?"

"Just so," replied his mother. "Dodging is a fine art. The best dodger will live the longest. If you can't outrun an enemy, dodge him. It discourages him. Until you are fully grown you cannot run fast enough to be sure of running away from an enemy, so learn to dodge. You will find it one of the greatest accomplishments in life. Dodge trouble and live long."

"Yes'm," replied all four little Jumpers, and tried to look very wise.

"Try to keep out of trouble, but if trouble finds you, do your best to run away from it, and if you find you can't run away from it then dodge it," said Mrs. Jumper, looking very grave.

"Yes'm," replied the four little Jumpers, wondering why mother looked so serious. They found out the very next day, for it was then that she sent them all out into the Great World to shift for themselves. They were to have no more help or lessons from her. (Copyright, 1925, by T. W. Burgess.)

STILL FIGHTING ANTS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Here I come, so soon again to thank A Nevada for the poem, Watch Your Words. I never knew but one verse and am very glad to get the other two and will try not to lose this.

Will some one say please, where magis heodoc powder can be bought and I shall be greatly obliged. I have tried in three drug stores and it had never been heard of. They say had to have most all other ant destroyers. Many of them are poisonous that I hesitate to use them about the pantry for fear it might get on to the food.

Every year I have the same trouble with ants running all over everything and I do not like to because the land around is so sandy.

Best wishes to all, and isn't it glorious to have cooler weather!

NEW REGULAR ON POLICE FORCE AND THREE SPECIAL CONSTABLES NAMED

At an adjourned meeting of the court of common council held Friday evening in the council chamber, Mayor Milo R. Waters, presiding, Frank Gwiczdowski was appointed a regular member of the local police force. The meeting was called to order about 8:20 o'clock and the minutes of the previous meeting were accepted without reading, according to the usual procedure.

The city clerk read his return of publication of the ordinance amending an ordinance of the traffic rules relating to public service cars. A petition was received from L. Henry Saxton to have two maple trees in front of his property, No. 327 Broadway trimmed. The petition was referred to the public works committee and tree warden with power.

The council also received a petition from Mrs. Nellie Bissonnette and others asking the installation of two bug lights on the road leading off No. 658 North Main street, which was referred to the police committee.

The monthly report of the street commissioner was received and accepted and an invitation from Norwich Lodge of Elks, No. 430, to attend the flag day exercises at the Elks home, Main street, Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock was accepted.

The council authorized the appropriations made at the city meeting Tuesday evening and Alderman Henry Gebrath, Councilman Nicholas J. Spellman and Councilman Maurice Looby were appointed a committee to have charge of the construction of the new sewers authorized.

The council voted that the city treasurer pay to Eva Hyde $33.66 representing lost wages on account of a quarantine ordered by the city health officer. The council also instructed the city treasurer, by vote, to refund to Hyman Burchman $11.93, auto tax on 1924 list, and $16.75, auto tax on 1923 list, as the automobile in question was listed in the grand list through error. Mr. Hyman Burchman having kept it at his home which is outside the city limits.

Resolutions were adopted authorizing the city to borrow a sum not to exceed $326,000 in anticipation of the receipts from the city tax and also to borrow $300,000 to provide for the gas and electric extensions sanctioned by the city meeting.

Mayor Waters and the city treasurer were named a committee to burn and destroy all bonds and coupons of the city which have been paid, after which the council voted an appropriation of $300 for Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R. to help defray the expenses of the post in its Memorial Day parade, this being an annual appropriation.

Daniel Maher, George E. Elliott and Frank L. Tuttle were reappointed special constables. Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney stated that an appropriation having been provided for an additional member of the regular police force, the police commissioners recommended Frank Gwiczdowski, the first man on the supernumerary list, for the appointment. The recommendation was approved and the clerk was instructed to cast one ballot in favor of Officer Gwiczdowski.

Department bills were approved as follows:

Fire department, $10,125.75; park department, $1,265.62; water department, $6,625.34; Trading Cove and Stony Brook, $628.80; police department, $6,026.46; gas and electric department, $106,925.10; finance department, $184,259.37; public works department, $15,774.88; permanent street improvement, $627.35; department of cemeteries, $1,670.60.

Adjournment was taken about 8:45 o'clock.

PROPOSE CITY DECORATE FOR BOAT RACE DAY

A movement, sponsored by the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, was started this week to induce the local merchants to decorate their stores for boat race day, next Friday, when the Harvard and Yale crews meet in their annual contest for supremacy on the Thames river. It is expected that practically all of the stores and business houses in the central part of the city will have decorations in honor of the event. As was pointed out Thursday thousands of people who annually attend the boat race will pass through Norwich during the day and it is felt that the city should be decorated generally in honor of the college crews.

The night before the boat race the members of Nemrod Grotto of this city will co-operate with the Gales Ferry Country Club in serenading the college crews. The Grotto members about 150 strong will take a band with them and make the trip to Gales Ferry by automobile.

Arriving at Gales Ferry the Grotto members, and guests, will join with the Country club members and their guests and proceed to the Yale quarters where they will serenade the Yale crew, afterwards going to the Harvard quarters to serenade the Cambridge crew. Refreshments will later be served at the country club, and tentative plans call for a dance as a windup for the evening. Gales Ferry is making plans to decorate the village with Japanese lanterns, etc.

COAST GUARD WILL DO POLICE DUTY FOR RACES

At the Harvard-Yale regatta on the Thames, June 19, the Coast Guard will be masters of ceremonies. Two large ships, probably the destroyer Pequot and the cutter Acushnet, and half a dozen 75-foot boats will be used there to keep the river clear for the races. It is an annual performance for the Coast Guard, both for the Thames river races and the intercollegiate races on the Hudson near Poughkeepsie on the 22nd. Almiral Billard, commandant of the Coast Guard, expects to be present on both occasions and, incidentally he will look over the results of his unit's recent work on Rum Row.

Policing New London harbor and the race course on the river is an intricate task. The larger boats will be used to keep the harbor clear so that boats carrying spectators may pass quickly up the river. Half an hour before the races start, a signal for all craft to anchor will be given and a detachment of small boats will be sent up the course to be sure that it is clear.

The unit's detachment will be in the charge of Commanders B. H. Camden and W. H. Munter sailing under orders from the division commander at New York.

NEW CLOSING SCHEDULE FOR AFTERNOON MAIL

A new schedule for the closing of afternoon mails was announced Friday afternoon by Postmaster Casper K. Bailey, the new schedule being necessary on account of the change in the time of arrival and departure of trains which goes into effect Monday. Starting Monday, mail destined for transportation on the so-called boat train will close at 4:45 o'clock, standard time, as this train which leaves Norwich at 5:45, standard time, is the last train south on the New Haven road.

Mail carried on the Central Vermont road will close at 5:30 o'clock standard time, as the last train south on that road leaves at 6:38. Sunday mails will close at 5 standard time, as usual, but the hours of collection will be advanced 1 hour and 45 minutes.

NO GROUNDS FOR CHARGE AGAINST NORWICH MAN

(Special to the Bulletin)

Westerly, June 12.—The case against Albert Rodgers of 111 Talman street, Norwich, was nolled absolutely when it was brought up in the third district court here today. Rodgers had been arrested on a complaint that he "did make a violent assault on the body of Gladys E. Dodge of the town of Richmond, with a dangerous weapon, to wit, a revolver." The warrant was drawn by Justice of the Peace Oscar Barber, as of "5th and 6th of June," on complaint of Chief of Police Elmer A. Smith of the town of Richmond, R. I.

Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., told the court that after a thorough investigation and after talking with the complaining witness, Gladys I. Dodge, it would be impossible to get conviction in the case. The circumstances attending and the affair, as learned by him, influenced him to believe that the only justifiable thing to do was to discharge the complaint. Many statements made, due to the seriousness of the offense, caused considerable damage to the defendant, who he learned had been keeping company with the complaining witness for an extended period of time in Exeter, where he formerly resided and now went on many week-ends. One of the parents of Miss Dodge objected to his keeping company with the daughter and trouble arose from that source. On the night in question he learned that they had left the home about 8 o'clock, took a walk and returned home between 10 and 11 o'clock, during which time the father, Edward Earl Dodge of Arcadia, R. I., had been out searching for them. Mr. Ferguson said that the couple had been seen walking arm in arm on the most friendly terms and at that time the defendant had been told he would have to give up friendly relations and that night was the last time she could see him and learned that he was to continue and not give her up. She claimed that he took a revolver and shot close to her ear although there were no witnesses to say what transpired, or what had become of the shell and gun, for no gun or shell had been found. Search had been made by Chief Smith without avail. It was clear that Mr. Dodge did not want the boy in his home and would be satisfied if he stayed away.

Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun, appearing for the defendant, said that speaking fairly and impartially he was satisfied that a great wrong had been done the young man, "When a newspaper prints a story or even makes statements charging him with an offense, which a subsequent retraction could not undo entirely, a greater wrong was done." He said that the young man had been deprived of his liberty and branded a criminal. One could not use public officials to work out their own end. An attempt had been made to use Officer Smith for private purposes. Even after the offense was charged the couple had been seen coming down the street arm and arm.

Judge Turano said that at the preliminary hearing by him on Sunday morning, when called upon to arraign the young man he was very suspicious of the circumstances, especially when the daughter was reluctant to answer until she had looked at her father and then said the young man took the gun and fired it. Also he wanted to state that police officers or the court could not be used to satisfy personal affairs. The reason Mr. Smith was called in was to keep the young man away from the girl. To the young man he wished to say if a real assault had been committed, he would have to put him behind the bars for at least five years and hoped this would be a warning to all young men who carry guns. "I will follow the recommendation of the town solicitor and just discontinue the case without costs."

SAVINGS BANK RECEIVES PROCEEDS FROM FORECLOSURE

The Savings Bank of New London is to receive $50,954 from the sale of seven pieces of property in foreclosure proceedings brought against the Soltz Co. of New London, according to the orders made by Judge Isaac Wolfe on the disposal of the proceeds when James R. May, the committee for sale, made his report at the short calendar session of the superior court here Friday morning.

The property was appraised at $55,450 and the sale of the seven pieces brought $52,450. Mr. May reported the sales had been made as follows:

Lot on Whittlesey street to Peter Mros of New London for $410.

Lot on Bank street to John G. Geary of Waterford for $19,100.

Two lots on North Bank street and Douglas street to Savings Bank of New London for $20,700.

Lot on Monroe street, Waterford, to Arthur H. Davis for $35.

Lot on Norwich turnpike in Waterford to Savings Bank of New London for $4,050.

Lot on Bank street, New London, to Betty Friedberg of Norwich for $1,875.

The proceeds of the sale are to be applied as follows: $106.56 to James R. May for expenses of the sale, $53.50 for stamps on deeds, $75 for expenses of appraisal, $1,000 to May for his services, $31 to the state of Connecticut for taxes, and the balance of $50,954 to the Savings Bank of New London on account of its mortgage debt of $53,632.24 and its costs taxed $81.81.

MOTOR VEHICLE REGISTRANTS SLACK ABOUT ADDRESSES

A check-up of addresses given by people registering motor vehicles in Connecticut reveals that about 12 per cent. of the registrants cannot be found at the addresses furnished in their sworn applications, according to an announcement at the state motor vehicle department. This is considered to be a high percentage of wrong addresses, but many of them are believed to be due to the fact that people often give temporary addresses when registering their cars and fail to notify the department of subsequent change.

The revised motor vehicle law, adopted at the recent session of the legislature, provides that "each holder of a license for the operation of a motor vehicle or each holder of a certificate of registration of a motor vehicle issued by the commissioner of motor vehicles shall, within forty-eight hours of any change of his address, notify the commissioner of motor vehicles of such change of address, which notification shall include his old and his new address." Suspension of registration certificate, as well as prosecution, are likely to result in cases where it has been found that wrong addresses have been given deliberately. Under a new provision of the state law, any person who swears or affirms falsely in regard to any matter respecting which an oath or affirmation is required by said commissioner shall be guilty of perjury and may be fined or imprisoned therefor.

CARBRAY BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR COURT

Charged with assault with intent to kill, John (Jack) Carbray, was presented in the city court Friday morning and bound over to the criminal court by Judge Arthur F. Libby. The original bond of $25,000 was lowered to $15,000. Being unable to raise the bond Carbray was taken back to jail to await trial in the superior court. Carbray was represented by Public Defender Charles L. Stewart who demurred to the complaint, the demurrer being overruled by the court.

Carbray is charged with shooting Anna Weltin Carbray, his divorced wife, and Herman Greiner, the double shooting taking place at night about ten days ago at her home on 632 Main street. Both have been discharged from the Backus hospital. Carbray's former wife was shot in both arms and Greiner was shot in the lip.

Home From Fishing Trip

Norwich men who returned Friday afternoon from a fishing trip of a week at Lake Winnapesaukee reported a fine outing, during which the party caught 26 lake trout. Those making the trip were Dr. J. J. Donohue, Dr. W. T. Driscoll, James C. Mara, Peter Sellas, John Jencks, Charles A. Chamberlain, all of this city, and Frank M. Dunn of New London. The trip was made in the cars of Dr. Donohue and Mr. Sellas.

PRETTY LAWN FETE BY GRACE CHURCH GUILD

The Woman's Guild of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, held a successful lawn fete, Friday evening, from six to eight o'clock, on the spacious grounds at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Kimball, 342 Washington street.

Tables were arranged under the shade trees, from which supper was served to a large assemblage. The tables were prettily decorated with pink and white peonies and pink and white Rambler roses. Suspended from tree to tree, were festoons of pennants, formerly the property of the late Frederick L. Osgood, which several years ago used to fly from his private yacht. These bright colors among the green trees furnished elaborate decorations. The supper consisted of the following menu: Potato salad, tuna fish salad, cabbage salad, pickles, olives, cold ham and tongue, rolls, strawberries and cream, cake and coffee. Ice cream was also for sale, this being served from the little tea house on the lawn.

The general committee in charge of the affair comprised Mrs. Charles H. Kimball, chairman; Mrs. May Lynes, Mrs. Allen Johnson, Mrs. Edward Smith. In charge of the supply table, were Mrs. Charles Burbeck, Mrs. John Hart and Mrs. May Lynes. Miss Dorothy Pendleton dispensed the ice cream, while Mrs. Charles Harvey looked after the apron table. The waitresses were Mrs. John Proctor, Mrs. Charles Bentley, Mrs. Herbert Dow, Mrs. Margaret Hardenbrook and the Misses Marjorie Harvey, Marion Gibbs and Phyllis Irwin.

Most of the women and girls were dressed in white, which with nature's beauties and the various colorings in the pennants, was an attractive feature.

The purpose of the sale was to raise money toward the purchase of a new floor covering for Grace church, but as all money had not been turned in Friday evening, an accurate estimate could not be given out, but it was learned that the Guild made around $50 on the supper and sale.

A new war vessel is to be built that travels under the water.

MEXICO ALLEGES "THREAT" IN KELLOGG'S STATEMENT

President Calles Regards as Insult the Implication That Mexico Stands "On Trial Before the World"—Asserts That Mexico Does Not Accord to Any Foreign Country the Right to Intervene in Her Domestic Affairs—Statement Issued by the Mexican Embassy in Washington.

Washington, June 14—(A. P.)—President Calles of Mexico in a statement issued today by the Mexican embassy here, asserted that Secretary Kellogg's statement last Friday, contained a "threat" against Mexico's sovereignty and that the implication that Mexico stood "on trial before the world" in the guise of a defendant "in essence would only mean an insult."

Furthermore, President Calles added, Mexico "does not accord to any foreign country the right to intervene in her domestic affairs, nor is she disposed to subordinate her international relations of the exigencies of another country."

Mexico, the statement continued, is conscious of her international obligations and is determined to comply with them, as a proof of which it mentions the establishment of claims commissions for the consideration of claims held by foreigners against Mexico for losses sustained during revolutions.

President Calles also regrets that Secretary Kellogg mentioned in his statement reports of an impending revolution in Mexico, "since this last affirmation tends to cast some alarm in the world in regard to the conditions of my country."

"The statement that the government of the United States will continue to support the government of Mexico only so long as it protects American interests and lives and complies with its international engagements and obligations," he declares, "embodies a threat to the sovereignt yof Mexico that she cannot overlook and reject with all energy."

Citing that 'the statement under reference also affirms that the American ambassador has succeeded in protecting American as well as foreign interests," President Calles asserts that, "if he has thus succeeded, he has no right to charge Mexico of failure to protect such interests, and attention should be called to the fact that said ambassador does no represent any other foreigner, but his own fellow citizens, and Mexico could not admit that without her previous authorization, the American ambassador should act in behalf of persons or interests alien to those of his country."

"If the government of Mexico as affirmed, is now on trial before the world," he says, "such is the case with the government of the United States as well as those of other countries; but if it is to be understood that Mexico is on trial in the guise of a defendant, my government absolutely rejects with energy such imputation, which in essence would only mean an insult"

The Calles statement, like that of Secretary Kellogg, was directed to the press and therefore, was not an exchange between the wio governments. Nevertheless, some officials here were astonished at the Mexican executive's use of such words as "insult" and "threat to the sovereignty of Mexico" in setting before the public his side of the matter, although it was recalled that the Kellogg statement also was uncommonly blunt.

"In the absence of Secretary Kellogg tonight, who was one of President Coolidge's guests on a week-end cruise aboard the Mayflower, accessible officials did not believe that the secretary of state at any time intended to threaten Mexican sovereignty nor to "insult" the Mexican government or people.

The statement issued by Mr. Kellogg Friday was said to contain all that he intended to say, at least for the present, and to "speak for itself" It was not communicated to the Mexican government and, so far as is known, there have been no official exchanges between Washington and Mexico City since that time, to which the state department has been a party.

Under these circumstances, it was said tonight, Mr. Kellogg, upon returning to his desk tomorrow, probably would ignore the Calles statement, preferring to let the controversy rest rather than prolong it by issuing further statements and continuing arguments in a public fashion. Should the Mexican executive, however, officially address a statement to the secretary the affair at once would take on a different aspect and Mr. Kellogg undoubtedly would send an acknowledgment through official channels.

In the background of the statement issued Friday by the secretary is a wealth of information given him by assistants charged with the conduct of Mexican affairs. Much of this information has been laid before President Coolidge and revealed to Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee and Senator Smoot of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, before Mr. Kellogg's statement was made public. Others who were informed at the same time as to the contents of the reports regarding Mexico, said later that the secretary's language was fully justified and was cautious and moderate.

STATEMENT BY SOCIETY FOR CONTROL OF CANCER

New York, June 14.—(A. P.)—The American Society for the Control of Cancer today issued a statement saying that the information which the world now possesses about cancer would be sufficient to save "thousands of lives which are now needlessly sacrificed to the disease, if the people would learn the essential facts and co-operate intelligently with the medical profession."

The society said its statement was prompted because "in over 100,000 homes a shadow of discouragement and despair has recently been cast by the daily press through the inaccurate reporting of the discussions of the cancer problem at the Atlantic City convention of the American Medical Association."

Published statements that cancer was inheritable, infectious, incurable, inevitably fatal, and that nobody knew anything of practical value about the disease are contrary to the facts, the society says.

The disease must be discovered early and suitable measures for its eradication must be employed in every case, says the society adding that "surgery and the application of X-rays and radium are the measures which the medical profession recognizes as the most effective means of combating the disease."

"A great many more people have been cured by these measures than is commonly supposed and the number is constantly increasing."

COBRA KEPT SAILORS IN REIGN OF TERROR

Boston, June 14.—(AP)—A three days' reign of terror in mid-ocean with a cobra at large was described by officers of the freighter Sandoa Hall on her arrival here today from India and Ceylon with a cargo of wild animals, birds, and reptiles. Cold and stormy weather seasickness caused by stormy seas exacted a heavy toll from the jungle passengers.

A cage containing two cobras and a green whipsnake was smashed by the pitching of the vessel during the heavy weather. It was related, and the occupants were soon roaming the hold. The whipsnake and one cobra were soon recaptured, but the second cobra was nowhere to be seen. Frightened Lascar sailors cowered in their bunks or huddled against the ship's rail in fear, and refused to work while the reptile was loose. Two days later a engineer found the wanderer curled comfortably around a winch steam pipe, and Charles Franks, in charge of the Noah's Ark shipment, quickly doused and caged it.

LADY CURZON ENGAGED TO MAJOR METCALFE

London, June 14—The engagement of Lady Alexander Curzon to Major Edward Dudley Metcalfe, of the Indian cavalry, announced recently, has started the many rumors that the daughter of Mary Leiter, of Chicago, was likely to marry into the royal family. These rumors had gained some support because of the fact that Lady Alexander, from her girlhood, has been on very friendly terms with the sons of King George.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Demonstration Called Off.

Peking, June 14.—(A. P.)—The one day strike and a monster demonstration promoted by Chinese students have been called off. It is alleged that the decision not to carry out the project was due to counsels of the majority of the students who were fearful of possible violence if the plans were carried out.

CAILLAUX TALKS TO VOTERS AND TAXPAYERS

Brauvais, France, June 14—(A. P.—M. Caillaux, minister of finance in the cabinet, declared to several thousand voters and taxpayers here today that "if France wants to be helped she must first help herself."

The minister spoke earnestly and without apology, saying "the hour of great economic and financial penance has struck for France. French citizens in every walk of life must realise that the day of financial and economic sacrifice and discipline has come.

"However complicated France's financial situation may be, I feel assured that it is still time—but there is not a minute to lose—to save our financial ship which is beginning to settle. It is a heavy task. We must restore the financial situation, which has become dangerous through immensity and multiplicity by reason of the long lapse of time.

"I must ask for a spirit of sacrifice from all the taxpayers and solicit every one's help, not only the rich, but also the middle classes and the workman. The naked truth must be told to the country, which for ten years has been kept in ignorance of the realities. It is an ungrateful task, but must be accomplished.

"I must have the courage to tell you that the decisive hour has struck, wherein the nation must cut down its mode of living so that resources will tally with expenditures. Discipline, financial discipline, is absolutely necessary. You must have confidence in the chiefs whom you have chosen for yourselves and give them time to accomplish their programmes.

"Do not think that there exists anywhere a Utopia where a marvelous remedy or financial magic can preserve you from rigorous retrenchment and daily sacrifices. Do not imagine that it would be sufficient to re-establish the guillotine so far as concerns public places for all financial ills to disappear."

MONTREAL MAN SHOT BY IMMIGRATION PATROLMEN

Newport, Vt., June 14—Eugene Lamotte, of Montreal, was shot by United States immigration patrolmen today night at Westfield, near the Canadian border, and died in a hospital here a few hours later. Timothy M. Baker, of Montreal and six Chinese whom the authorities say the men were smuggling across the border, were lodged in jail here.

United States Immigration Patrolmen Rounds and Hadlock said Lamotte's machine passed them on the international highway at Westfield and instead of stopping at their command put on speed.

They fired six shots at the car, they said. Both declared they fired low at the tires. The machine swerved and came to a stop. Investigation showed that Lamotte had been struck. A preliminary medical examination showed that the bullet which struck him probably was a ricochet.

PARISIAN MILLINERS TO MAKE LARGER HATS

Paris, June 14—Although the little cloche hat seems to have endeared itself to those with bobbed hair, notwithstanding frequent unsuccessful efforts in the past to change the mode, Parisian milliners have not abandoned the attempt to give women larger hats for their money.

The milliners sent a whole flock of mannequins wearing large hats to the races last week, and they are waiting the effect of the display upon the crowds of fashion leaders who will give their verdict by what they wear during the early summer season, at the Great Opera ball, and at the Grand Prix at Longchamp.

WATERBURY MAN DIES OF AUTOMOBILE INJURIES

Waterbury, June 14—Angelo Gaudiosi, 57, of 124 Shelley street, died at St. Mary's hospital this morning as a result of injuries sustained late last night when he was hit by a car while crossing East Main street. His skull was fractured and he had internal injuries.

Charles M. Brooks, of 100 Coniston avenue, driver of the car which struck Gaudiosi, told the police that he was driving at a moderate rate of speed but that the man walked right in front of his car rendering a collision inevitable.

Gaudiosi leaves a wife and eight children. He was an employe of the city water department.

ARRIVING IN CLEVELAND FOR FUNERAL OF STONE

Cleveland, June 14—Railroad labor leaders began arriving today for the funeral tomorrow of Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Engineers and head of the cooperative banks, trust companies, buildings and other business interests. Mr. Stone died late Friday.

Arrangements for the funeral were completed today with the selection of Harry P. Daugherty, vice president of the brotherhood, as the sixth active pallbearer. Others will be Harry E. Fehr, Mr. Stone's chief clerk; George T. Webb, James L. Jackson, Henry Wadworth and Oscar J. Horn, associates of the dead labor leader in the local offices of the brotherhood and its cooperative bank.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF TRANSPORTING LIQUOR

Greenwich, June 14—Harry Greenburg of 631 Harrison avenue, Boston, and Harry Bloom, of 1180 Beacon street, Brookline, Mass., were arrested here today charged with transportation of liquor. The automobile in which they were riding carried 100 gallons of alleged liquor, according to the police. It was hidden in flat copper tanks between the upholstery and the top of the car and under the back seat. Underneath the floor board, a faucet was found which connected with these tanks.

Greenburg attempted to escape by jumping from the machine and dashing towards a carnival held by the volunteer firemen but he was recaptured after five shots had been fired by his director.

MAY REVOLUTIONIZE RADIO WITH "BEAM BROADCASTING"

New York, June 14.—(A. P.)—Experiments with a system of "beam broadcasting" which he predicts will revolutionize the operation of commercial and long distance radio are described by Guglielmo Marconi in the forthcoming July issue of Radio Broadcast.

A combination of short electrical waves, with what is known as the beam system, utilizing only a fraction of the horsepower of high power long wave stations, Marconi asserts, will minimize the cost of broadcasting and provide comparative secrecy in air messages.

Marconi's earliest experiments with wireless used waves not longer than a few inches long. Now, after radio stations have been built to use waves as long as 20,000 metres, Marconi explains, he has swung the cycle of investigation back to his original discovery in the attempt to do away with the fading and absorption of signals, interference by natural electric waves, and to make transmission directional.

Using one reflector in a comparatively small tower to concentrate and project the waves in a bear and another to focus them at the receiving end of the receiving antenna, the radiated energy is concentrated into a beam directed at the locality with which it is desired to communicate, just as light waves of a searchlight are thrown in one direction by means of reflectors. The beam reflector can be so moved as to "mirror" the signals in any desired direction.

MAN USED HIS FISTS GIRL WIELDED RAZOR

New Haven, June 14.—(AP)—Rose Iovanna, 18 years old, and Michael Depaola, 21, a taxicab driver, were arrested near the railroad station today following a fight in which the man is alleged to have used his fists and the girl a razor. Questioned later by the police, the girl is said to have charged that Depaola betrayed her and refused to keep his promise of marriage. Depaola received a wound over the heart and cuts about the face and neck.

Witnesses told the police that the girl and man had been seen quarreling near the railroad station today, and that when the man was about to leave in his taxicab he struck the girl. Then, according to the story told to the police she jumped on the running board of the machine and attacked Depaola with a razor. William Peiser, who recently passed the examination for supernumerary policeman, was passing and jumping on to the taxicab, he wrested the razor away from the girl. Both the man and girl were then taken to police headquarters.

Action Postponed on Sugar Duties

President Coolidge Disregards Recommendation of Reduction by the Tariff Commission.

Washington, June 14.—(AP)—President Coolidge has decided to postpone indefinitely action on the recommendation of a majority on the tariff commission for a reduction of one half cent a pound in sugar duties. His findings on the commission's report, which was submitted him nearly a year ago, were made public today at the White House.

Discussing the issue at length, the president points out that the commission failed to agree on the difference in cost of producing domestic and imported sugar, and divided three to two on the question. He asserts that fluctuating prices in the last few years have made it next to impossible to arrive at accurate calculations, and emphasizes the necessity of protecting the beet sugar industry, of encouraging farmers to diversify their crops, and of providing an adequate sugar supply for the American consumer.

At the conclusion of his findings, the president, however, makes this statement:

"If, through decreased production or other conditions, the world market should be relieved of the weight of sugar now pressing upon it, and the consumer should again be compelled to pay the abnormally high price demanded of in 1922, the change in conditions might warrant a reconsideration of the present decision to postpone action upon the recommendation offered in the majority report of the tariff commission."

"After full consideration of all the facts shown in the reports of the members of the tariff commission," says the president's statement, "I do not find that differences in cost of production are sufficiently established under present condition to warrant any change from the present duty."

The commission's sugar investigation was initiated in 1922, under the flexible provisions of the tariff law which empower the president to make increases or reductions in duties to the extent of fifty per cent. At that time, it is pointed out by Mr. Coolidge, the average New York wholesale price of granulated sugar was 5.4 cents a pound as compared to a pre-war average for 1909 through 1913 of 4.9 cents a pound.

"The abnormally high price of sugar in 1922," the president adds, "furnished reasonable grounds for complaint and suggested remedial action through education of the tariff on raw sugar."

7,698,321 PERSONS FILED INCOME TAX RETURNS

Washington, June 14.—(AP)—Taxable personal incomes in America in 1923 were shown tonight by the internal revenue bureau to have amounted to $26,336,543 or five billion dollars more than in the 1922 total.

The bureau figures, made public in its annual analysis of personal incomes, disclosed that 7,698,321 persons filed returns in the year, covered by the statistics while in the preceding year there were 6,787,481 returns. The 7,698,321 taxpayers in 1923 contributed $703,962,155 in taxes to the government, which was approximately $157,000 less than the taxes paid in 1922, largely as a result of the 25 per cent. refund voted by congress.

On the basis of the census bureaus population estimate for July 1, 1923, returns were filed in 1923 by 6.94 per cent. of the nation's citizens, while in 1923 the proportion was 6.3 per cent.

Incomes in the class of $1,000,000 and over in 1923 numbered 74, the third highest in the history of American income tax collection, the number in 1916 having been 206. Sixty seven persons reported incomes of a million dollars or more in 1922. The 74 who had incomes in excess of a million dollars in 1923 paid a total of $99,768,475 in taxes.

The income classes from $2,000 to $5,000 continued in 1923 to be more than half, numerically, of all the government's tax providers, although as compared with 1922, the $2,000 to $3,000 class showed a decrease while increases were reported in the number of returns of net incomes between $3,000 and $4,000 and between $4,000 and $5,000.

CORNED BEEF AND CABBAGE FAVORITE OF NEW YORKERS

New York, June 14—Corned beef and cabbage is the favorite dinner dish of most New Yorkers if the poll just completed by the United Restaurant Owners' association gave an accurate picture of the Metropolitan appetite.

Of the 150 votes cast, "red Mike and violets," as the succulent dish is known in less ornate caravansaries, led with more than 23,000. Second on the list of preferences was "vegetable dinner," with 18,549, while third place went to veal cutlet and fourth to Long Island duckling.

God Bless the Flag!

Washed in the blood of the brave and the blooming,
Snatched from the altars of insolent foes,
Burning with star-fires, but never consuming,

Vainly the prophets of Baal would rend it,
Vainly his worshipers pray for its fall;
Thousands have died for it, millions defend it.
Emblem of justice and mercy to all.

Soothing all passions, redeeming all errors,
Sheathing the saber and breaking the chain.

Borne on the deluge of old usurpations
Drifted our ark o'er the desolate seas,
Bearing the rainbow of hope to the nations,
Torn from the storm-cloud and flung to the breeze!

God bless the flag and its loyal defenders,
While its broad folds o'er the battlefield wave,
Till the dim star-wreath rekindles its splendors

—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Optimistic Report Of Business Outlook

Steady and Even Improvement in Trade is Conviction in Financial Circles.

New York, June 14—With no marked change descernable in the surface aspects of business last week, the conviction grew in financial circles that the summer months would continue to bring steady and even progress in trade.

As in recent weeks, the general business picture was shaded with contrasting movements, but price recessions and declining operations in certain industries were offset by the swift recovery of others. Signs multiplied that the closer balance being struck between production and consumption would do much to avert the normal midsummer reaction and in the long run would have a wholesome effect on industrial activities.

Trade reports of the last week unquestionably have favored the oil industry more than any of the others. Recent announcements of record-breaking gasoline consumption and production have been followed by a series of other favorable developments successful in the prices of both crude and refined products, a reduction in the weekly output of crude oil for the first time in many weeks and accumulating evidence that the leading producing and refining companies were in the strongest financial and operating positions in several years. Petroleum shares were quick to reflect the brightening outlook for their companies.

Steel conditions still presented too many irregularities to satisfy the industry. Although the trade found encouragement in the moderate increase in the volume of new business, price reductions gave ground for considerable nervousness. The growing competition for orders resulted in a drop in the composite price to the lowest level in 29 months. A decline in unfilled tonnage of the U. S. Steel corporation for May had been expected, but the decrease of almost 400,000 tons was somewhat larger than Wall street had looked for.

The contribution of the railroads to the steadiness of the business situation has been reflected in the fact that no signs of a car shortage have yet appeared and that most of the carriers have reported themselves adequately equipped to handle any emergency which may develop during the crop moving season. Some of the railroads are striving toward the goal of eliminating completely the car shortage difficulties which gradually have been diminishing since 1920. Freight rate provisions ordered by the interstate commerce commission on the movement of farm products in certain parts of the west are expected to benefit the western lines.

Maintenance of easy credit conditions, which has featured both the early-in-the-year expansion and the subsequent slackening of activity, has been an important factor in sustaining business confidence. Credit is in a liquid position, it is held, and can be made to respond readily to the needs of industry as they may develop.

BODY OF SOCIETY WOMAN WAS FOUND IN CISTERN

Los Angeles, June 14—The body of Mrs. Grace Young, wealthy society matron, who has been missing since February, was found early today in a cistern underneath her cabin in Beverly Glen, a residential canyon west of the city.

Discovery of the body followed the confession late last night of Dr. Thomas W. Young, her husband, who is a dentist, that he killed the woman. He directed the district attorney's office to the cabin.

The missing woman was the widow of the late Patrick Grogan once known as the "olive king", and administratrix of a $1,000,000 estate to which their son, Charles Patrick Grogan, is principal heir.

The case came to the attention of the district attorney's office shortly after a heated legal fight had been launched over the guardianship of young Grogan. The widow later married Dr. Young.

BRITISH AND JAPANESE CONSULATES WERE WRECKED

Hankow, June 14.—(A. P.)—During the anti-foreign rioting at Kau-Kiang yesterday, in which the British and Japanese consulates were wrecked and the buildings of Japanese and British concerns burned, no lives were lost. Among the buildings destroyed by fire was the Japanese bank.

Hankow, June 14.—(A. P.)—Early this morning Chinese troops were guarding the borders of the foreign concessions to prevent a resumption of last week's rioting. Behind wire barricades charged with electricity the landing parties from several foreign warships awaited possible attacks by coolies until after midnight. The coolies and students, incited by stories of slaughter of Chinese by foreigners, still are in an ugly temper.

The Chinese employed in Japanese shops in the Japanese concession have gone on strike, demanding the removal of that electrical contrivances which they claim killed a Chinese woman and a boy this morning. The story of the killing of these two persons has not been verified it is claimed, however, that the current in the entanglements is not of sufficient power to cause death.

STEAMER RAMMED IN NEW LONDON HARBOR

Providence, June 14—The steel yacht Halcyon, owned by Dutee W. Flint, of this city, southern New England head of the Henry Ford interests, was rammed in the fog by the freighter New York while at anchor in New London harbor just before sunrise this morning, according to Mr. Flint, who returned here tonight with a slightly injured shoulder.

Mrs. Flint, her little daughter Merce and a young playmate, Bobby Brokaw, who had been asleep, were trapped in a state room while the yacht was on her beam ends and 100 barrels of water were pouring into the craft through the open port holes. The freighter backed away, however, and the yacht righted. She has a large hole in her starboard quarter above the water line.

According to Mr. Flint, the New York had blundered considerably off her course. The Halcyon was anchored behind the rocks off the Griswold hotel, inside a circle of about half a dozen other yachts, he said. Had the Halcyon been wooden, Mr. Flint said, the New York would have plowed through her and piled upon the rocks.

SAYS VOLSTEAD WROTE AN ELEVENTH COMMANDMENT

Hartford, June 14—That Volstead's followwing in politics "in effect wrote an eleventh commandment for the conduct of the individual 'though shalt not dink' and made it a crime against the state," was the assertion of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lincoln K. Andrews, at the open air memorial service on Trinity campus today. Mr. Andrews is at the head of the enforcement division of the treasury department and a special guest of the college commencement. Hunderds of thousands wilfully violate this enforcement the speaker said and the government's "daring" innovation in writing this new commandment he explained, has created a new class of criminals in the world, a new industry gradually becoming organized in defiance of the government's invasion of this new field of activity.

MOTION MADE TO QUASH EVOLUTION INDICTMENT

Dayton, Tenn., June 14.—(A. P.)—Almost simultaneously with the arrival in Dayton of Judge John A. Neal and John T. Scopes from their trip east, the defense in the evolution case made its first move in the weighty legal chess game which is to culminate before the state supreme court. A motion to quash the indictment which has been returned against Scopes was filed by Judge J. L. Godsey, one of the counsel for the defense, many articles of state and federal constitutions being cited, which, it was contended, are violated by the law prohibiting the teaching of evolution under which the indictment was returned.

"This is a vitally important step," said Judge Neal last night, "it is impressive under the rules of this court and customary with other courts."

ROUND-UP OF GANGSTERS UNDERWAY IN CHICAGO

Chicago, June 14—While gangland writhed under the greatest round-up by police in Chicago's gang-ridden history, guns blazed again this morning in the roadhouse fringe of the southwest side, sending one man to the hospital with dangerous wounds, and intensifying the police drive to exterminate the menace of gangdom.

Charles Tremblay habitue of The Blue Goose Inn, was the victim of an unknown assailant whose violence called Sheriff Hoffman from the all night round-up of police characters precipitated by yesterday's desperate street battle between gangsters and police. A taxicab driver who hurried Tremblay to the hospital, was unable to describe the incident and Tremblay told conflicting stories.

Meanwhile Chief of Police Collins, under special orders from Mayor Dever and State's Attorney Crowe, consolidated their forces with those of the sheriff in waging a drive against violence which in certain sections reached the stage of house-to-house searching for beer-runners, gunmen and hangers on.

"By Monday every gangster must be behind the bars," Chief Collins told his lieutenants at a special strategy meeting this morning. More than 200 suspects were taken in the 24 hours ending at 8 p. m. tonight.

Yesterday's battle which resulted in the death of two policemen and Michael Genna, a gang leader, roused the authorities to the most drastic action the city has ever known.

Raiding squads invaded the hangouts of notorious gangs throughout the night, bringing in men for scores in the examination room in which Deputy Attorney Crowe and Chief Collins jointly conducted a rigorous inquiry which they said was to "pry into the depths of the underworld."

Special instructions to the city's 4,000 policemen ordered them to take no chances.

"Carry your revolvers in your hands and shoot at the first sign of trouble," Chief Collins told his emergency flying squads. "And don't forget by Monday every gangster must be placed behind the bars."

In the house-to-house [illegible] certain section long marked as rendevous of the notorious [illegible] Gang, the officers confiscated 20 guns, 4 rifles, 15 revolvers, 2,000 rounds of ammunition, 7,000 gallons of alcohol and 1,500 gallons of alcohol and 100 barrels of wine.

Answers received to the letters sent the graduates by Allen B. Lincoln, some time ago, favor a postponement until a more suitable time, but all say "don't give it up!"

FOOTE-KINGSBURY WEDDING SATURDAY

Willimantic, June 14—Miss Elinor Kingsbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Kingsbury, of South Coventry, and Harold Hawley Foote, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Foote, of 42 Maple avenue, this city, were united in marriage at the South Coventry Congregational church by the pastor, Rev. Charles J. Johnson, at 6 o'clock Saturday evening. The pretty June wedding was one of the most prominent social affairs of local and Coventry circles, this season. The bride was attended by Miss Eleanor H. Foote, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid, Donald Kramer, friend of the groom, served as best man, and the ushers were, Lester H. Bliah and Carleton F. King, of this city, James Eaton, of Mansfield Center, Wilfred Roberts, of Hartford, Arthur Clark, of Coventry, and Milan Eggleston, of Lyme Rock, Conn.

The edifice was beautifully decorated. Along the pulpit rail was a dense banking of laurel. To the rear and above this, the choir railing was solid with peonies, the center piece being a large basket of sweet-Williams and highly colored peonies. At either side of the aisles were baskets of roses and ferns. This colorful arrangement was set against a background of leafy white birches the tips of which were joined over the pulpit so as to form an impsense arch of vivid green.

The bride wore an exquisite gown of French Valenciennes lace over liberty satin. Her court train was of rose point and liberty satin. She carried an arm bouquet of sweetheart roses. The bridesmaid was attired in a becoming gown of pompadoure georgette over white crepe and she carried American Beauty roses. Mrs. Kingsbury wore mauve lace with the pastelle shades introduced over crepe of the same color. Mrs. Foote, mother of the groom was modishly gowned in flower-red chiffon over rose crepe.

As the hundreds of friends were ushered into the church a program of music was carried out. Selections were rendered by William Smith, of East Hampton, organist and Ralph H. Gibson, of this city, violinist. March Nuptial was played as the groom accompanied by the best man, entered, led by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Johnson. When the bride appeared escorted by her father, the wedding processional from Lohengrin was rendered. The ceremony was performed during the soft playing of At Dawning by Cadman. The single ring service was used Mendelsohn's recessional was rendered as the bridal party left the church.

About one hundred and fifty guests attended the reception at the Kingsbury home. Refreshments were served by a Hartford caterer. Music for dancing was by Messrs. Gibson and Smith. Later in the evening the couple left by automobile on an unannounced honeymoon journey. Going away the bride wore a gown of lipstick red combined with black satin, a coat of red with a black satin scarf trimmed with gray fox, and a black hat. Upon their return the newlyweds will make their temporary home in Coventry. Decorations at the church and residence were by Olaf Frederickson, the Kingsbury gardener for years, and Mrs. William Armstrong of Coventry. On display in one room was an expensive collection of gifts for the bridal couple.

The bride is a graduate of the Mary Lyon school, of Swarthmore, Penn., and she attended Walnut Hill, at Natick, Mass. The groom is a graduate of Windham High school and is employed as assistant pharmacist at the Wilson Windham Drug Co. Escorted by St. Joseph's Boy Scout band the delegation proceeded to St. Joseph's cemetery, where a delegation was dispatched to the grave of each knight, prayers offered and a floral tribute laid on the grave. The assemblage then gathered at the foot of the large cross in the cemetery, where prayers were offered by Fr. Kelley and an address given by Mr. Shannon of Bridgeport.

CAR STRIKES BRIDGE ABUTTMENT, TWO INJURED

Willimantic, Jun 14—Robert Archibald, of New York, sustained a broken leg and Ernest Wallerstein, also of New York, received an injury to his foot late Saturday night when a Dodge roadster, owned by Edmond Thompson, of New York city, and operated by his brother, John Thompson of Windham, struck the abuttment of the one-way bridge which spans the Willimantic River on the Coventry-Willimantic back road in the town of Coventry. The machine was considerably damaged. Miss Ilonka Montage, another passenger in the car and the driver escaped injury. Archibald is in St. Joseph's hospital for treatment. Mr. Thompson was driving through a slight fog and being unfamiliar with that stretch of road did not realize that he was nearing the one-way bridge which is set off at an angle to the road. He applied the brakes but the car skidded in the deep sand which lines the narrow piece of macadam, and the right rear wheel collided with the steel framework of the bridge, smashing the wheel.

TRIPS WHILE WALKING STUMP PIERCES THROAT

Willimantic, June 14—John Ryan, of this city, one of a sextet of local young men occupying a camp on Fenton's island, at Lake Wangumbaug, South Coventry, was severely injured Saturday night, as he was making his way along shore toward the island, when he tripped and fell heavily to the ground, causing a sharp birch stump to penetrate his throat immediately under the chin, leaving a deep wound which bled profusely. Ryan was carrying several bundles of groceries for the camp at the time and when he stumbled in the dark he failed to throw his hands out to protect himself. He was accompanied by John Pickett who ran on to the camp, which is reached from the mainland by a narrow neck of land during low water, and secured the assistance of John Sugrue and Murray Tighe. Ryan was given first aid treatment and then rushed to St. Joseph's hospital here, where he is making gradual recovery. It was said that if the stump had penetrated one-quarter of an inch further it would have burst an artery and placed the young man in a serious condition.

OWNED FIRST PIANO IN TOWN OF HEBRON

Perkins took the child to Dr. F. E. Guild in Windham Center and the latter found that other than a slight scratch on the arm the boy was uninjured. He was saved from being crushed by the presence of mind of Mr. Perkins who applied his brakes quickly when he sensed danger.

DANIELSON

This is a little bit late, but it is good. The average person hereabouts will recall that eastern Connecticut, in common with various other sections of New England, had an extraordinary heat wave week before last. It was without question extraordinary. But how many hereabouts have paused to consider that anyone had the time and energy to make capital out of it? No one, perhaps; but one did nevertheless.

It so happens that a Danielson man and a Central Village man were in California attending a Shriners' convention, when the heat wave raged in the east.

Imagine their amazement—not to mention their pride—when they bought a copy of a yellow San Francisco paper and read—emblazoned on the first page under scare heads—that "Heat Deaths Reach 200 In The Eastern States, Mercury At 120 (Boiling Point) in Oneco, Conn."

Of this the survivor of the pair of eastern Connecticut men who read the item writes that his companion is now doing fairly well and hopes to reach home June 23, survivor being used in the sense that one may live through many things, even after the the average person considers him dead.

The writer says that his companion simply toppled over—doubtless with compassion—when he read of the heat sufferings of his compatriots in the east, being aided and abetted in his collapse by stepping upon a piece of ice on the slippery streets of San Francisco (for it is winter now in California, or is it?) and being grievously injured falling upon three $12 bills that had crawled around into one of his hip pockets to escape the heat. This may not be an accurate description of just what happened, but it somewhat approximates it.

The scientific interest in the Oneco item that must have startled Californians—at so much an inch—is in that water reaches its boiling point in Oneco, Conn., at 120 degrees. The average person knows that wates does not boil at 120 degrees in Oneco—or elsewhere in the east. But what does that matter if an item at so much per inch is in sight, with a press association to gobble it up. It may disable two easterners who know Oneco and its fame, but that's a mere incident, too; for no man from eastern Connecticut should be in California when water boils at 100 degrees below par in his own home town; he ought to be at home to see the amazing things that happen hereabout—sometimes, or are alleged to happen.

A class of twenty-one members will be graduated from St. James' parochial school tomorrow (Tuesday) evening. This is a matter of interest to several thousand people hereabouts. The entire school of nearly 500 pupils will have a part in the exercises and the diplomas will be presented by Rev. Joseph Dexchaux, M. S., paster of the parish.

Several hundred parishioners are expected to be present for the graduation. Two pupils will deliver the addresses of welcome—Miss Olive Burns in English, Miss Olive Day in French.

The opening chorus of the exercises will be by the combined schools. A number of special features are included in the program, these including flag songs, action songs, drills, marches, etc.

The class motto is Faith, Knowledge, Morality.

Having surpassed all expectations as to excellence of exhibits and attendance—running into thousands—the Textile Products exhibit of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association closed Saturday evening at the state armory. The last of the exhibits will be cleared away today, as were the first of them within an hour after the close of the three days' show.

Not in memory has there been such a display in Danielson. Such wonderful things as mill men may do in the future in arranging an exhibit here in Danielson of their products from all eastern parts of the state will have to be mighty good to surpass the show that has just closed. They may do that but they will have to go some. The exhibition that has just closed has been marked by real cooperation, enthusiasm and energy on all sides. There were no slackers. There was no jealousy. Just an idea to boost eastern Connecticut's greatest industry with eastern Connecticut's people. Those who missed the display missed something really worth while. And of the thousands who saw the exhibit the supreme enthusiasts are the mill men. They put over something big, staged it with class, attracted the attention of the public and were made the objects of sincere congratulations from all sides. And they deserved all of this for their products—be it broadcast—rank with the best in the lines shown in America.

If eastern Connecticut people have learned from the show that textiles unsurpassed can be bought to aid eastern Connecticut's greatest industry, the show will have been worth many times what it cost, now and for years in the future.

Beginning today (Monday) one may take a midnight train out of Danielson as early at 4:45 a. m., or thereabouts. Here is the opportunity of the age for those who want to be conservatively reckless. The New Haven road—to make it short—changed the running time of its trains, effective Sunday, when few trains run hereabouts, anyway, to give towns along the line of the local branch a schedule that approximates the Puritan arrangement forbidding the kissing of one's wife on the Sabbath. It is the most meagre schedule known to this generation. There will be a train now and then, but so few of them that walking on the railroad track will be safer than strolling through a cemetery where the arrangements allow of the entry of automobiles.

There was satire in the fact that the railroad had one of its police officers checking up the automobile traffic over the Main street crossing here Sunday. This officer was counting the automobiles that crossed the railroad's right of way. Now the automobilists are talking of putting on an officer to count the trains. It appears the traffic problem has reached an impasse—that either the trains or the automobiles will have to go. It all depends on the figures they turn in.

As to the new and curtailed train schedule, it isn't hardly fair to hound the railroad too much, no matter what the inconveniences or handicaps imposed by the new train schedule. Few passenger trains through this territory are getting any business. The average man would not run an ancient Ford for the net returns, if the railroad will supply early, late and efficient mail service, get the milk away and assure daily deliveries of parcel post and other such matter, the public will not give a hang, generally, about the passenger service.

Accepting the opinion of one who knows nothing about railroading or its problems, the New Haven can forget about the passengers—if any prospects remain—take care of the essentials mentioned and run an excursion a week to Montreal and get rich. The public will forget about the midnight trains at 4:45 a. m., and take out their spleen on sitting and watching the Bar Harbor expresses, starting to run this week, and wondering on who's aboard, where they are going and how they can afford it. There's romance, even in this.

Conforming to an ancient ceremonial in observing the feast of Corpus Christi—commemorative of the Institution of the Holy Eucharist—there was a procession through the grounds of the St. James parish property following the high mass of Sunday of the church societies and individuals, escorting the Blessed Sacrament and the priests of the parish. Several hundred people gathered for this annual event. St. James' band did escort duty. The ceremonials were very impressive and closed with benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Sunday afternoon funeral services for Herbert Arthur Keech were conducted at the home of Mrs. Herbert C. Keech, on Hutchins street, by Rev. Walter B. Williams, of the Congregational church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Jerome Keech and Stanley Keech, brothers of the dcaed, Philip Bech, a cousin, and Albertus Briggs, of Moosup. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

An the Congregational church Sunday evening Rev. Leonard Richards, pastor of St. Alban's church, preached the Baccalaureate sermon before the members of the graduating class of Killingly High school and their relatives and friends—this service formally opening commencement week. Next Thursday afternoon the class day exercises are to be held and the graduation exercises on Thursday evening. The Alumni association reception in honor of the graduates will be held at the state armory next Friday evening.

This is a secret, and, ordinarily, nothing should be said about it. But the rule of silence is abrogated, with permission, for this occasion. A chapter of the Ancient, Honorable and Happy Order of Yellow Dogs has been organized here. The mill men did it at the Textile Products exhibit. But it will not do you a bit of good to ask any of them it—unless you want to join. Then, maybe, they will call a special session—at your expense, in expectance, at least.

PUTNAM

Through their counsel, Attorney H. Mirpn, of Putnam, Theophile Dourville and his wife, Rose Dourville, of North Grosvenordale, have brought suit against the town of Thompson, claiming that the town owes them rent amounting to $95. The summons was served on Town Clerk Dyer C. Hutt by Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer. The case, being less than one hundred dollars in amount, is returnable before Justice Percy Tourtelotte of North Grosvenordale, Thursday, June 15.

The plaintiffs allege that they let a room in a block they own to the town of Thompson for school purposes, and that the town still owes them for nineteen weeks' rent at $5 a week.

It is understood that the time for which the rent is claimed is after the town actually gave up using the room for school purposes, and that the question for the court to decide is a technical one pertaining to the giving up possession by turning over the key of the room to the plaintiffs.

Earl Moss, who has been in Putnam for several months, in the employ of the Moss Electrical company, has returned to his home at Mt. Vernon, Maine. On Friday evening, at the home of W. E. Moss, he was given a surprise by his fellow workmen, who presented him with a portable radio, as a token of their esteem. Games were played, refreshments served and a pleasant evening enjoyed. Mr. Moss' brother, Charles Moss, of Mt. Vernon, Maine, has come to Putnam and will be employed by the Moss Electrical Co.

Jerome Tourtelotte celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday, at his home on Putnam Heights, on June 13th. He is a man who has been prominent in the development of Putnam, bears a remarkable Civil war record and is probably one of the few ranking officers of the G. A. R. officers of the state.

Mr. Tourtelotte is one of the old residents of Putnam, enlisting from here at the outbreak of the Civil war and served throughout the whole conflict. Enlisting as a private at the beginning of the war, promotions gave him the rank of lieutenant colonel before he was discharged in the fall of 1865.

For thirty-four years he was the treasurer of the Putnam Savings Bank the deposits of which increased four fold during his time. Mr. Tourtelotte had been totally blind for more than thirteen years.

Officers for the ensuing year will be elected at the annual meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association to be held at the Israel Putnam school auditorium on Monday afternoon, June 15, at 3:30 o'clock.

Miss Alducie Dumas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Duman, of Providence street, who has been critically ill with pneumonia for the past two weeks, is improving. She was a member of the graduating class of St. Mary's school.

Word has been received at the Day Kimball hospital that Dr. Harold Foster, of New York, will not hold his annual clinics at the hospital this summer.

For a number of years, Dr. Foster, who is a Putnam boy, has held clinics for children and adults affected with bad tonsils or adenoids and has performed many operations at nominal charge, or, in many cases of poor children, no charge at all. He has done this while spending his vacation here. It is believed that Dr. Foster may spend his vacation abroad and not come to Putnam this summer.

John Burnett, for the past three years superintendent of the Putnam Woolen company, has resigned his position, taking effect Saturday. Mr. Burnett leaves Putnam to take a position with a larger mill at Pittsfield, Mass.

Robert Wilson, who has been a teamster for the same company for the past thirty years, has resigned because of ill health. Mr. Wilson will visit his son at Danielson and take a well earned rest.

Miss Ruth Gallivan, of Boston, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Baker, of Cottage street.

Mrs. Yvonne Fisher, who has been in training at the hospital in Milford, Mass., graduated last evening.

More than 100 boys have already enrolled for Camp Woodstock and more registrations are coming in every day. The camp is equipped to accommodate 130 boys at one time. Applications will be given consideration in the order in which they are received at the county Y. M. C. A. office.

The new camp dining hall is nearing completion and the new sleeping quarters will be ready for occupancy for the opening of camp. Tennis enthusiasts will be glad to learn that two new tennis courts are being provided with excellent playing surfaces. A new water and sewerage system is being installed which will insure the health and sanitation of the camp. The new athletic field is under construction, and will consist of a baseball diamond surrounded by one-eighth mile running track with a hundred-yard straight-away on one-side. These and many other new and excellent features will greet Woodstockites upon their arrival at camp this year. A cup is again being offered as an award for the highest all around efficiency and development in camp life.

A shower was given last week to Miss Nina Lea, of Grosvenordale, by her friends. Those present were the Misses Jennie Leo, Mabel Lea, Adelposta, Vincentina Laposta, Beatrice Lafluer, Alma Swanson, Sere Lindberg, Rose Bourque, Albin Bourque, Yvonne Perron, Oro Perron, Clarice Choinier, Cecile Laporte, Mary Defilippo, Noella Mailloux, Stella Vito, Marion Bates, Berths Lacomte, Grace Lacomte, Andrea Hamel, Diana Martel, Flora Martel, Juliette Hamel, Rose Dubois, Juliette Cardinal and Mrs. Mary Farnham, Mrs. Edmond Cardinal, Mrs. Lucy Leo, Mrs. A. Leo Leo, Mrs. Defilippo and Mrs. Margaret Mailloux.

Refreshments were served and dancing and games were enjoyed throughout the evening.

Rev. George J. Donohue, paster of the Holy Trinity parish, at Pomfret will deliver a course of lectures at the Catholic summer school at Cliff Haven, New York, during the present summer. Father Donohue will speak on five successive days, giving one talk on the "Poetry of the Mass," one on "Books and their Spiritual Values" and three on "John Henry Newman."

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Andem, of Grove street, have gone to their summer home at North Beach, Hampton, N. H., for the season.

So keen is the competition between dancing teachers in London that many instructors, wearing disguises, are pupils of rivals in order to know what new steps are being taught.

Strong Soaps

No soap that is safe for toilet use will "remove" germs any better than Palmolive

If guarding a good complexion is your aim, use a soap made to protect it

There's an idea, we are told, that some soaps combat germs; and others not. That for aseptic reasons certain soaps must be used.

Soaps to "destroy" germs should be used only on advice of a physician. All soaps "remove" germs to a certain degree. No soap suitable for toilet use will "remove" germs any better than Palmolive.

In your own interest, carry that in mind. For beauty's sake, take care. Would you gamble with the good complexion it has taken you probably years to attain?

In old days, women were told, "use no soap on your faces." For soaps were too harsh. Then Palmolive came . . . a soap made of cosmetic oils . . . a soap made to protect the skin.

Women tried it, and found amazingly improved complexions and charm. Palmolive became quickly the leading toilet soap of the world. In France, home of cosmetics, Palmolive is one of the two largest selling soaps. French women have found it their ideal of a soap.

That is because Palmolive is a unique creation, based on 60 years of soap study. It is made solely for the skin.

Palmolive is not intended for laundry use or even for fine fabrics. For to be good for those things, its cosmetic qualities would need be much reduced. And millions of good complexions be thus endangered. As a "germ remover" no other soap suitable for toilet use is more effective.

But Palmolive results don't come from those other soaps. They don't come from strong soaps. They don't come from medicated soaps. Don't expect them. And don't take chances. To protect your beauty, use a soap made to protect it.

Palmolive, we frankly grant, is not the only fine complexion soap. We know of two others. But they cost you 25c, while Palmolive costs but 10 cents—no more than ordinary soaps. Enormous production brings you this modest cost.

Wash, launder, cleanse with any soap you wish. But when beauty is at stake, take care. Use Palmolive, a soap you know is safe to use. It is nature's formula to "Keep That Schoolgirl Complexion."

THE PALMOLIVE COMPANY
(Del. Corp.)

No "Two-Purpose" Soap
Will Bring
Palmolive Complexion Results

Palmolive Soap is made for ONE purpose ONLY—to guard your complexion and charm. It is not intended for laundry use, or even for fine fabrics. To make it good for those things, its cosmetic qualities would need be much reduced. And good complexions are too precious to be thus imperiled.

Don't expect Palmolive results from common soaps. Don't expect them from "jack-of-all-trades" soaps—soaps claiming to be good for scores of different uses. Palmolive is a secret blend of rare cosmetic oils, a scientifically made soap to be used freely and safely on the skin—millions of clear, pretty skins prove Palmolive results.

Soap from Trees

The only oils in Palmolive Soap are the soothing beauty oils from the olive tree, the African palm and the coconut palm—and no other fats whatsoever.

That is why Palmolive Soap is the natural color that it is—for palm and olive oils, nothing else, give Palmolive its green color!

SETTING TACNA-ARICA

It has taken Peru a long time in which to act but the approval by the Peruvian senate of the announced intention of the government to participate in the Tacna-Arica plebiscite indicates that Peru is not going to stand in the way of what promises to be a settlement of their differences regarding the two provinces.

Even though Peru was duty bound to abide by the decision and participate in the plebiscite it has displayed a reluctant spirit. It has given the impression that it should have received different treatment and that really Chile was getting the better of the award. It has not said that it would not accept the award but the manifestation of disappointment has not been hidden. Could it have refused to abide by the decision, Peru has given the impression that it was disposed to such action.

Apparently it has been convinced that in view of the fact that it agreed, before this country undertook to adjust the dispute, to abide by the decision that there was nothing else to do and the action of the senate in supporting the administration comes therefore in the natural course of events.

Under a plebiscite the future of the Tacna-Arica provinces will be decided in accord with an agreement which was entered into between the countries years ago, but never carried out. It will give the people in those provinces a chance to say under which flag they wish to go and supervision of that vote by the people will be in the hands of General Pershing.

It is perhaps inevitable that a matter which has prevented the good relationship of the nations for decades should become chronic, that decided views should be held by each side and that one should be hurt by any seeming advantage gained by the other. In the making of such adjustments it would be an unusual case for both sides to gain all they sought. It is the future relationship and the hoped for healing of a bad situation in South America that is aimed at in the forthcoming plebiscite. It is time to forget the old and to make preparations for the new. It is a time for being a sane winner and a good loser.

FLAG DAY

By proclamation of Governor Trumbull because Flag day, June 14, fell on Sunday it is to be observed today by the display of Old Glory on public buildings and by exercises in the public schools.

It is in the schools that Flag day invariably received its chief observance save by patriotic organizations, and it is in the schools that its story and its lesson can be told with a great deal of profit. The emblem of the country and its history deserve to be known and respected. It stands for the greatest nation in the world and it likewise stands for liberty and opportunity.

These words were penned by President Coolidge when he was governor of Massachusetts: "When the people of the colonies were defending their liberties against the might of kings, they chose their banner from the design set in the firmament through all eternity. The flags of the great empires of that day are gone, but the Stars and Stripes remain. It pictures the vision of a people whose eyes were turned to the rising dawn. It represents the hope of a father for his posterity. It was never flaunted for the glory of royalty, but to be born under it is to be a child of a king, and to establish a home under it is to be a founder of a royal house. Alone of all flags, it expresses the sovereignty of the people which endures when all else passes away. Speaking with their voices it has the sanctity of revelation. He who lives under it and is loyal to it is loyal to truth and justice everywhere. He who lives under it and is disloyal to it is a traitor to the human race everywhere. What could be saved if the flag of the American nation were to perish?

WARREN S. STONE

One of the outstanding figures in the labor circles of this country was Warren S. Stone, president of the locomotive engineers. He was a leader but he believed that such an organization should be conducted on business principles quite the same as other corporations. He was first and last a labor man but his ideas differed from some of the others and yet he headed one of the strongest and richest labor unions in the country.

He came to his post after long training under an equally conspicuous teacher. His judgment was recognized far beyond the limits of his organization. He was not a believer in strikes and it is said of him that he never ordered one. He believed in adjustments in keeping with the facts and through the presentation of the same he was able to get results.

His methods differed from some others and long since took the view that if other organizations could go into business for themselves it was not only possible but advisable for the brotherhood of engineers to do [illegible] on that basis, the brotherhood is now engaged in various enterprises, including coal mined and trucks representing assets of $144,000,000.

Such a ladder to be suddenly removed by death strikes a hard blow at the brotherhood, but it also means that his loss will be felt far beyond the jurisdiction of the brotherhood of engineers. And yet one who has made such a record has unquestionably prepared his organization against such an event and by the training of others in the carrying out of his policies his force as a great leader cannot however be transferred.

HEADED FOR TAX CUT

Good progress in keeping with the policy advocated so long and persistently by President Coolidge for lower taxes is to be noted in the statements of congressional leaders, which give strong indication that further federal tax reductions can be anticipated after the next congress gets settled down to business.

Secretary Mellon has been urging with his customary sound reasoning that reductions should be made and he has advocated certain changes in the present tax law to bring it about. He has not been urging any particular plan but has set forth his views in a manner to carry conviction. In these particulars he is getting general support by both republican and democratic leaders. Some would cut more and some would cut less but the general demand is for a reduction.

Senator Smoot democrat of the senate finance committee figures that there can be a cutting that will amount to $375,000,000 to $400,000,000. Secretary Mellon has been figuring that a cut amounting to the latter figure could at least be made, but the interesting spectacle is presented by certain democratic leaders in not only urging even larger slashes in the taxes but of turning right about face and urging a bigger slash in the surtaxes than Secretary Mellon has pointed out as possible and which they have hitherto been bitterly opposed to touching. They have come to recognize the wisdom of reductions here for the sake of getting money which is now tied up in non taxable securities back into industrial activity, but instead of going at it sanely they would in some instances cut the surtaxes to pre-war figures.

All this gives evidence that there is a recognition that the country has long been impressed by the stand which the president has taken for less taxes and greater economy. There are some who are eager to rush headlong into it as they were previously committed to balk. What the outcome will be is uncertain except that the indications must be regarded as highly favorable for a further reduction in federal taxes, something to which the country is entitled but which should be carried out without piling up a great deficit.

TEACHING CHILDREN

During the war there was an excellent demonstration of what each one could do in the way of making provision for himself by the home garden movement. We were lifted from the attitude of dependence in which we had been calmly basking to realize that we could do something for ourselves. Some needed the lesson, others didn't. Some have continued to benefit from it, others have considered there was no further need for the effort.

A movement of similar character has been started in New York by the National Plant, Flower and Fruit guild for the purpose of getting children interested in the planting and care of certain garden plots which have been provided for the benefit of the tenement house children. The products will be the property of the children who raise them whether flowers or vegetables, and the guild considers it an opportunity for giving some valuable lessons in patriotism and good citizenship.

Gardening is something which should be of special interest to those children who have no yards, whose life is lived almost entirely in the street and who have only a slight idea of what the cultivation of a flower or truck garden means. They will be interested in seeing things grow, watching them develop and picking the fruit. They will get a new idea of things and the part they can play in connection with them. They will become acquainted [illegible] some of the laws of nature and learn that in getting through live that much will depend upon themselves, that what they get out of it will depend to a large extent upon what they put into it.

Such experiments are in keeping with many which are made every summer, and by no means are they confined to the cities. Out in the country the youngsters are eager for their gardens, their sheep, their calves and their pigs. They are eager to emulate their elders and it is no secret that there's no better plan to encourage them in the interest they manifest. Such teachings are bound to prove profitable regardless of what avenue they may follow in later years.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Have you got your colors ready for use next Friday?

Have you cultivated the habit of of taking your hat off to the flag?

It is much too early to brag about the absence of the mosquitoes and flies.

The man on the corner says: Don't worry over the cool spell, Summer is sure to come back.

Heat waves come and heat waves go, and in spite of the tendency of the times there is no danger that they will become permanent.

If the response to the effort to cut the dead letter office expense is no better than that to the increased postal rates it will mean a call for a larger appropriation.

"I'm just the goat," says John Scopes of Tennessee fame. But he seems to like the role and the excitement.

Mexico is to have 5,000 new schoolhouses, which indicates that the republic to the south must be experiencing almost as bad a shortage in school facilities as New York City.

Put the container in hot water and it is warm. Then it will not crack it easily.

Peanut butter and cream cheese made a delicious spread for cracker sandwiches.

Rub the hands with a little salt and dry mustard to remove the odor of onion.

Ice cream freezers should never be filled more than 2-3 to allow room for expansion.

Cork the ammonia, gasoline and other bottles containing volatile substances tightly or they will quickly evaporate and lose their strength.

Before putting a pie in the oven, brush it over with milk. It will impart an inviting brown glaze.

Add a pinch of soda to the tomato before combining with the milk for tomato bisque and the mixture will not curdle.

When making meringue add one tablespoon of cold water and one-fourth teaspoon of cream of tartar to the white of egg and beat well until it stands up lightly.

If you will dip the head of a fruit jar in hot water and let it stand a minute then loosen the wire and use the point of a sharp knife under the rubber, it will open easily.

When making candy never scrape the sides of the pan or stir what has adhered down into the cooking candy. A few sugar crystals may cause the whole mixture to granulate.

When cooking such vegetables as carrots, spinach, turnips and cauliflower cook twice the amount needed for one meal. Half may be served plain the first day and the other half creamed the second day.

Leather bound books should occasionally be dusted with a slightly oiled cloth to restore some of the oil which dries out. It is especially necessary if the books are infrequently handled.

PAINT ICE BOXES YEARLY

Are there little beads of glistening moisture on the outside of your icebox? Even in the well-made refrigerator it is almost impossible to prevent "sweating." It is quite impossible to prevent a difference in temperature between the outside casing and that of the room. Consequently any moisture held in the room atmosphere is bound to condense on the outside of the box. If the refrigerator is kept well finished with varnish or shellac, this moisture is prevented from seeping into the box, causing the panels to warp, seams to open, wood to rot. This condition offers germs an opportunity to develop and causes ice to melt more rapidly.

EASY ENOUGH

After frying any spattery food wipe off the stove with an old newspaper. It will not only make the stove clean and polish better but will do away with any odor of cooking that would linger around the spattered grease.

NOT TOO HOT

Never heat paraffin to the smoking stage. It is very apt to separate from the sides of the jelly tumblers if allowed to reach a high temperature.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

If a bed in a sick room is near a window place a screen between it and the bed when the windows are open. And remember that fresh air is as necessary at night as in the daytime.

Constipation and a sluggish circulation will often show themselves in a pimply complexion. During adolescence pimples often make their appearance with apparent cause, other than the general changes that are characteristic of this period of life.

If you sleep or work in an ill-ventilated room you are bound to suffer from headache. Lack of exercise is another cause. Then you may have defective sight. The testing of your eyes followed by a fitting with suitable glasses will undoubtedly stop that headache.

In order to keep a marcel wave in place over night, twist a piece of tulle around the head, holding it in place with invisible hairpins. This is much better than the confining boudoir cap as the latter is apt to make the head perspire and in this way ruin the wave.

THE NURSERY WALLS

The walls in the playroom or nursery should be painted to be thoroughly practical. Then little fingerprints can be washed off easily and the room will always look clean. If you do not care for the plainness of the painted walls have a design stenciled around the top as a border, using designs appropriate to children.

KNITTED SLIPONS

Simplicity is the keynote of the present trend of fashions, a trend which is emphasized in the styles of the new knitted slip-ons and jumpers which have taken the place of the old-fashioned sweater and which have the air of smartness and youthfulness so much sought. Jumpers of pastel colored yarn, hand knitted in the simplest stitch and worn with tuxedo flannel or silk form a decidedly smart and convenient costume.

WAYS TO USE LEFT-OVER YARN

Unique ways to use the odds and ends of yarn left over from previous knitting are always being sought. Hand-knitted collars, sleeve bands and waistbands for a suede coat and narrow stripes which may be stitched as decoration on sports frocks of natural kasha or flannel are easily made and provide a delightful relaxation from mental activities and starin. Even simpler than this is to take the long strands of the various colors and make a knotted fringe to finish the end of a pladed scarf or kasha.

UNIQUE SCRAP BASKET

To match the screen and lampshades there are stunning scrap baskets made of quaint old-fashioned maps and lined with the empire paper which has a blue ground and gold stars.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Skirts remain short, and sleeves in all tailored dresses are long and tight.

The printed linen or cretonne coat is a welcome addition to any woman's wardrobe since it is cool and certainly attractive.

The white flannel coat has certainly swung into the first rank of favor, and there is a country-wide call for this type of coat.

Ensembles still take precedence over suits, and are featured with dresses in the same farbic as the coat rather than in contrasting color or weave.

Heretofore there has been little interest in cretonne in the sports coat; but now people in the south as well as the middle west are buying cretonne sports coats.

For midsummer wear, there are wide hats of crin banded with folds of velvet which make an admirable background for flowers in contrasting or harmonizing shades.

Slippers of satin in the exquisite shade known as rosewood are worn with stockings of the same tone and

BOLERO COMING IN

Owing to the shorter waistlines, the bolero effects are coming into more prominence for both woolen and silk costumes. These short coats, for that is effect is what a bolero is, reach only to the waistline. Many dresses now have straight backs but a bolero effect in front.

OVER HAT AND EARS

The old fashioned New England tippet, which country boys and girls of several generations ago used to wear tied over their ears in winter weather, has descended on the hats of 1925. One large capeline hat of rose-colored chiffon, for example, is trimmed with a broad ribbon, which passes from one side of the crown to the other through slits above each ear and is tied in a bow under the chin. The long ends fall over the shoulder like a scarf.

BALBRIGGAN FROCKS

Among the smartest versions of the jumper frock are those made of balbriggan which have skirts in a plain color and the upper part fashioned of a crosswise striped material. The stripes are of the candy-stick type and extremely youthful and pretty.

LAUNDRY HINTS

A little alum in the water in which you wash any cloth of bright colors will help set the color.

Obstinate rust spots may be covered with kerosene, allowed to stand some time and then scoured off.

If starch has stuck to your iron, remove it with fine steel wool or emery paper and polish off with a soft cloth.

A clothes horse on which to hang clothes after ironing is essential so that garments may be well aired and absolutely dry before storing.

All cooked starch should be used very hot. After wringing garments out of the starch they should be rubbed between the fingers so as to help blend starch and fabric.

SAVE TIME IRONING NAPKINS

Very good results as possible when napkins are ironed in the following manner. Do not sprinkle all the napkins, but dip every third napkin into clear warm water. Place this between two dry napkins, fold and roll the three together tightly. In 20 minutes they will be ready to iron and will be evenly dampened from hem to center. Next fold each napkin right side out with the hems together and iron double until dry. In this way the corners are easily kept square. If the napkins are embroidered that part of the napkin must be pressed on the wrong side first.

TIED WITH SLIPNOT

The latest method of arranging a scarf is to double it around the neck and pass the two ends through the loop where the scarf is doubled. The scarf is then drawn tightly up under one ear, and the ends allowed to fall one in front and one behind the shoulder. Most of the scarfs so fashioned are of two colors, such as gray on one side and blue on the other.

PICNIC SEASON HERE

Amusing a crowd out of doors is always comparatively simple, for they will naturally plan their own fun. Just provide a baseball bat, or some horseshoes and a stake for the men and they will entertain themselves. The women may even join in either of these games, in which case it would be wise to substitute an indoor baseball for the regular variety.

Relay races are always fun, or obstacle races where the course of smooth running is interfered with by obstacles which are placed in the path to be jumped or climbed over.

Exercise and fresh air will increase even usually healthy appetites, so that there must be quantities of food and a variety to suit different tastes.

An old fashioned lunch of baked beans, potato salad, boiled ham and tongue, deviled eggs, sliced tomatoes, rolls and pickles with pie and coffee for dessert is always enjoyed.

WHAT COULD BE BETTER

What could be more lovely than orchid rayon gauze for bedroom drapes? The same shade carried out in the bed lamp, the scarfs and so on would make a bedroom "a thing of beauty and a joy forever." Well, perhaps not forever, but at least for as long as one desired.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Women lose things 10 times as often as men.

Forty-six percent of the total working force of the men's clothing industry are women.

It is estimated that one of every 50,000 girls who aspire to stardom in the films ever reaches her goal.

A new organization, to be known as the International American Union of Woman has been formed in Washington, D. C.

An orchestra composed entirely of women and known as the American Women's Symphony Orchestra, is one of the Achievements of Mme. Elisabeth Kuyper, the famous Dutch composer and conductor.

THE NEW TOOTHBRUSH

If you will soak the new toothbrush in a glass of water overnight you will find the bristles will not come out so easily and the brush will therefore last much longer.

LET THE WATER RUN OUT

Brushes should be dried with the bristles turned downward, so the water will not soak into the back of the brushes and loosen the bristles.

RECIPES

Candied Orange Peel: When peeling the orange cut the rind into quarters, then cut into long thin strips. Put into a pan, cover with cold water, bring to the boiling point and drain. Allow one and a half cups of granulated sugar and a cup of water to six oranges; put this into a granite pan and bring to a rapid boiling point. Add the orange peel and boil down quickly. When the syrup is almost cooked away, take the pan off the fire and put in a cup of granulated sugar [illegible] until almost cold, separate strips and lay on a platter to cool.

Flaky Pastry: Into an earthen mixing bowl sift two cups of pastry flour, 1-2 teaspoon of baking powder (this may be omitted) and 1-2 teaspoon of salt. With the tips of fingers lightly rub in 1-2 cup of lard, add cold water, a few drops at a time until the mixture is of the right consistency to roll. Turn on a lightly floured board or canvass cover and roll into a rectangular sheet, dot over with bits of creamed butter, using two and one-half tablespoons of butter. Roll over and over like jelly roll, stand on end and pat and roll out again and dot over with two and one-half tablespoons of butter; again roll and chill on ice. Then use as other pastry. This is sufficient for one large pie with two crusts. The left-over trimmings make excellent cheese straws.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Porter J. McCumber, who has been appointed to the International Joint commission by President Coolidge, is well known to the public by reason of his long service in the United States senate as one of the representatives from North Dakota. A native of Illinois, Mr. McCumber, after a public school education, found his way to the law school of the University of Michigan, and was graduated in 1880. After receiving his diploma he went west and settled in Dakota to practice law, entered politics, was elected to the lower house of the territorial legislature, and after the admission of North Dakota to statehood served as state's attorney, or attorney-general. He was elected to the United States senate in 1899 and during his four terms of service he came to be looked upon, in a way, as a spokesman for the rural voter of the upper Mississippi valley.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Freedom of Speech

Mr. Editor:—Will you kindly grant me a little space in your paper, to express the legal side of a much talked of subject viz. "The Freedom of Speech guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States." Much has been said and written on this subject, and to our mind most of it has been very blind and misleading. While the constitution does guarantee "freedom of speech", it does not in any sense whatever, guarantee or allow inflammatory, incendiary, or criminal speech to any man or body of men, native born or foreign. A man has a right to do as he pleases, only as far as he pleases to do right, and our laws are put in out statutes (or "books of law") to determine the act. The only "true freedom" is that which is protected. The worst curse ridden country of all time is the Russia of today, yet there are those in this country who are working day and night for a like condition here in the United States. Eternal vigilance and the enforcing of adequate laws, is the only sane and safe rule for this country to follow and continue if it would enjoy the fruits of the sacrifices of our fathers, brothers, and sons, that this nation, this grand United States of America, shall not pass into the deplorable chaotic condition of socialistic, communistic, nihilistic, anarchistic Russia of today. If the people in this country who left their own native country for their country's good, and to the detriment of this country, who held ideas and desires antagonistic to the laws of this country, were honest, they would immediately flee to Russia as their Garden of Eden were as it exists today it is the deformed disgusting product of their diseased minds.

Death Doth Creep In

It was along toward the end of the session of the legislature that Henry picked up his morning paper off the doorstep and stood reading it a few minutes before going in. A rather illiterate neighbor happened along at that moment and as Henry was close to the sidewalk he stopped and looked over his shoulder after saying "good morning." He read aloud, Highway Bill Killed in Legislature. Then to Henry's astonishment he exclaimed: "They's allus somebody gittin' killed, ain't they?"

Holding the Sack

While not a professional bondsman John occasionally furnishes bonds for those in trouble, but he has decided that being the good Samaritan is poor policy, especially if the party of the second part runs away and leaves the Samaritan holding the sack. Last week a fellow sought a bondsman and his appeal to John was successful. John signed his bond for $100. On asking him for a commission of $5 the fellow said he was "busted," but he agreed to trust him for the $5. Then the fellow borrowed a dollar to get something to eat. When the case came up in court the fellow was missing, the bond was forfeited and John is therefore out $106. "Wait 'till I get him," wails John.

John Hunter, the Captive, an American Mystery

A strange character appeared in the city of New Orleans in 1817. He was a young man, attractive in face and figure, with a manly bearing and a resolute way of acting, his face tanned and bronzed by exposure. He wore the picturesque, fringed clothing of a frontiersman, and walked with the lithe, erect gait of an Indian. Strangest of all, this young man spoke no English whatsoever, in appearance he was a white man like other men in New Orleans, but in speech and in manner he was an Indian. Very slowly he learned how to speak English. He lived for a while in New Orleans and then moved north to Kentucky. In those days Kentucky was a frontier state, and the west of the present United States was a region inhabited entirely by roving tribes of Indians.

The strange young man told a strange story. He said he had been living with Indians in the Western hunting regions. He said he had been told that he had been stolen by Indians when he was only a baby, and that he had been brought up by Indians and made into one of them. Some instinct had led him to find his way back among the white people, with a desire to live with them permanently.

To the people with whom he talked the young stranger, John Hunter, told fascinating stories of wild life with the tribesmen. He told of great hunting expeditions, of desperate adventures in regions few white men had even seen, and he gave lurid pictures of the daily life of American Indians. He found the means to go to England, and there he again fascinated his hearers, who were eager to know about the wild life across the sea. Every one who met John Hunter fell under the spell of his stories. People urged him to write a book in which he should tell all of his experiences with the Indians. The young man set to work, and soon brought out a book, Memoirs of a Captivity Among the Indians, a book that made its way quickly just as his writer had done.

Back in the United States, John Hunter went among the Indians once more, but now he acted in an overbearing manner and fell into many quarrels. In one of these an Indian killed him. He was then certainly under 30 years of age. A captive, uneducated, untrained to civilized life, he had been able to live but ten years in contact with his own race, and yet, without money or relatives, he had been able to master English, to make his way, and to write a book that was translated into several foreign languages.

Even in face of the fact that he included in his book much that is apparently untrue, nevertheless, his life is one worthy of note [illegible] alone was sufficiently remarkable.

POSSIBLE WOOD ALCOHOL CASE IN NORWICH TOWN

When called to arrest a man Sunday noon in Norwich Town near the witch hazel mill in the lower village, Constable Lucius Fenton decided it was more a case for the hospital than a call at police headquarters. He communicated with First Selectman William S. Murray who gave orders to have the man removed to the Backus hospital, where he was taken by Mr. Fenton. Here it was thought that his condition was serious as it took three men to carry him into the hospital as the man was partially paralized, could not walk, or see. ## FLAG DAY PLANS FOR ELKS

Liberty, Sacrifice, and loyalty were lessons from the flag which were emphasized by Rev. E. C. Dunbar, chaplain of B. G. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, in his address Sunday afternoon at the Flag Day observance conducted by Norwich lodge of Elks, No. 430, on the lawn in front of the Elks home on Main street.

The exercises were opened at 4 o'clock with concert selections by Swahn's band, which rendered the following numbers with Asa Affeld: March—Chimes of Liberty, Goldman (Leo Feist)

Overture—"Lustspiel," Beh

Idyll—The Mill in the Forest Ellenberg

Southern Songs Centuro

Finale—Auld Lang Syne

Exalted Ruler Charles W. Cassidy and the officers of the lodge conducted the Elks' ritual for flag day, speaking from a decorated platform arranged on the front steps of the home.

The History of the Flag was recited very effectively by Miss Anna Werth and the Elks' Tribute to the Flag was given impressively by Herman Bruckner, a past commander of the American Legion post. The ceremony of raising the flag on the staff on the lawn was well carried out by a detachment from the Submarine Base.

Flag Day Address

There is no question in our minds about the beauty of the flag of the United States. To our way of thinking it stands for principles, which true citizens would die to perpetuate, as indeed many have already done. Both native born and adopted sons and daughters have given up lives that "Old Glory" might always be unfurled to the breeze. To such a flag we come to pay tribute this afternoon, on a day set apart for that purpose.

On the 100th anniversary of the birth of the flag June 24, 1877 the government at Washington requested that all public buildings float the flag in honor of the day. Flag Day is one of the youngest of our national anniversaries. The first official recognition seems to have been in New York, when the governor of that state ordered that on June 14, 1897 the national flag should fly over all the public buildings. This day was chosen because on June 14, 1777 the flag of the union was formally adopted by congress in a resolution proposed by John Adams of Massachusetts: "Resolved—That the flag of the thirteen united states be thirteen stripes alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars white in a blue field representing a new constellation."

During the years that followed, the custom of flying the flag on this date spread very rapidly. Today few public buildings do not display the flag on its birthday.

As Henry Ward Beecher suggests in his well known address on the flag, "A thoughtful mind, when it sees a nation's flag, sees not the flag only, but the nation itself; and what ever may be its symbols, its insignia, he reads chiefly in the flag the government, the principles, the truth, the history, which belong to the nation."

When one sees the French tricolor, one sees France and something of herself. When one sees the united crosses of St. George and St. Andrew one sees not only the flag of Great Britain but the nation herself. How well I remember a motion picture shown in one of the army camps at which I was stationed during the World War. In it was the enemy's flag. Instantly came mutterings and hisses. Not against the flag were these feelings expressed but they were called forth by the associations it brought to the soldier-mind at that time.

This nation's flag is a banner of beauty with its stripes, its constellation of stars on a field of blue. But it is more than a thing of beauty to us. When one sees the colors he is indeed short sighted unless he sees with an inner eye the principles of living which that flag symbolizes. Its challenge to us is to keep ever sacred those principles and pass them on to posterity untarnished.

Probably the first principle that comes to one's mind is liberty. It is regrettable that so few understand the meaning of the word liberty. It would seem that many people today believe liberty to mean license, liberty to act according to one's own feelings and impulses. This is not liberty. In reality it is destruction. It may rightly be said that the flag came over in the Mayflower, but in saying it we should never forget that it came over in the hearts of the passengers. They began the experiment in liberty. The experiment succeeded, in spite of mistakes, because it was sound at the core. That same spirit must prevail today if liberty is to remain a prevailing characteristic of the nation. There must be liberty for all. However, that liberty must be protected, and only so by all citizens. It is not for this organization or that organization, it is not for this race or that race, but for all. Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon this fact. When one organization attempts to protect liberty it is usually through intolerance, and a misconception of the principle at stake. America's conception of liberty in the past has attracted many peoples to this country. She has given the liberty she promised to give. Although some have taken more than they have given in return, the majority have made their contribution to the nation and the nation is richer thereby. Liberty and democracy have been our national boasts. We must never allow these to degenerate into cant and meaningless expressions. If our flag is to continue to symbolize liberty, always there must be the spirit of liberty within the hearts of our citizens. It must never degenerate in license on the one hand or be misconstrued to mean intolerance on the other. Liberty is for the weak as well as for the strong. It often comes only as the great give but it can never be liberty if given in the spirit of almsgiving, or when received, accepted as a sample of more to come. Liberty is freedom for all. In the war of the Revolution freedom was won for all in the United States. It was this same spirit of freedom which led the young men and young women of this country into the great conflict in 1917. We must above all prevent anything being done to prejudice the freedom of the people of the United States whose foundation is the rock of liberty.

Another national characteristic our the statue of the Minute-Man at Lexfiag symbolizes is the spirit of sacrifice. Last Wednesday I stood facing ington Green. Later at the bridge in Concord I read these words of Ralph Waldo Emerson:

"By the rude bridge that arched the flood, their flag to April's breeze unfurled, here once the embattled farmers stood, and fired the shot heard round the world."

Later I saw the shaft of Bunker Hill monument rising even above the spires of the churches of old Charlestown. These brought to my mind the sacrifice which has gone into our nation's career. Sacrifice in the line of war has made record in many pages of history, elements which we all know, and need not be mentioned here.

We should never forget that a spirit of sacrifice is necessary in times of peace. Sacrifice is something which costs. We know it is the case of living as individuals, in the home, in the school, in the shop or office. It is giving for the good of the whole. The spirit developed among the early colonists when they became states. It came slowly, never-the-less is established today. Now we are attempting to solve the problem of international sacrifice. As yet our nation has not reached the place we wish it had. The problem is not yet completed and when the time comes I believe the United States will not be found wanting. When the world asks her to go one mile, she will be ready to go two. She must because her flag stands for self-sacrifice. As the late President Wilson said in 1914: "The flag for the future is meant to stand for the just use of undisputed national power. No nation is ever going to doubt our power to assert its rights, and we should lay it to heart that no nation shall ever henceforth doubt our purpose to put it to the highest uses to which a great emblem of justice and government can be put.

"It is henceforth to stand for self-possession, for dignity, for assertion of the right of one nation to serve the other nations of the world, an emblem that will not condescend to be used for purposes of aggrandisement; that is too great to be debased by selfishness; that has vindicated its right to be honored by all nations of the world and feared by none who do righteousness."

One more characteristic symbolized by our Stars and Stripes is loyalty. Loyalty is the cornerstone of Democracy. The most despised man in time of a national crisis is called a traitor. He endangers not only his companions but his country's cause. Loyalty is just as important in time of peace as in time of war. It is always the first requisite of a citizen. In any organization lack of loyalty leads to disintegration, and equally so in a democracy. There are many things in government, law and society that one can disagree with but so long as the majority rule we of the minority must be loyal to existing government, laws or rules of society. We can revolt if we wish but revolution results in destruction. Loyalty with evolution is the remedy for such conditions fostered by education.

We of today must show the same spirit of loyalty which the boys of the 16th Regiment of Connecticut Volunteers showed. This story is reported to be true. In 1862 after three days of hard fighting, this regiment was forced to surrender with the rest of the command. Just before the enemy swarmed over the breast-works that they had defended for so long, the colonel of the regiment shouted to his men to save the colors—not to let the flag fall into the hands of the enemy. In an instant the battle flags were stripped from their poles and cut and torn into small fragments. Every piece was hidden in the best manner possible.

The regiment, some five hundred strong, was sent to a prison camp where most of the men remained until the close of the war. Each piece of the colors was carefully preserved. When a soldier died his piece was entrusted to a comrade. At the end of the war the prisoners returned to their homes, each bringing his bit of star or stripe with him. All these worn fragments were patched together and the regiment colors, nearly complete, are now preserved in the State House at Hartford.

No devotion could be more simple or sincere than this. The loyalty we show for our nations ideals should never be outdone by our loyalty to the flag, else the flag can never stand for loyalty in the people of our country.

There are other characteristics, but to me these seemed the most important; liberty or freedom to all, spirit of sacrifice and the spirit of loyalty. Mr. H. G. Wells describes a scene he witnessed on a visit to Flag Day exercises in New York city. It was in a school, some of the children having been in America only a few months, and this is the oath of allegiance: "Flag of our great Republic, inspirer of battle, guardian of homes, whose stars and stripes stand for bravery purity, truth and union, we salute thee! We the natives of distant lands, who find rest under thy folds, do pledge our hearts, our lives, and our sacred honor to love and protect thee, our country and the liberty of the American people forever." This might be a suitable pledge for citizens to make as well.

Our flag can symbolize only those characteristics which are among the people of our great land. What she symbolizes depends upon her citizens.

Star Spangled Banner

The exercises closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner to the accompaniment by the band.

EIGHT GO TO PUTNAM HOSPITAL FROM CRASH

Danielson, June 14.—Eight out of ten members of two automobile parties were taken to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam early Sunday evening, after the machines in which they were riding were in a collision at Elmsville, two miles north of here.

Edward M. Powers of 47 Beaver street, Worcester, driver of one of the cars, was hurled out of his machine and landed on the hood of the other car that figured in the wreck, that of Peter Jodoin of North Main street, Danielson. Mr. Powers sustained injuries to his back and was cut and bruised. With Mr. Powers was his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bresnahan and Mr. Bresnahan's son and two daughters. Every one in his car excepting Mr. Bresnahan required hospital attention. Mrs. Jodoin riding with her husband, was seriously injured. She is cut about the face, has a possible fgreture at the bridge of the nose and probable internal injuries. Miss Blanche Jodoin, 11, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jodoin has a broken arm. Mr. Jodoin escaped without any injuries.

The accident happened shortly after a shower, but it is believed possible that something went wrong with the steering gear of the Powers car, for it suddenly shot across the road and into the path of the Jodoin machine, which was coming south. Both machines were badly damaged.

A. Pitt and Miss Alff Stevens; needles and pins, items of missionary interest; lining and padding, social hour during which refreshments were served by the social committee.

PAYS $177.74 IN COURT FOR RECKLESS DRIVING DASH

Charged with reckless driving and evading responsibility, Francis Antoniac, 21, of East Lyme and Charles Laskey, 20, of New London, were presented in the city court Saturday morning before Judge Arthur F. Libby. After an investigation it was discovered that Antoniac was the driver of the automobile in question and he was fined $100 and costs for reckless driving and $50 and costs for evading responsibility. His bill amounting to $177.74 was paid by his brother. The charges against Laskey were withdrawn.

Antoniac and Laskey were in a Maxwell touring car that was driven through Main street Friday afternoon at a fast rate of speed, estimated at about 50 miles an hour, passing to the left of the flashing beacons in the street. The machine shot by Traffic Officer Michael Carroll at the Broadway corner, in spite of the fact that the officer put his hand up for the machine to stop. Shooting around the corner into Shetucket street the machine sideswiped a truck parked by the curb on Shetucket street but kept going finally landing in Montville where the duo were arrested by the state police after making an assault on Federal Prohibition Agent Harry W. Avery of South Windham who attempted to arrest them.

Following the city court session the men were taken to Montville by state police and were presented before the Montville town court, Justice of the Peace Church on the bench. They were charged with assault and battery and with breach of the peace. Their cases were continued until Monday morning. In default of bonds Antoniac went to jail until Monday, Laskey being liberated on bonds furnished by his parents.

Religious Meeting at Norwich Jail

Sunday morning at 9: 15 representatives of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. conducted a service at the local jail. Edwin Hill, general secretary, read the scriptures and offered prayer; Hugh Kinder rendered impressively two vocal selections and Edmund A. Prentice gave a very interesting talk on the scripture, "Seek ye the Lord while He may be found, call ye upon Him while He is near." Mr. Prentice stressed the fact that he noticed that the men in the audience who had been confined there for the last few months showed signs of physical improvement, partly because they were compelled to abstain from the things that harmed their physical well being, and probably partly because of the influence of the services, but said the speaker, my concern is that you become better men in your hearts, and you can become such if you will give yourselves to Christ. You cannot count on having another opportunity, for life is very uncertain. The speaker cited two recent instances where men had talked with him as though they would live long, and told him of their plans for the future, but in a very short time they passed away. When the question was asked how many would like to begin the better life at once with the help of God, some twenty earnestly responded.

ATHLETICS AND SENATORS NOW ONLY HALF GAME APART IN PENNANT RACE

New York, June.—Subjected to a concerted attack by four western clubs, the National League standing last week underwent its most thorough shake-up of the season. Only one team,the leading New York clan —was sufficiently fortified in its position to withstand the outbreak, and even the Giants felt the tremor which shook the circuit almost from end to end.

Pittsburgh, jostling the McGraw entry after the pacemakers had been tossed undeftainly in rough voyages through Chicago and St. Louis, bludgeoned its way past hesitating Brooklyn and took second place. The St. Louis Cards, inspired by the new leadership of Hornsby, raced all the way from the cellar to fifth place; Chicago stepped from seventh to sixth position, while the Cincinnati Reds, although failing to climb more than a single peg as the result of six straight wins for the week, tonight were crowding the Robins for third.

The jamming of the western wing, resulting in nineteen victories out of twenty six starts against the invading eastern nines, found the Phillies playing heaviest. Six consecutive defeats hurled Fletcher's team from fourth to seventh place, while the Braves slumped back into the cellar and Brooklyn gave up the challenging shelf to the aggressive Pirates.

Smart pitching and timely, though not particularly heavy, hitting marked the upset. Cincinnati's staff, which turned in such an impressive series of mound performances early in the season, came back brilliantly against Boston and Philadelphia. The Corsairs were likewise favored by steady and effective hurling.

The American League was not immune from uprisings as the quake pased through the National. Maintaining a heavy batting assault on Yankee and Red Sox pitchers, the Browns led the outfits of the junior circuit with the week's best performance at four victories and two defeats. Overtaking and passing Cleveland to occupy fourth place. Detroit, still suffering from weak pitching, experienced a slight hitting slump and as a consequence sacrificed sixth place to New York.

The Philadelphia Athletics, unable to get first class pitching out of its reserve materials, could obtain no better than an even break for the week, and tonight found its advantage over Washington shaved to but half a game. Score.

CONN. AGGIES TURN TABLES ON MASS. AGGIES, 8 TO 0

Amherst, Mass., June 13—Showing a complete rveersal of form, the Connecticut Aggies white-washed the Massachusetts Aggies here this afternoon by a score of 8-0. It was the Commencement Day game at M. A. C. and the largest alumni gathering in years was present to see the contest between the rival states colleges. Yesterday, in the Commencement Day game at Storrs, the Nutmeg Aggies were defeated before their alumni, when they came out on the short end of a 4-3 score. Their victory today avened matters up, however, and the Connecticut team was easily the best nine on the field today.

George Wells, Dole's most reliable twirler, pitched the entire game today, making two games in as many days. He pitched a good game against Mass. Aggies yesterday, but weak support on the part of his teammates lost the game. He was master of the situation in every way today, however, keeping the Bay State nine in check at all times. He allowed six hits in the nine innings of play, but as they were well scattered no damage resulted. Taylor, who started on the mound for M. A. C. lasted until the sixth inning, when the Aggies fell on his offerings with vengeance, driving him from the box. Nash relieved him, but Dole's men gathered three hits and as many runs off his delivery in the three innings he worked.

Several hits were made for extra bases, Schofield contributing a circuit clout that score one man ahead of him. Score:

RIVERVIEW WINS EASY VICTORY OVER HUDSON A. C.

At the State Hospital diamond on Saturday afternoon Tony West pitched the Riverview team to an easy victory over the Hudson A. C. team of New Haven, the Riverview team taking the long end of a 6 to 2 score. The game was close during the early innings and then the Riverview team began to solve the delivery of Buckholts and they piled up their six runs.

Tony West was master of the situation at all times and pitched exceptionally good ball in the pinches. Fast fielding also helped him out of several bad holes. The visitors scored their only runs in the eighth inning. The score:

VOLUNTOWN TEAM FALLS BEFORE FAST N. L. TABS

New London, June 14—With the exception of the first inning Artie Dickson held the Voluntown nine in the palm of his hand and was invincible until relieved of the mound duty by his brother. With this fine pitching behind timely hitting, the Tabs easily defeated the visitors by an 8 to 5 score. A ninth inning rally by Voluntown was squelched by ashy fielding of the locals infield.

Voluntown took the lead from the very start when Magary opened with a double. Additional hitting and a walk brought over the three tallies. The Tabs got two of these runs back in their half of this innings when Mansfied was safe on La Chappelle's boot of his easy grounder and a double by Murphy along the third base line which went for a homer when Albert let the ball go through his legs. The Tabs were creeping up on their opponents and tied the score in the next frame with a run. The fourth frame found the locals scoring three times and putting away all doubt about the ultimate outcome of the game. The Tabs' batters found La Chappelle the mark of their ground hit balls and playing a hit and run with a man on first and third Artie Dickson helped along his own cause with a single through the vacated spot. Ed Mansfield, Bulkeley first sacker followed with a double along the third base line and two more runners scampered across the plate.

The final scoring by Voluntown came with two outs when N. Liberty shot a high fly to right field. Sheedy played a ball wrong and Liberty took third on the eror, two players scoring. The final scoring by the Tabs came in the seventh on Murphy's double to right and Hanley's prodigious blow to center field which B. Liberty just about touched with his gloved hand, the ball bouncing away for a home run.

S. Liberty on the mound for Voluntown allowed ten hits in all. The hitting of the Tabs in the pinches accounte dfor the larger part of their total. Both Dickson boys twirled good baseball, Artie retiring in the fifth to be saved for the strenuous battle the Tabs have with the Submarine Base in a City league game on Tuesday night. Score:

At the J. B. Martin diamond Saturday afternoon the J. B. Martin club took the first game of the series with the Crompton-Knowles team of Worcester, 13 to 9. Jim Murphy led the J. B. Martin team in hitting with a triple and three singles out of five trips to the plate. The fielding honors went to Krauss who accepted a number of hard chances without an error. Malloy with a double and two singles led the attack for the visitors.

YANTIC MILLS TEAM BEATS SACHEMS 9 TO 4

The Yantic Mills baseball club defeated the Sachems 9 to 4, at Duwell field Sunday afternoon before a crowd of about 300 fans. Both teams played good ball in the early innings, but Rankin, pitching for the Sachems became wild in the sixth and seventh innings which combined with numerous errors by his teammates allowed six runs to trickle across the plate. Yantic played a good game and came through with hits when needed.

The Sachems furnished a little amusement for the fans by their continual arguing against Umpire James' decisions. For Yantic Lamphere and Keeler showed some snappy baseball while Tombari and Burns were the shining lights in the otherwise gloomy playing of the Sachems. Score:

HORSES ARE ARRIVING FOR BAY STATE RACES WEDNESDAY

The Norwich Fairgrounds is an active place now as there are well over 100 horses quartered there preparing for the Bay State circuit meeting which will be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. In fact there are so many horses at the track that there is scare stable room for them all. A carload arrived Sunday and several truckloads are expected today from the Worcester track. The local sponsors of the meet are to secure tents for the housing of the horses.

The track is in excellent shape and with a little rain between now and Wednesday it should be in the best kind of shape for fast racing. The feature event of the meeting is expected to be the 2:07 event in which Margaret Spangler and Frank Manager are entered. Both of these horses will go to the Grand Circuit this season. Margaret Spangler is the horse that won the $25,000 stake race at Kalamazoo last season. Frank Manager also made good record on the major circuit last year. Another horse that must be figured in the feature event is Guesswork, a horse that lost only one race on the Bay State circuit last season.

CUBS BEAT BRAVES FOR THIRD STRAIGHT TIME

Chicago, June 14.—Chicago hammered Graham hard in the second inning, scoring six runs, and defeated Boston the third straight game, 7 to 2. Grimm of the Cubs also poled a four bagger. Score:

Stamford Team Wins Cup.

STRENUOUS DUTY FOR TRACK, DIAMOND, WATER

New York, June 14.—Two ancient sport rivals, Harvard and Yale, will settle the question of athletic supremacy between them for the collegiate year of 1924-1925 in three contests this week.

They lock in the first of the struggles tomorrow on the track at New Haven, while on the two succeeding days the annual baseball series will be staged. The final test will be on the water Friday, when crews of the two universities meet at New London, Conn.

With the Hill hosts victores in football and hockey, it will be necessary for the Cambridge athletes to win on the track, the diamond and the water to obtain a 3-to-2 advantage.

Owing to the loss of several crack athletes through illness and injuries, Harvard will be unable to enter the dual track meet at full strength. Jeff Fletcher, hurdler; Al Miller, runner; Joe Murphy, jumper; and Dolph Cheek, Javelin thrower, are a few of the stars who will not be available to Harvard in the test.

Phil Spalding of Harvard and Eddie Hermann of Yale are expected to be nominated to pitch the opening baseball game in New Haven on Tuesday. Records of the two teams indicate that they are evenly matched, and student followers believe it is highly probable that the question of supremacy will not be settled at the close of the second game on Wednesday in Cambridge. In that event, a play-off will be necessary.

Harvard undergraduates confidently look for their varsity crew to defeat Yale and end Ed Leader's period of supremacy over crimson oarsmen. Having led Pennsylvania, Cornell, Massachusetts Tech and Syracuse on the water, the Harvard boat has given Cambridge men reason for much confidence.

TAFTVILLE SPLITS EVEN IN WEEK END PROGRAMME

The Taftville A. A. baseball club split even in the week end games, winning Saturday's game with Hanover 8 to 3and losing to the Rossie team of Mystic on Sunday 6 to 4. Lloyd Jarvis pitched for the Taftville team on Saturday and although the Hanover team secured nine hits he kept them well scattered and was invincible in the pinches. Errors in the eighth inning gave the visitors their two runs. Lefty Dugas led the hitting and his triple in the fifth inning was the longest hit seen on the Providence street grounds in many years.

Lefty Dugas pitched the game Sunday at Mystic and although he outpitched Chappell costly errors prevented him from winning. He fanned 10 of the opposing batters. In this game Lefty Dugas also hit well getting a triple and a double. Duffy also hit for a triple. Next Saturday the Rossie team will play at Taftville. The scores:

EAST ENDS CLASH WITH HALLVILLE IN TONIGHT'S GAME

The twilight league will swing into its second week tonight with the East Ends facing the Hallville team tonight, Yantic playing the Centrals Tuesday, the Palace and St. Joseph's Wednesday night and the Nuggets playing the Eastern Connecticut Power team on Thursday. With the league only a week old everyone is talking twilight league and the air is full of all kinds of reports and rumore about what has happened and what is going to happen.

Dame Rumor has it that the Eastern Power Co. has cleaned house and will present an entirely new team next Thursday. Included in this will be Johnny Dwyer, the Fordham wonder, who has defeated Yale, the Army and others of the best college teams, and George Sheffott, star catcher of the Bulkeley team who also goes to Fordham next year and no doubt will be Dwyer's battery mate. Another report has it that the Palace team has signed up "Buck" Shahan, speed ball artist, and also several of the J. B. Martin players. Still another rumor says that many new faces will be seen in the East Eend's lineup tonight when they face Hallville, who it is said has gone to Baltic after new material to bolster up their team for tonight's game. Whether any of these reports are true or not will be seen during the week, but one thing is sure, and that is, that this league is going to be fast and competition keen as every team is out to win and can sign up any player at all until June 22 when every manager must present an official lineup for the remaining part of the season.

For tonight's game either Mansfield or Fuller will toe the slab for Hallville, while Harry Mills will bend them over for the East Ends. Both teams positively refuse to announce the remainder of their new men which gives cause for belief that there is some truth in the rumors floating around town.

The Hallville team won their game last week which put them amongst the league leaders while the East Ends bowed before the Nuggetts and earned themselves a berth in the cellar. What position these teams will hold in the official standing will be decided tonight.

HARVARD CREWS GUESTS OF J. P. MORGAN ON YACHT

Red Top, Conn., June 14.—(AP)—After a late start this morning, because of a heavy fog, the Harvard crews here in training for the regatta with Yale, spent the entire day cruising on Long Island Sound, the guests of J. P. Morgan on his steam yacht, Corsair.

The first point touched was Niantic bay off Black Point. Here the vessel anchored and the men were permitted to take a five-minute swim which was accepted by the entire squad. The Corsair then steamed along the east shore of Long Island below Rocky Point and then turned for home. The crews returned at 5:30 much refreshed and ready for the final test this week.

HILDA HAL WINS FEATURE EVENT AT WORCESTER TRACK

(Special to the Bulletin)

Worcester, June 14.—Only one of the three races on today's program, the final in the three days meet of the Bay State Circuit, was settled, in straight heats. That was the 2.16 pace, which was won by Prigg's Lady. The 2.22 trot went three heats before Gallant found a place at the top of the summary while the 2.12 pace went three heats, Hilda Hal winning.

While preparing to score in the first heat of the 2.22 trot, Gleaming Silk threw her driver, Gibbons, and ran away. Gibbons was unhurt. Gleaming Silk ran straight to the stables. She was uninjured and finished fourth, in the event.

Gallant winner of the 2.22 trot, was eighth in the first heat but led the field however in the next two to win the race.

Hilda Hal finished fifth in the first heat of the 2.22 pace but took the next two and the race. The Score:

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVUE.

With speculative imagination fired by the decrease in crude oil production and increasing gasoline prices, operators on the long side, after several false starts, finally succeeded in attracting a public following into the oil shares, several of which mounted to their highest levels in a year or more. Increased activity also took place in the steel and rail issues, while specialties were bid up briskly under the guidance of powerful pools.

The quick absorption of the $50,000,000 Belgian government issue, and several smaller offerings, testified to the remarkable digestive power of the bond market.

Renewal of weakness in French francs, despite the threatened use of the $100,000,000 Morgan credit to curb speculative selling of that currency, reflected the opposition to Finance Minister Caillaux's financial program, and the fear of further inflation. Demand sterling held fairly steady around the "gold export" point.

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, June 14.—Edward Hopkins, this city, and H. G. Denison, New York, were arrested at the Mago Point dance hall, Pequonnock, early this morning by State Officer M. Govers, attached to Groton barracks, charged with breach of the peace. They were released by John Turello, Skolnylas' employer, qualifying as surety on the respective bonds of the accused, who are scheduled to be arraigned before Judge Frederick Dimmock, Waterford town court tomorrow evening.

Skolnylas and Denison allege that they were arrested, without cause and that they were strictly within their rights when the state police officer took them into custody. According to Skolnylas he, and his friend, Denison, went to Mago Point during the evening in Skolnylas' car and that they later went to the dance hall where they remained some time. Shortly after 1 o'clock when Skolnylas and Denison were leaving the dance hall Skolnylas and his friend observed a stranger in Skolnylas' car attempting to start the engine. Going to the car, Skolnylas remonstrated with the fellow in the car with the result that Skolnylas seized the fellow and yanked him from the machine. Denison took issue with the stranger for entering the car and while the argument was in progress the state police officer appeared on the scene and placed Skolnylas under arrest.

Mike Ichuk will be before the police court Monday charged with a breach of the peace in having mixed things with Abe Shasha. Both are employes of the Central Vermont steamer company as freight handlers. What the cause of the trouble was is not clear, but it is certain that Shasha did not want to appear after he had secured the arrest of his alleged assailant, for he did not appear in court Saturday to tell what happened and pursue the charge he had made. So a subpoena was issued and he will be there Monday or he will take the consequences of defying the court.

The officer, however, ordered the singing and playing of music to be stopped, much to the disappointment of the gathering.

An automobile, owned and driven by Miss Marie Clark, in passing through State street, Saturday night, came to a stop on approaching Main street to avoid a machine that was leaving the curb. ## POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

To a Butterfly

I've watched you now a full half-hour,
Self-poised upon that yellow flower;
And little butterfly indeed
I know not if you sleep or feed.
How motionless! not frozen seem
More motionless! and then
What joy awaits you, when the breeze
Has found you out among the trees,
And calls you forth again!

This plot of orchard-ground is ours;
My trees they are, my sisters flowers;
Here rest your wings when they are weary;
Here lodge as in a sanctuary!
Come often to us, fear no wrong;
Sit near us on the bough!
We'll talk of sunshine and of song,
And summer days when we were young;
Sweet, childish days that were as long
As twenty days are now.

William Wadsworth.

If Ever I See

If ever I see,
On bush or tree,
Young birds in their pretty nest,
I must not in play
Steal the birds away,
To grieve their mothers breast.

My mother, I know,
Would sorrow so,
Should I be stolen away;
So I'll speak to the birds
In my softest words,
Nor hurt them in any way.

And when they can fly
In the bright blue sky
They'll warble a song to me;
And then, if I'm sad,
It will make me glad
To think they are happy and free!

B. J. Robinson in Our Dumb Animals.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES

Graduation month is here and within a very few days now the schools will close for the long summer vacation. Graduation day, looked forward to with considerable anticipation, is one of the happiest days of childhood.

Commencement days will find boys and girls in industrial plants waiting with hope, will be anticipated in offices, even on the farm, many a young white wheat and it more difficult, who got ahead. Whatever your position in life, give your best and you will receive your reward. If you want to be successful men and women, aim high, shoot straight and hit the mark. Remember that the mere fact that you possess a diploma does not mean that you have absorbed all that education has to offer. As a matter of fact no one can become so highly educated that there is nothing more for him to learn. The most successful business men are continually broadening their education for there is always something new for them to learn. The successful business man has to keep abreast of the times for if he doesn't he will soon become a back number. Changes in business methods, new inventions, and improvements of all kinds are coming along so rapidly in this progressive age of ours that it is hard work to keep up with them. But the successful business man has to keep in touch with these rapid changes, he has to be wide awake, ever alert, quick to recognize and take advantage of opportunities; in fact he has to be continually "on the job" if he wants to remain successful.

In this busy, pulsing world of ours no one can stand still. He must either go ahead or else slip backward. Don't be one of those who slip backward; get on the road to success and keep going!

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Mother-Love

Dear Uncle Jed: One fine summer day in the country, as I passed a thick bush, I heard the twitter of little birds. Looking over the bush I saw a pretty sight.

There were four young birds and the mother bird. The young ones were hopping about, their wings moving, their bills open, waiting for something to eat. The mother bird had their food in her bill, and dropped it into their open mouths. To one she gave a bug, to another a fat worm, to a third a taste of fruit, and to the fourth a bit of ripe grain.

They were greedy little things. They seemed to want everything there was to eat. But their mother gave all alike. The mother love that God gives to the least animal was strong in her, and she saw that each little bundle of feathers had its share.

It was only for a short time that the mother-bird had to feed the little ones. In a very few days they grew large and strong and were able to fly and help themselves. Then no fly, butterfly, or insect of any kind was safe from these greedy young birds.

Silk

Dear Uncle Jed: Many ages ago an empress of China discovered that the very fine thread which a certain kind of caterpillar spins in making its cocoon might be woven into beautiful glossy cloth. This was the beginning of the great silk industry.

Three thousand years before Christ silk was an industry in China. The jaws in China made it a crime to carry any silkworms out of the country. In the year 350 A. D. two Persian monks that were going to Constantinople took some eggs with them in a hollow bamboo stem.

The location of countries raising silk worms are Austria, Germany, Italy, Japan, Persia, Bulgaria, China, French India, China, India, Egypt and Turkey.

In order to raise the mulberry trees, they should have a warm climate, rich soil and level surfaces. The skeins of raw silk are packed into bundles called books, which weigh from five to ten pounds apiece. New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania are silk manufacturing centers.

The uses of silk goods are for ribbons, dresses, stockings, petticoats, bloomers, kerchiefs, night caps, flags, night gowns and silk kimonas. The United States, France, Germany and Switzerland make about 4-5 of the silk goods produced by Western nations.

JAMES EDWARD SOUNTON.

Two Little Owls

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the two little owls we had at school. The boys fed them worms. They took one out of the box and I petted it. The feathers were very soft. In school time the owls would make a little noise. We had them at school from a little after nine until twelve o'clock. They had big eyes and little ears.

ELEANOR BABCOCK, Age 9.
Norwich.

Coal

Dear Uncle Jed: I decided to write to you about coal. One of the most important minerals of the United States is coal.

Coal is formed in layers or beds between other layers of rock. In some places the rock has been worn away and the coal may be seen at the surface of the earth, but in other places deep mines are dug to reach the layers of coal.

Each bed of coal consists of the remains of great numbers of plants, mostly ferns and rushes. Long ago the coal regions were lowlands, and these plants grew in the lowland swamps.

As the layers of sand over the plants hardened they became standstone. The clay hardened into shale, the swamp plants slowly changed to coal and fossil leaves or trunks of the mosses and ferns are often found in the coal.

Pennsylvania, at the northern end of the Appalachian coal field, supplies more coal than any other state in the Union. Illinois, Ohio, West Virginia and Alabama also take very high rank. The latter ranks highest among the southern states in the production of coal.

The widely scattered coal fields have greatly aided the railroads by supplying fuel for the engines.

The Patience Flower

Dear Uncle Jed: Annie and May were walking to the town. It lay four miles from their village. Each carried a basket of fruit which she hoped to sell. Annie looked unhappy. She sighed, and even grumpled. May talked brightly, and laughed and looked merry. Annie said, "How can you laugh? such heavy baskets and you no stronger than I."

"O," said May, "I slipped into my basket a tiny plant that makes it feel very light."

"That must be precious. What is it?" Annie asked, "and where can I get some?"

"If you please, it's the Patience flower," May answered, "it grows wherever you let it."

DORIS LAPRADE, Age 11.

How to Clean White Curtains

Dear Uncle Jed: When white curtains are blackened by coal, smoke, or other things soak them in cold water from twelve to twenty four hours, changing the water several times. Then put through two hot soap baths, squeezing them instead of rubbing. Rinse and put in a warm bath for half an hour, adding Javelle water to make the bath snippery. Cleaners then give them a bath and finish by rinsing in blue water. Curtains have to be rinsed in blue water. You should not soak dirty curtains in hot water to begin with, because that will turn them gray, and they cannot afterwards be bleached.

SOPHIE PLOPA, Age 12.
Norwich.

Killed a Snake

Dear Wide Awakes: I would like to join the Wide Awake circle as I like to read the letters the Wide Awakes write. Some of the letters tell about things they have done and I thought maybe you would like to hear about the snake I killed. Some of us children were walking through a field when we saw a big snake. It was last summer when I was on my vacation. The others were afraid of it but I got a big stick and hit it hard. We thought it might be a rattle snake but it wasn't. Afterwards I fell climbing over a stone wall and hurt my foot. But it wasn't hurt bad and was all right the next day. It hurt the pretty much when I did it but I got home all right.

Willimantic.

Pet Hen Died

Dear Uncle Jed: I live on a farm and my father has a lot of hens and chickens. We get lots of eggs, too. He gave me a hen last year, and I named her Annie. She got sick and then died the day after. Some girls and myself buried her in the field and I put some flowers on her grave. She was all white and knew her name when I called her. I am sorry she died, aren't you? I don't know what the matter was but my brother said it was something she ate.

ARLENE JACOBS, Age 11.
Jewett City.

Fishing

Dear Uncle Jed: Last Saturday my mother and father took me and David Goefert out fishing at Pachaug lake. We fished nearly all afternoon and then at lunch. Just as soon as we finished eating it started to rain, so we got out our coats and hats and started for home. About five minutes later it started hailing. In less than half an hour we got home. I hope you and the Wide Awakes will like my story.

JOHN WATERS, Age 9.
Norwich.

The Cave Dwellers

Dear Uncle Jed: The cave dwellers were people who lived a long time ago. They ate roots, bark and flesh of wild animals. Skins of animals were their clothing.

Before they got caves for homes they lived in the in the largest trees they could find. But after they learned to use fire they were no longer afraid to live on the ground. They made weapons of stones and bones.

They took names from wold animals and plants. I will name some of them. Brighteyes, Sharptooth, Bedo and Sharpeyes. I will end my letter now.

ETHEL ZEIDMAN, Age 9.
Jewett City.

Memorial Day

Dear Uncle Jed: Saturday, May 30th was Memorial or Decoration day. This is the day on which we decorate the graves of those who fell in the defense of our country. Fallen soldiers are patriotic heroes. They sacrificed for their country, their most valuable possession, life. We should offer prayers for those patriotic martyrs.

AURORE MARTIN, Age 11.
Danielson.

Help That Achy Back!

Is backache making you miserable? Are you constantly tired, weak, nervous and "blue?" Do you wonder why you feel so old—so utterly played out?

Have you suspected your kidneys? Your kidneys are the blood-filters. Once they fall behind in their work, there is slow poisoning of blood and nerves. Then is apt to come nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, getting up at night and other annoying or painful kidney irregularities.

Don't let kidney trouble get a firm hold. If your kidneys are sluggish, help them with a stimulant diuretic. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's act on the kidneys only. They are recommended the world over. Ask your neighbor!

HERE IS NORWICH PROOF:

HARRY HULING, 24 Avery St., says: "Backache and kidney trouble are a thing of the past with me for Doan's Pills cured me several years ago and I have never been troubled since. I give my experience in the hope that it may do someone else good to know what Doan's will do."

A SWEET SAVOR.

The perfume of the roses brings again
The throbbing joys of youth, and
Love's sweet sway;
The lilies' fragrance, mounds where we have laid
Our loved ones to await their Crowning Day.
Sweet odors as a brush will Memory use
To paint before the vision of the heart
The scenes we love and cannot bear to lose.
The scenes that we as shrines have set apart.
Today the World, full of unholy scents,
Its Heavenly vision and its faith grown dim,
Needs the sweet odor of the Christ-filled life,
A breath divine to heal its sin and strife.
The savor of love-born Benevolence,
From lives that are Remembrancers of Him.

—Amy R. Thomas, Sunday School Times.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Eastport, Me., is now running three times; the daylight, the regular or standard time, to accomodate those who have business dealings with Canada, just across the St. Croix river.

The Spanish government has assigned several warships to patrol the coasts and shoot at sight all sharks. Sharks have played havoc with the Spanish sardine industry, and, not satisfied with the fish, have destroyed nets and other paraphernalia used by the fishermen.

American tourists who have looked at sights in Australia for the last three years through tortoise-rimmed glasses, have created an active market there for American optical manufacturers. According to reports reaching Washington, tourists popularized tortoiseshell spectacles and opticians and dealers say their greatest demand is for this type of glasses. Particularly all of the glasses sold in Australia come from the United States.

Hamlin Turner obtained a box of English candy as the result of his finding a bottle of Devereux beach, Marblehead, Mass. The bottle contained a slip to the effect that the finder was entitled to a "basket of sweets," and was signed by a London, England, firm. Turner wrote and received a box of candy, which is radically different from that made in this country. No explanation was made to him as to how the bottle came there.

Choice items on the bill of fare of the animals of the London zoological gardens during the last year included 440 horses, weighing 220 tons, fed to the carnivores, 4 tons 15 cwt. codfish fed to walrus, 25 tons of herrings and whiting, 1,500 pints of shrimps, 343 gallons of fresh milk, 14,000 tins of condensed milk, 128 pounds of honey, 258 pounds of ants' eggs, 77 pounds of mealworms, 150 bunches of onions, 108 head of celery, and 213,085 bananas. The food consumed cost a year cost $50,000.

Montreal's facilities for handling grain are now unsurpassed by any port in the world, according to a statement made by Thomas W. Harvie, general manager of the port. Thirty of the port's vessel-loading berths are equipped with convey or galleries for grain, making it possible for 32 ocean vessels to be loaded simultaneously with grain at the rate of 450,000 bushels an hour. At the same time 150,000 bushels can be uploaded each hour from lake boats and another 125,000 bushels from railway cars, making a total of 720,000 bushels which can be moved in and out each hour, or 350 tons each minute.

Oxford (England) students for "elephant leg" trousers, which are considerably more loose and roomy than the bloomer effect worn by the United States navy sailors, the boys there are buying fewer clothes than formerly. Three long-established tailors' firms, one of which had been in business at Oxford nearly a half century, have gone out of business lately because, it was said, they could not make a living. The boys do not have the money boys had in other days to spend for clothes, the tailors say. The students wear knickerbockers a great deal, one or two suits for the season, and can't not afford to have a different suit for every occasion as a great many students did before the war.

Peter Calls on Little Mrs. Chipmunk

They always find the Great World glad,
Whose thoughts are good and never bad.
—Striped Chipmunk.

If any one in all the Great World finds it a glad place that one is Striped Chipmunk, and it is largely because he is himself so glad. Of all the little people in the Green Forest and on the Green Meadows none is more full of happiness than is Striped Chipmunk. His happiness is contagious. No one can go near him or see him without feeling better for it.

Perhaps it is for this reason that Peter Rabbit likes to pay Striped Chipmunk a call every so often. It was for this purpose that Peter had gone up to the old stone wall along the edge of the Old Orchard early one summer morning. It was very early, for of course Peter wouldn't want to be found there after jolly round bright Mr. Sun had climbed high up in the blue, blue sky.

But this morning Peter didn't find Striped Chipmunk. He found little Mrs. Chipmunk, who is quite as bright and lively a small person as Striped Mrs. Chipmunk," cried Peter. "Do you think it is going to rain today?"

Now, that was a silly question, because there wasn't a sign of a cloud in the sky. Mrs. Chipmunk chuckled that happy way of hers. "I never waste any time thinking about the weather, Peter Rabbit," said she. "I am quite satisfied to take the weather as it comes. People with family cares have little time to think about the weather."

Peter pricked up his long ears. "Have you family cares, Mrs. Chipmunk?" he inquired in a tone of surprise.

"Of course," replied Mrs. Chipmunk. "Who is there without family cares at this season of the year, excepting yourself?"

Peter laughed. "I haven't seen any of those family cares about," said he.

Mrs. Chipmunk's bright eyes twinkled. "Haven't you?" said she innocently.

"No," replied Peter. "Where do you keep them?"

"Where they will not bother people," replied Mrs. Chipmunk. "You see, I believe that one should keep one's cares to one's self."

"An excellent plan, Mrs. Chipmunk, an excellent plan," said Peter. "These family cares you speak of are, I trust, not too worrisome."

"No," replied Mrs. Chipmunk. "They are not too worrisome, but they are worrisome enough."

"How many of them are there?" asked Peter.

"Five," replied Mrs. Chipmunk. "And that is plenty at one time."

"I should like to see them," ventured Peter very politely.

"I should be happy to have you," replied Mrs. Chipmunk. "Come home with me and I will show them to you."

"Is it far?" asked Peter, who really was burning up with curiosity to know where that home was, for he had looked for it many times but couldn't find it.

"Not very far," replied Mrs. Chipmunk. "Just follow me and I'll show you the way."

"You don't think Striped Chipmunk would mind, do you?" inquired Peter.

Little Mrs. Chipmunk shook her head.

First Congregational School.

Impressive exercises for Children's day were held at the First Congregational church, Sunday morning, when members of the Sunday school carried out an entertaining programme of recitations and songs.

The large company of children with their leaders, and the several classes of older members accompanied by their teachers, formed in the chapel, marching to the church, where they [redacted] two groups, marching down the aisles of the church preceding on one side by the pastor of the church, Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey, and on the other side by the school superintendent, Dwight W. Avery. When seated the main body of the church was filled and many others occupied pews on either side. Another Year Has Passed Away, was the processional sung by the school.

The platform where the exercises were held was attractively decorated with a profusion of pink and white roses, daisies, dentzia, pink and white peonies, syringia, lilies, etc. This was under the direction of the flower committee of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society, Miss Doris Browning, chairman; Miss Helen Avery, Miss Louise Avery and George F. Hyde, assisted by others.

Organist Herbert L. Yerrington was in charge of the musical part of the programme. Fairest Lord Jesus, was the anthem given by the choir, Miss Bernice Underwood, soprano, sustaining the sole parts.

After the minister read the announcements of the day a hymn was given by the congregation. This was followed by baptismal service when nine little folks were baptized by Rev. Mr. Bailey. The children baptized were Arthur Prentice Browning, son of John Laird and Louella Pierce Browning; Gardiner Kent Ross, son of Frederick Guy and Florence Lois Ross; Catherine Eleanor Fellows, daughter of Imbert Franklin and Catherine Seater Fellows; Dorothy Alice Hafner, daughter of Alfred and Florence Moore Hafner; Winifred Ruth Ecclestone, daughter of Albert W. and Nellie Wheeler Ecclestone; George Edward Laskowski and Irene Silvy Laskowski, children of Otto and Alice MacConnell Laskowski, and Harold Raymond Barber, son of Charles Henry and Harriet Rathbun Barber.

At this point Miss Jennie L. Congdon told the children of the primary department a story about The Kindest Man, several pictures of His good works being shown from the platform by a number of the children, one by one, as their names were called. At the conclusion the children when asked His name, in unison replied, Jesus. Then the entire primary department went to the platform and sang a song about The Kindest Man, entitled Jesus Bids Us Shine. Rev. Mr. Bailey announced that the subject of the programme was Light. First, to represent religion which gives light to the world. Religion, as you will see, has something to do with all parts of the programme. Miss Mable Corrigeux, who impersonated The Christian Religion, conducted an exercise, Light, with the primary department with questions and answers, at first saying—The Primaries know that a lamp cannot shine without oil, or a candle without wax. They know that God our Heavenly Father gives us what we need to make our lives happy and shining. During this exercise the children sang All Things Bright and Beautiful, and God Make My Life a Little Light. This was followed by a Bible dialogue by Religion and five Juniors, Daniel Tracy, Richard McNeil, Peter Drabek, James Savage and Frank Lankewitz. An important feature of the programme was The Carriers of the Light, the parts taken by nine young men who represented missionaries and countries to which they went. A candle lighted by Religion (Miss Corrigeux) and given to each missionary was held aloft for a moment and passed to the country with appropriate remarks by missionary and replies by those who impersonated the country. The young men and what they represented were Livingstone, Lyle Johnson; Morrison, Ralph Barber; Moffat, Woodward Wheeler; Japan, Nathan Wheeler; Neesima, Irving Manning; India, Reginald Avery; Africa, Charles Barber; Carey, Kenneth Gimble; China, Frank Chapman.

The exercises closed with the song, We've a Story to Tell to the Nations. Charles Barber sang the solo parts and the other boys joined in the chorus.

Rev. Mr. Bailey gave a short Bible talk, urging the children to read and study the 139th and the 23rd Psalms, also to read in the New Testament the 5th, 6th and 7th chapters of St. Matthew, also the 13th chapter of I. Corinthians. Light Bearers of Today was characterized by four young women, Louise Avery, Dorothy Waterman, Ruth Sterry and Victoria St. Martin. These girls were each given a commission by Religion to carry The Light of the Gospel into various places of our homeland as follows: A mining camp in the mountains, on a prairie twenty-five miles from a railroad station, on a parish thirty-seven miles long, way down South, out in the country, and a foreign colony in a big city. Later in the programme the girls returned from their stations giving glowing accounts of their work and requested that they be appointed for another term.

While the offertory was taken by four small boys the choir sang Summer Suns Are Glowing. Previously Superintendent Avery said: Now we are asking you to complete this Children's day programme by making a generous offering to spread the light of religion to the many dark corners of the United States. Here is the opportunity to crown the work of your church school. Every department has shown you today what glorious light the oil of noble teachings can produce. Your share, as adults, is action. Into your lamps the oil of religion has been poured for many years. Now light the lamps for children less fortunate than your own.

Hail to the Brightness of Zion's Glad Morning was sung by the congregation and the benediction by Rev. Mr. Bailey brought the service to a close. The children in the beginners' class who took part were: Harriet Tracy, Olive Beebe, John Browning, Henry Porter, Alice Avery, Grace Cookson, Margaret Ross, Betty Browning, Ethel Pierce, Edna Pierce, Woodruff Sullivan, Robert Barber, Betty Barber, Harriet Ricker, Frank Jordon, Billy McNeil, Phillis Hinricks, Elaine Barratt, Martha Chapman, Olivia Saunders and Roberta Matison.

At the close of the baptismal service each child was presented a hot house pink rose by Rev. Mr. Bailey, the gift of a member of the parish and one who loves children.

Much credit is due Miss Marion L. Bailey, teacher of the primary department, who instructed the children, assisted by her sister, Miss Louise T. Bailey.

CONNECTICUT AGRICULTURAL GRADUATES LARGEST CLASS

Storrs, June 16.—Sixty-six men and women, the largest graduating class in the history of the Connecticut Agricultural College received degrees this morning at the forty-second commencement at Storrs. In addition, five graduate students received Master's degrees, bringing the total up to seventy-one. Commencement exercises were held before a gathering that completely filled Hawley Armory; the largest audience ever to witness a Connecticut Agricultural College commencement. President James L. McConaughy of Wesleyan University delivered the Commencement Address.

Led by Presidents Charles Lewis Beach of Connecticut Agricultural College and James Lukens McConaughy of Wesleyan, the academic procession entered Hawley Armory after marching across the campus from the main building in what was the first event on the program for the day. Next in the line came Trustees Mrs. Fred O. Vinton of Eagleville, S. McLean Buckingham of Watertown, Harry G. Manchester of Winsted and Olcott F. King of South Windsor; and the Rev. Morris E. Alling of the Storrs community church. Following in the procession came the faculty members of the college, the alumni grouped according to classes with the oldest class first, and the graduating class., Rev. Morris E. Alling opened the exercises with the invocation.

"Contentment with present attainment is the cause of all decline" were the opening words of President McConaughy's Commencement Address. Making it his theme throughout the address, the Wesleyan leader applied it to individuals, to colleges and to nations, showing clearly that as one reaches a feeling of smugness and complacency with present attainment, true progress stops.

This he illustrated by tracing the history of Egypt, Rome and Spain, three nations which accomplished much in the world's history, until they reached the point where they were well satisfied with their attainments. Then progress stopped for them, after which their decline was rapid and complete.

"The word 'good' is the enemy of the best," said President McConaughy. "We are not tempted by the thing that is obviously bad; we are tempted by good and its accompanying sense of self congratulation if we do nine-tenths of our duty instead on a hundred per cent. In it is seen the tragedy of American college life as illustrated in the pernicious phrase of 'getting by,' in which so many of our students are satisfied to do their work well instead of giving it their very best.

The senior honors, which are awarded to the three members of the graduating class who have the highest standing in their classes for the four years of their course were given to the following: First honor, Clemens J. Diemand of New Britain; second honors, Charles Arthur Matthews of Bristol; third honors, George Edgar Wells of New Milford. Prizes for these honors consist of a book suitably inscribed.

The Ratcliffe Hicks prizes for excellence in English composition were awarded to the following: First prize of $30 to Clemens J. Diemand of New Britain for the essay entitled "The General Immorality of American Business;" second prize of $20 to Catherine Ashton Welsh of Woodbridge for the essay entitled "Summer Campers;" and the third prize of $10 to Madelyn Wheeler of Mansfield for the essay, "An Article in Defense of Day Dreaming."

The E. Stevens Henry prize of $50 was awarded to John L. Breitweiser '27, of Westport. This prize is awarded annually to that sophomore, whose scholastic rank as a freshman was the highest in the class.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

At the Breed

There are thrills as well as mighty emotional climaxes in Another Man's Wife, the Producers Distributing Corporation release which had its local premiere at the Breed theater last night. Here is a picture that blends dare-devilism with the sweet portrayal of love tried and found not wanting.

Another Man's Wife, a new triumph for Director Bruce Mitchell, is a picture with a close-to-nature theme. It bares the rawness of elemental jealousy and flaunts the argument that the man-made "unwritten law" is a vehicle of justice. It tears to shreds the fabric of the circumstantial evidence and proves the value of humility in life.

Above all else, Another Man's Wife, has a cast that is admirably fitted to the wending of the humorous with the dramatic. James Kirkwood and Lola Lee, both of whom have scored in a multitude of hits, play the leads as John and Helen Brand. Matt Moore is Philly Cochran, a naturalist, and Wallace Beery is the Dutch captain of the liquor smuggling barge.

The scenes are laid in San Francisco, at sea and Manatlan, Mexico. Splendid photography adds to the charm of the numerous colorful settings and the art of the players completes the perfection of detail.

NEW HAVEN ROAD PLANS VAST OPERATION OF BUS LINES

Incorporations Papers Filed in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut For $1,000,000 Subsidiary to be Known as The New England Transportation Company—Acting on Belief That New Methods of Transportation Are Destined to Occupy a Permanent Place in the Public Service—Will Seek Right to Carry Passengers, Baggage, Freight, Mail and Express.

New Haven, June 16—Papers of incorporation have been filed by the New England Transportation company for the purpose of owning, maintaining and operating motor vehicles for the transportation of passengers, baggage, freight, mail, express and other commodities in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York, both for interstate and intrastate commerce. The authorized capitalization of the company is $1,000,000 and it is formed as a subsidiary of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company.

The directors of the company are Francis C. Coley, of New Haven; Frank A. Farnham, of Brookline; James O. Halliday, of Brookline; Eugene J. Philips, of Providence; Arthur P. Russell, of Hingham, and Benjamin I. Spock, of New Haven.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company has for some years past recognized that new methods of transportation have come into existence which are destined to occupy a permanent place in the public service. However, these methods of transportation may develop, the territory which the company serves will always be dependent for the bulk of its heavy transportation upon railroads.

Until the field to be occupied by each method has been permanently determined, the New Haven, in order to serve the public and to protect its own invested capital, must utilize to the greatest extent its own railroad and give, as far as possible, adequate transportation service over the same.

Passenger service on some lines can no longer be operated with steam locomotives except at a large loss, and so the company has been a pioneer in experimenting and looking to a less expensive method of operation. To this end it has cooperated with the manufacturers of gasoline rail cars and has substituted such cars for certain of its passenger trains for the continuation of service, which because of light travel, could only be provided for by a less expensive method of transportation.

It now has in operation twenty-five of these gasoline rail cars, and proposes to continue to develop this kind of operation. The car of last year is run by a gas engine with electric transmission and motors, permitting operation from either end without turning. This car has a capacity of 65 passengers and is the largest that has been used for this purpose. The company is arranging to buy a number of additional cars of this design, with some increase in power and capacity.

The company finds that there are some portions of its system which cannot be operated economically even by gasoline cars for passenger service, with the frequency of service desired by the public. Where such conditions exist, it is the intention of the company so far as possible, to continue to perform freight service and such passenger train or gas rail car service as may be required, and to operate over parallel highways with buses.

There are still other points on its rails between which transportation has been heretofore performed by routes that are now circuitous, compared to the distance over the recently constructed highways. It is the company's plan to consider highway bus service between certain of such points and to so handle the travel which originally used the rails.

This policy of the company is to be inaugurated and carried out with the intention of furnishing an adequate service in connection with its rail lines; to give to the public the accommodation which the demands of patrons require; and to use that form of transportation which is the most efficient, economical and best adapted to the performance of good service.

A subsidiary company has been created. Through it, the arrangements for plant and equipment will be promotively progressed; routes and service will be developed; and approval of the state commissions will be sought.

Cooperating with the passenger and transportation heads of the company, the management of the new service will to the fullest extent practicable, make it an extension of supplemental and complementary to existing service.

N. H. ROAD COMMITTEE ON INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Recently the New Haven railroad announced the organization of a committee on industrial development, with Vice-President A. P. Russell as chairman. This committee was formed to encourage and promote industrial development and expansion along the lines of the New Haven in order that the matters relating to such developments might be handled without unnecessary delay or wasteful duplication of effort.

MISS POPE TESTIFIES IN SHEPHERD MURDER TRIAL

Chicago, June 15.—(AP)—The long-awaited human interest element in the Shepherd murder trial was thrust dramatically into the spotlight late today when Miss Isabelle Pope, who waited with a marriage license while "Billy" McClintock died, took the witness stand.

Still wearing her diamond engagement ring, presentation of which the state contends, was the signal for William Darling Shepherd to administer typhoid germs to "Billy" to obtain the $1,000,000 McClintock estate, the demure young woman added her bit to the mesh of circumstances that the state is seeking to weave about the 50 year old lawyer.

Much of Miss Pope's array of accusations against the man who prevented her marriage to young McClintock was kept out by defense objections, and her story was not completed at adjournment. The Shepherds were "nice" to her, testified Miss Pope, until it became apparent that "Billy's" intentions toward her were serious.

It is the contention of the prosecution that Shepherd decided upon slaying the youth, who for 16 years had been his foster son, when he realized that marriage would deprive them of a luxurious life obtained by the guardianship of the boy and also would break the will McClintock had made upon becoming 21 years old and which named Shepherd as the chief beneficiary.

Shepherd also told her of his study of typhoid fever, said Miss Pope, and practiced duplicity in telling Billy before he lapsed into the unconsciousness which preceded his death that the presence of both the youth and Miss Pope would be necessary at the bureau for them to obtain a marriage license.

The first change in the Shepherds' attitude toward her was remarked while she was on a trip with them and Billy to Wisconsin, Miss Pope testified.

"When we were at dinner 'Billy' said to Mrs. Shepherd: 'Get down to earth; you look like you were in China'," testified the young woman.

"Mrs. Shepherd said: 'I wish I were in China. You promised to take us on a trip around the world with you when you became 21, but I never expect to go now'."

Miss Pope testified that her acquaintance with the young millionaire began while they were high school students. They became sweethearts in the spring of 1921 and had an understanding, but their engagement was not announced until July 1, 1924, their marriage being delayed because of her contract as a school teacher.

After young McClintock's return from Dartmouth college that summer they were together every day, Miss Pope stated, until he became ill in mid-winter.

The youth was taken ill while at her home, Miss Pope testified, and she drove him home, and insisted he go to bed.

That night Shepherd drove her home, she said, and told her he had given "Billy" some pills.

"He said Billy was troubled with his stomach because he did not take care of himself and always was out late."

She told of the trend of the youth's illness, until five days later she was permitted to be with him thirty minutes and forced to sit six feet away. The next day she was permitted in the room only a few minutes.

"I was very unhappy about Billy and I told Mr. Shepherd I was willing to marry Billy if it would do any good," said Miss Pope, whereupon Shepherd informed her of the necessity of the presence of both in obtaining a marriage license.

Two days later, however, after Billy had become delirious, she did obtain a license.

The young woman admitted that Shepherd had not told her the youth had typhoid until after a medical diagnosis.

Then, she added, Shepherd said:

"I have made quite a study of typhoid and germs and am relieved to know Billy has typhoid because the doctors will know how to treat it."

Shepherd told her, she said, Billy thought he might have got typhoid while in the east to attend the Yale-Dartmouth football game.

The defense started today by having another important judicial decision go against it, but virtually nullified the value of the testimony of one of the state's stars.

At the end of a two-hour argument in chambers, Judge Thomas J. Lynch ruled that the defense could not ask Dr. Amante Ringetti about his conviction for conspiracy for disposing of diplomas stolen from Marquette university at Milwaukee, Wis.

DOROTHY PERKINS TELLS COURT STORY OF CRIME

New York, June 15.—(AP)—Seventeen-year-old Dorothy Perkins will continue on the stand tomorrow in her trial for the killing of Thomas Templeton. When adjournment was taken today, the girl was in the wirst of a cross-examination ordeal, which the prosecution indicated was nearly finished.

Her fingers twitched nervously and her voice was indistinct as she took the stand, but she quickly regained her composure and answered the questions of defense counsel, Sydney R. Lash.

"When I reached the top of the stairs my father called me a name," testified the girl, describing the events leading to the final shot. "He said, 'I'll kill you' and he slapped me. My mother grabbed my father."

"Then the gun went off?" asked her counsel.

"Yes. I don't remember all that happened. I heard something like a shot. Somebody said, 'Tommy is hit.' He was carried into a room and I ran into our apartment."

The girl insisted she did not remember whether the pistol was in her hand when it exploded, and asserted that she loved Templeton then and still loved "his memory."

"I don't know whether I pulled the trigger; I don't know how the gun went off," she declared.

Dorothy told of her graduation from grammar and business school, her employment as a telephone operator, where she applied for a position the second time under the name of Dorothy Francis Connors.

She spoke in a whisper when she told of her relation with Mickey Connors, beginning when she was fifteen years old. She admitted that the relationship with him did not end then, and added she had not told her parents of the affair because she was afraid to.

"Did Mickey tell you not to?" asked Lash, referring to her first escapade.

"Yes."

Dorothy retained her coolness throughout the long day of cross examination, faltering only once when with the prosecution termed "a slip of the tongue," she testified, "my father grabbed me and then I fired." She immediately corrected the statement to say she heard a shot."

Early in the afternoon session when the prosecution introduced a letter claimed to have been written by Thomas Templeton's sister by Dorothy from her cell in Jefferson Market, the girl's head sank momentarily. Quoting a phrase which read, "I would gladly lay down my life to bring your brother to you, for I did not mean to do it," the prosecution asked her what she meant by saying, "I did not mean to do it."

"I didn't mean to lead him on," the girl answered.

LUTHER VIEWS ON A SECURITY PACT IN EUROPE

New York, June 14.—(AP)—Negotiations for security pact in Europe, such as are now in progress between Germany, France and Great Britain "seems like fumbling and uncertain strides" toward the ideal of European peace, Dr. Hans Luther, chancellor of Germany declares in an article for Foreign Affairs, a magazine devoted to international politics, made public today.

The article was written after Field Marshal Von Hindenburg became President, and is considered a reflection of the views of the present German government.

Thus far, writes the German chancellor, the formula of general disarmament, under the treaty of Versailles, "has led not to the pacification of Europe but rather in the opposite direction." Politically, he asserts, there must be evidence of a fundamental desire for peace. "It is therefore not a matter of purely European internal policy, but a matter inseparably connected with the great ideals of world economics in which the London agreement based on the Dawes plan plays such a large part, that there should now be a further effort to find new formulas to establish political tranquility in Europe."

Washington Silent On Mexican Reply

Government to Weigh Acts Rather Than Words in Determining Its Future Course.

Washington, June 15.—(AP)—Sharp language used by President Calles of Mexico in his public reply to Secretary Kellogg's warning that continued American support for his government depended on the protection of the lives and rights of Americans in Mexico, failed today to evoke any answer from administration officials here. It was made plain, however, that the Washington government would weigh acts rather than words in determining its future course.

The unusual procedure adopted by Mr. Kellogg, with the approval of President Coolidge, in resorting to a blunt public warning that the situation in Mexico City as to American interests was unsatisfactory, is now understood to have been fully debated before it was decided upon. It represents the difficulties encountered by Ambassador Sheffield in his efforts through the usual diplomatic channels to bring about satisfactory settlements in cases where American-owned lands had been expropriated or violated by squatters.

Many notes and representations have been directed to the Mexican foreign office in regard to these cases, with little evidence that they were being heeded, and it was felt that even a sharply worded direct communication, rounding up matters on the strength of the ambassador's personal report to the president and secretary of state, would have been likely to share the same fate.

Additional communications with respect to pending cases, it is understood, will be dispatched to Mexico City and will form the official basis of future conversations between embassy officials and the foreign office there. Considered in the light of Mr. Kellogg's declaration of policy, it is hoped that they will be more effective than similar representations already made.

In the meantime, Ambassador Sheffield has gone to New Haven to receive the collegiate degree which was his ostensible reason for coming home. Until he returns to his post, some observers predict, the actual results of the unheralded action of the administration in rebuking the Calles government in an official public statement may not be discernible.

Administration leaders are said to have realized that the Kellogg statement was virtually certain to call forth some such reply as President Calles made, although the language he employed may have been a little stronger than was expected, since the Washington government was seeking definite results, not merely a war of words, however, but has no present purpose of the intentions of the Mexico City authorities in the pending cases.

SUICIDE LEFT DIRECTIONS FOR HER LAY OUT IN CASKET

Paris, June, 15.—(AP)—Miss May Alice Crumpton, an American, who yesterday committed suicide while riding in a taxicab in the Bois De Bologne, left a note giving explicit directions with regard to how she should be laid out in her casket, which she had ordered and paid for before she killed herself.

"Please have a bouquet of roses, like a bride's put in my arms," the young woman requested in the note, which was addressed to the undertaker and which was opened today in an endeavor to ascertain the reason for her committing suicide.

"I want an ebony coffin, with silver handles," the note continued, "I wish to be laid out in my rose-colored satin gown, which you will find in my suitcase, and to have on my earrings and bracelet and my silver purse.

"I want my hair pinned up and arranged gracefully. I want no religious ceremony. I wish my casket to be covered with flowers, with roses predominating."

Evidently Miss Crumpton feared she might not succeed in killing herself, for in another note she said:

"If doctors are necessary, send for the two French doctors who treated me, or anyone they may recommend. I want no American doctors, nor any Americans, for that matter, to touch me."

The proprietress of the hotel at which Miss Crumpton was a guest attributes her apparent ill-feeling toward Americans to an unsuccessful operation she is said to have undergone in the United States.

Inquiry today revealed the fact that Miss Crumpton had no American friends in Paris, beyond business acquaintances. She is said to have known a certain Sargent Henri Ducloe of the French army with whom she is understood to have corresponded. It is said the dead woman has a sister, Mrs. Frank Farrell, living in Duluth, Minn.

More mail arrived for Miss Crumpton today from Washburn, Wisconsin. Another letter, which arrived was in an envelope of the Hotel Marlborough-Blenheim in Atlantic City.

The body is being held "for orders from relatives."

The total payment from Finland, $183,650 was made in cash. Hungary funded half of its third semi-annual payment of interest, and paid the other half, $14,905.69, in cash. The treasury announced that it would retire the American securities turned in on the British payment. These securities mature next September 15.

TESTIFIED IN DEFENSE OF FATHER AND HUSBAND

White Plains, N. Y., June 15.—(A. P.)—Mrs. Randolph Stelle took the stand this afternoon in the county court in defense of her father, William Macclaymont, manager of a Yonkers real estate concern and her husband, a Newark bond broker, who are charged with torturing William Holland, of Haworth, N. J., until he promised to stop paying court to Mrs. Stelle. Mrs. Stelle at that time was Miss Marion Macclaymont.

Mrs. Stelle said she was continually annoyed by Holland after her engagement was announced. Finally she said, his attentions became so obnoxious that she was forced to resign the position she had in the same office with Holland. On June 21, 1924, she said Holland threatened to write a letter to Stelle and told her the latter would not marry her after he read the letter.

City Judge Charles W. Boote, of Yonkers, and Walter B. Bell, vice president of Harris, Forbes and Co., Manhattan bond brokers, were called as character witnesses for Macclaymont and Stelle. Stelle is manager of Harris, Forbes & Co.'s Newark branch.

The state rested its case with the cross-examination of Holland, who denied threatening to write a letter to Stelle and denied striking Macclaymont prior to the alleged attack. The defendants are expected to take the stand tomorrow.

Holland testified that Macclaymont lured him to his office on June 25, 1924, and that after Stelle arrived the two men overpowered him, wrapped chains around his wrists and took turns twisting them. A physician testified that the day following the assault Holland was dazed, his wrists cut and bleeding and his back, legs and arms badly bruished.

Holland identified the chain used in the alleged torture and it was placed in evidence.

PERSIA TO PROTEST TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Geneva, June 15.—(A. P.)—A protest to the council of the League of Nations is the next step on the Persian programme, Prince Arfa Ed Dowleh, head of the Persian delegation to the league assembly, declared tonight, following Persia's withdrawal today from the conference of the control of the traffic in arms.

Persia bolted the conference at the forenoon session because it had been decided to keep the Persian Gulf in the forbidden maritime zone and also to allow the right of search of Persian vessels for candlestine arms, but chiefly because this decision involved an unbearable slight to Persia's dignity and prestige.

That point was made clear by the prince in his comment this evening, when he declared that the situation might have been saved if the conference had only adopted a clause which, he averred, Great Britain herself approved before the geographical sub-committee. This was a general declaration that all nations would be treated on an equal footing in the special maritime zones.

"I was amazed that even this conciliatory formula spring from the American delegation was not adopted," the prince said. "It would have saisfied our national dignity, and Persia would no longer have objected to search." "This right of search of Persian vessels, which is practically in the hands of the British warships, means a terrific blow to our sea commerce, for it means that any suspected vessel can be forced into port, there to be kept perhaps for months, leading to complete loss of all perishable merchandise. The sub-committee originally voted for the perfect.

Prince Arfa Ed Dowleh concluded with the assertion that Persia, being possessed of rights as a member of the League of Nations, would use them by protesting to the council.

GOV. TRUMBULL SPRINGS A DEFENSE TEST IN STATE

Issued a Surprise Call at 3.30 P. M. Yesterday For Mobilization of Units of State Militiamen at 8 P. M.—Within Four Hours 80 Per Cent of the 4,160 Guardsmen Had Assembled at Various Armories, Prepared For Duty—Governor Trumbull Was Immensely Pleased With the Result.

Hartford, June 15.—(AP)—The Connecticut National Guard was suddenly mobilized at 8 o'clock tonight in response to a surprise call for defense test purposes issued by Governor Trumbull, without warning, at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. Approximately 80 per cent. of the 4,160 men in the state militia reported post haste at twenty four mobilization centers throughout the state within about four hours, prepared for duty.

It was Connecticut's part in the national defense test, which is to be observed in most other states on July fourth in conformity with war department plans. A report of the result will be telegraphed to the war department today for inclusion in the national tally on Independence Day. Governor Trumbull having notified the department nearly two weeks ago that a fair defense test could not be had in Connecticut on the holiday, with many of the men out of the state on week end vacations.

Upon leaving for home at 11 o'clock Governor Trumbull said: "I am immensely pleased with the result. Now we have had a real defense test in Connecticut which shows us what we can do in time of emergency. The men responded excellently and their spirit was fine. They were evidently just as eager to make a good showing for the state as we were. The test is all the more important because it was made without advance notice, under substantially the same circumstances that would obtain in the event of sudden need for the mobilization of the troops. Indeed, in time of national emergency, it is simpler to mobilize the National Guard because of the wide general interest which is always shown in the events leading up to the climax when the troops are called out. The people of Connecticut may well feal proud of the state's military organization."

Fire alarms, factory whistles, telephones, radios and couriers were used in different places to spread the news to the troops to report for duty. Every one of ten commanding officers had been notified by Adjutant General Cole by telephone within twenty-six minutes of the time Governor Trumbull's general order was issued.

The soldiers hurried to the armories on foot, by street cars and busses and in their own automobiles. Some did not have time to change into their uniforms. Two battalions of the 169th Infantry, reviewed by Governor Trumbull and Adjutant General Cole on the drill ground outside the state armory at Hartford in the semi-darkness at 7.30 o'clock, included members and there wearing civilian clothes.

LIQUOR SMUGGLING CASE OPENS IN JERSEY CITY

Jersey City, N. J., June 15.—(AP)—Despite the lapse of memory of one of the state's important witnesses in the retrail of 19 men indicted for conspiracy to smuggle liquor into Weehawken from Rum Row, the story of the alleged liquor trading was retold today in substantially the same form as in the first trial when the jury disagreed. Ten policemen are among the defendants.

Thomas Hegney, of the Weehawken fire department, was the forgetful witness whose numerous answers of "I don't remember" brought severe admonitions from Judge Egan and from Prosecutor Vickers. At one point the trial was adjourned for several hours to permit Hegney to examine his testimony at the previous trial in order that his memory might be refreshed.

The trial, which started two hours late because of the absence of a juror's panel on another case, got under way at noon and a jury was selected in fifteen minutes from the first seventeen men examined.

The Rev. George F. Bennett, who was the state's chief witness at the first trial, is expected to take the stand tomorrow. Yesterday he offered prayers for the acquittal of the defendants, several of whom are of his parish, in the belief that they have "learned a lesson."

15,000 KNIGHTS TEMPLAR IN PARADE IN NEW YORK

New York, June 15.—(A. P.)—Fifteen thousand white-plumed Knights Templar, in full regalia, with swords glistening inthe sunlight, marched down Fifth avenue today behind the Stars and Stripes, the black and white beauseants of the ancient templars and silken banners bearing the symbolical cross and crown. It was the crowning event of the state of New York, which formally opened today.

Visiting Templars from Washington, D. C., New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the New England states marched with their New York Praters in one of the most colorful spectacles the historic avenue has seen. It was the first time in half a century that the Grand Commandery had convened in the metropolis.

Thousands of persons were banked along the sidewalks and cheered the marchers, especially when some of the commanderies marched in fancy formation, or formed a cross, skyscraper tenants showered the paraders with confetti.

A spectacle that moved throngs of onlookers to cheers came at the reviewing stand at Central Park, when the musicians of the massed bands—some 1,500 individuals—swung down the avenue to the strains of "Onward Christian Soldiers." The Templars, with massed flags and banners followed, forty abreast. The bands were directed by Paul Whiteman, "the jazz king," who is a member of Ivanhoe Commandery of this city.

The parade was reviewed by high city and state officials, as well as representatives of the grand commanderies in this vicinity.

S., June 15.—(AP)—With troops stationed behind barbed wire entanglements in improvised shelters and batteries of searchlights sweeping the approaches to the power station at New Aberdeen, the strike affected area was quiet tonight. Scores of the striking miners of the British Empire Steel Corporation watched from a distance as the dominion troops busied themselves in converting the colliery district into an armed camp, but there were no hostile demonstrations.

MOVE FOR EVICTION OF THREAD CO. STRIKERS

Willimantic, June 15—The serving of summary process writs of eviction on former operatives of the American Thread company, who have thus far failed to remove their belongings from company owned tenements in compliance to a dispossession notice served ten days ago Saturday, marked the most recent development in the strike situation here, on the opening of the fifteenth week, Monday morning. The writs were served by Deputy Sheriffs John H. Fitts of Hampton and Addison J. Greenslit of this city and notified all persons thus served to appear before Justice of the Peace Curtis Dean on Monday, June 22, to show cause, if any, why they have not vacated the tenements. The writs were prepared by Attorney R. O. Wells of Hartford, representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers' association, on behalf of the local concern.

There are 184 tenements in the city owned by the company and up to the time of expiration of the ten day notice to vacate at midnight Saturday but sixteen of the one hundred and fifty tenants effected had removed. These families having gone to occupy tenements in other sections of the city. Twenty families who are represented by workers in the mills at present were allowed to remain in the tenements.

Five good sized tents have been installed over wood floorings and are ready for occupancy. They are located on the Capen estate plot of land just over the city line on the North Windham road and face the Natchaug river offering an ideal camping site for the summer months. Labor leaders speaking here at the mass meetings remain optimistic and continue to assure the strikers of victory. Tenants are told to remain where they are until removed in which case the tented city will be ready and if the strike continues, until fall, five room bungalows will be erected for them. Reassurance is given of the backing of the entire American Federation of Labor and the Textile Workers of America, which organizations will provide for the comfort of the tented city. The camp has been sanctioned by the Connecticut state department of health with a proviso that the sanitary regulations will be lived up to. The camp comes under the direction of Town Health Officer Dr. Frederick E. Wilcox. Strike leaders state that there is a falling off of the number returning to work weekly and that the ranks of the strikers remain firm.

Thread company officials report that the finishing department is in operation and that production is coming along in satisfactory manner. The work is being turned out by local help and families secured through the employment office in Lowell, Mass. A number of these families are occupying company tenements in the city at present.

At the mass meeting Monday morning the speakers were Edward F. Callahan of Philadelphia, Pa., Miss Mary Kelleher of Scranton, Pa., in charge of the local strike, and Horace Riviere of Manchester, N. H. Open criticism was made during the meeting of several business men in the city who have been endeavoring to have some of the strikers return to work.

He was married to Helen Holin in New York state about three years ago and came to Windham where he opened a store near Willam's Crossing. The court granted a decree on the grounds of adultery.

The last case to be heard was that of the New York Trust company vs. Edward K. Ream, the outcome of the construction of the will of the late Norman B. Ream, of Thompson. All parties interested favored the judgment of the court which was that an order be granted by the trustees of the will for the assignment asked.

In his address on Flag day from the flag decked stand in Wilcox park on Sunday afternoon, Ira Lloyd Letts, assistant United States Attorney General had for his subject; The growing communistic attitude toward individual inequalities, particularly toward inequalities in world possessions.

"Almost everywhere in the world today," Mr. Letts said, "there seems to be a growing movement to destroy that which has made our civilization possible—freedom of opportunity. We have observed the tendency to tear down the work of him who has achieved and to force all into the levelled ranks of mediocrity.

"Only a few days ago the Supreme Court of the United States held to be unconstitutional the attempt of the Legislature of the State of Oregon to compel the attendance of all children between the ages of 8 and 16 years at public schools. The act would have compelled the withdrawal of children from the innumerable other well-equipped, though privately owned, schools within the State and would have undertaken to cast all in the same educational mould. Our Supreme Court said that this effort was an unreasonable interference with the liberty of parents and guardians to direct the upbringing and education of their children.

"Again in this effort we see the peoples of one of our great States endeavoring to standardize education, to destroy the individual opportunity of the parent and child to direct their own destinies under circumstances that do not harm, but benefit all.

"This present-day tendency to level and restrict in the field of educational and religious thought is vicious and represents a cowardly fear that the truth will not prevail."

NURSES IN ATTENDANCE FOR WOMEN

Testimony of an Expert Automobile Machinist

Dear Doctor:—I was unable to perform my work as an expert machinist on account of my piles. I suffered for years and doctors told me that my only hope was to undergo an operation. I did not feel that I was capable of doing so, as I am 67 years of age, and was afraid to take ether and be operated on. I was told by another workman in my shop of the wonderful results he had obtained from being treated two weeks by electricity at your office at 85 Washington St., Hartford, Conn. I went to you immediately and, without pain, was entirely cured of my bleeding and ulcerated piles. I was not detained from my work one single hour, and now can, with pleasure, offer this testimony to other sufferers.

Respectfully yours,
JOHN T. SCHWINNING,

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM

DANIELSON

Mrs. Peter Jodoin, injured in an automobile accident at Elmville, Sunday morning, was regarded Monday as in serious condition at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam and was suffering from a severe pain in the back. Mrs. Jodoin's nose is broken in two places and she has deep gashes on the forehead and cut son the forearms. These cuts are believed to have been inflicted by broken glass, for the force of the collision threw her forward and through the swindshield, after which she fell back and onto the floor of the coupe. Blanche Jodoin, 11, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jodoin, had her broken arm attended and was brought back to her home here Monday.

Members of the party in the car of Edward Powers of Worcester that was in collision with the Jodoin machine were in some instances badly injured and will be some days before the outcome of their injuries are known. Mr. Jodoin began to feel the effects of the accident more during Monday, when he was complaining of a severe pain in the stomach, an injury probably due to his having been thrown forward against the steering wheel of his car.

Both machines were so badly damaged that there is a question as to the advisability of repairing them, the cost would be so heavy. The Powers touring car is about ready for the junk pile, so badly is it battered. It is a car that had seen several seasons of service and was of no great value prior to the accident. The Jodoin coupe has a broken and twisted frame, bent axle, crushed radiator, the engine base is broken, headlights crumpled up, windshield gone and other damage to fenders, snubbers and other parts of the car. An expense of several hundred dollars would be involved in repairing this car.

It is understood that both Mr. Jodoin and Mr. Powers carried insurance against such an accident as occurred.

Some defect in the steering equipment of the Powers machine is believed to have caused that car to swerve from the course it was pursuing and swing over into the path of the Jodoin machine. Cursory examination of the Powers car Monday showed that the steering apparatus was intact, but it may have locked and prevented the driver from directing it along any given course.

A corrected list of those in the Powers car shows that eight were riding in it—Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Powers, Michael Brosnahan, Nora Brosnahan, Agnes, Joseph, Helen and Dorothy Brosnahan. Agnes, a girl 22 years of age, is the most dangerous hurt and was in critical condition Monday. Helen and Dorothy Brosnahan are twins, 6 years of age. Helen was hurt about the head, but Dorothy escaped with a shaking up.

Riding in the car with Mr. and Mrs. Jodoin and their daughter, Blanche, was their niece, Miss Florena LaCroix. Miss LaCroix received only very minor injuries.

Even the little tots who go to bed before the chickens have lived to see the last mail train of the day leave Danielson. They can do that now by staying up no later than 6:47 p. m. All the handicaps forecasted by these new train schedule has been imposed on business, all protests, formal and otherwise, to the contrary notwithstanding.

But there is one advantage to Danielson in the new arangement. The last mail of the day arriving here at 4:47 p. m. from the north is distributed before the office closes at 6:30 p. m., the usual closing time. Prior to Monday this mail did not arrive here until after the office had closed for the day and was not available until the following morning.

It was stated at the postoffice Monday that an effort is being made to have the postoffice authorize the carrying of mail pouches on all passenger trains operated between New London and Worcester and vice versa. If this can be arranged, clerks will make up a pouch of mail on a train arriving from New York at New London at about 3:50 a. m., this pouch to arrive here on the train due in Danielson about 9:00 a. m., and which is now carrying milk, parcel post, newspapers, etc., but no passengers.

There was considerable fuming and fussing about the new schedule of trains Monday, not so much because people hereabouts want to ride on the mail over the disturbance in the mail service. One Danielson bank has filed a formal protest, citing how it is handicapped by being unable to get mail out of here, registered, after 4:27 p. m., and it is very essential that this be done.

The average man cares little about the new train arrangement unless use of the mails is customary as a daily prt of his business. He is getting his newspapers about as usual, though there are some exceptions, and he can wait for a letter as well as not in average cases.

It isn't true that "King" George Jacques has a young and spirited horse for sale; in fact, money could not buy the king's horse nor other inducement tempt him to part wit hit. For be it known that the sprightly and spirited animal that King George drives daily wherever errands call him is young and lively as well as being 34 years of age. The king has owned the horse for about 30 years and they are boon companions.

King George does not mind explaining the secret of the apparent perpetual youth of his Baby—for that's the horse's name enjoys. Baby lives largely on seafood, so the king declares, eats quahaugs and steamed clams with a relish, loves chowder and adds a few sliced tomatoes (or canned out of season) with green corn and other such things to get the proper balance of vitimines and mineral salts and calories and other such things into the diet. As to hay and grain, Baby can make a meal out of such things, but you know — it is as to having what you want when you want it.

Baby is an institution at East Killingly, where people and their domestic animals live long, have a large and pleasant outlook on life and are friendly folks to meet. King George has not decided as yet to emulate Gurdon Cady, noted resident of Central Village, who years before his death had much pertaining to a Jersey cow he had owned inscribed on his own monument in Evergreen cemetery. The king will tell you—he will be 74 on July 4th—that he is going to be here until he is at least 100 years of ages, and that he expects Baby to stay right along with him until the end. That's why it seems necessary to broadcast here that Baby is not for sale and all talk about memorials is entirely premature with these young folks that live on the hilltops of the town. Long Live The King! Long Live Baby! They're a grand young pair!

It will be something approximating a real chore for the enumerator to count up his listing of the number of automobiles that went over the Main street crossing of the New Haven road on Sunday. It so happened that Sunday, a clear and sunny day, brought the usual burden of traffic and the checkup likely will indicate that the crossing should have gate attendance at all times, day and night, as has been agitated here for more than a year.

Help yourself, Bobby

"Help yourself, Bobby," she replied. "And take some for the youngsters across the street, too, if you like."

* * *

Every growing child craves sweets. Active little bodies demand sugar. But children's candy must be pure—and they should not overeat.

Life Savers, the little candy mints with the hole (life saver shape), answer this problem in just the right way. They are chine-hard and deliciously flavored.

This means that Life Savers are eaten slowly. Children suck them to make those wonderful flavors last longer. Little tummies are not upset. And Life Savers are kind to tiny teeth.

They're safe and wholesome. You may conscientiously be generous with Life Savers for they are the ideal candy for little folks.

Six flavors are displayed at all good stores so you may help yourself: Pep-o-mint, Wint-o-green, Cinn-o-mon, Lic-o-rice, Cl-o-ve and Vi-o-let. Five cents a package.—Life Savers, Inc., Port Chester, N. Y.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The story is one of Paris in 1914. Betty plays the role of a celebrated Parisian dancer. She spends her holidays as a peasant girl on her father's farm in Normandy. Here she meets Hugh Warren, American officer. It is a case of love at first sight. Warren continues on his way up to the lines and Betty returns to Paris where she becomes involved in the French secret service.

It all happens at her cafe where is the headquarters for officers, soldiers on leave, etc. She proposes a toast to France and dashes a glass of wine into the face of one man who fails to rise. She learns later the reason as one leg has been shot away. She apologizes tearfully and he tells her that if she really wants to help her country there is another way.

So it is that Betty sets out on the trail of de Montrichard (Kosloff) a German spy masquerading as a French officer.

The picture goes on to show how Betty's clever little trick of disguising as a washerman to get possession of some valuable papers is discovered by de Montrichard. The girl is made a prisoner and the spy takes off by aeroplane to deliver his message. But Betty manages to get in touch with the Intelligence Department and a French plane sets out after him. There is a great fight in the skies.

Which wins?

Short subjects include a Bobby Vernon comedy and new kinograms.

Vaudeville Thursday, Friday, Saturday.

Chautauqua

Smilin' Thru, a delightful comedy of Allan Langdon Martin, to be given on this year's Chautauqua was first played in this country by Jane Cowl, the well known actress, and proved a distinct success in New York and throughout the country. The story is one of great human interest, full of beauty, pathos, hope, and unfolding a romance that never fails to touch the hearts of old and young. In this story of love, understanding, forgiveness, there is also a rare spiritual message that makes the play far more than a mere evening's entertainment. Grace Halsey Mills will play the leading role, supported by an unusually strong cast, including among others such prominent New York actors as Dallas Anderson, Erskine Sanford and Edward Forbes.

Dallas Anderson played with Maude Adams. He was her last I little Minister in Barrie's famous play by that name. He has been playing in London since then. He is an exceedingly able and interesting actor. Erskine Sanford was long a member of the Theater Guild, having made a great success in some of the most important Guild productions. He has been playing this winter in Shaw's Saint Joan. Edward Forbes is playing leads in a repertoire company on a South American tour. Miss Mills has just returned from Palm Beach, where she went to play a special engagement with Francis Starr. Before that are her years of experience with Ben Greet, playing at the leading universities throughout the United States; her connection with New York productions; musical and theatrical management in New York; manager of the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York (the most important and successful independent and experimental theater in this country); also her long experience in Chautauqua and Lyceum.

Palace Theatre

The Augustin Stock Company gave a very pleasing performance and scored a hit in "Almost a Hero" last night at the Palace theatre. The performance was particularly spirited and finished and a large audience was enthusiastic with appreciative laughter and applause. The play will be repeated tonight and Wednesday matinee and evening. William Augustin made the role of Sam Jones a whimsical and lovable character and it will linger pleasantly in memory. He visualized the character perfectly and his manner of speech were delightfully natural and convincing. Ruth Floyd as Mag was a constant delight. Her part is entirely different from any other that she has played here. Arthur Behrins was convincing in the role of Buck Hennessy. Bernard Peters, Conne Maslin, Nellie Grey, Joe Angel, Pearle Sadler and Herbert Brown acted their roles with ability and furnished excellent support in different parts. "Almost a Hero" is a wholesome entertainment, with the [illegible] and will [illegible]

MEXICO'S RESPONSIBILITY

When President Calles undertakes to reply to the statement made by Secretary Kellogg concerning the failure of Mexico to live up to its responsibilities and see that the rights of Americans are respected he tries to camouflage the situation by referring to the statement as an insult and a threat.

What the secretary of state of the United States pointed out was that the Mexican government had failed to give proper protection to Americans and their interests, legally acquired, and to meet its obligations such as are expected of every nation. In response to that point President Calles declares that Mexico is conscious of her international obligations and is determined to comply with them. That is something which it has apparently been impossible to get through the regular diplomatic channels. Efforts to get such an admission, or action by Mexico in keeping therewith, have apparently been most discouraging to Ambassador Sheffield.

It is evidently one of those cases where profuse promises have been made in the past to be followed by no action whatever. Such an attitude displayed over and over again soon comes to be measured for what it is. With no progress being made and with no seeming effort to get results, promises carry no conviction and create a well founded impression that the intention is just contrary to what is represented.

Mexico could have if it had desired, prevented any such statement as was made by Secretary Kellogg. It should have been eager to avoid that very thing. After all the stalling that it has done and the failure to follow up its promises by action, it is folly for it to make the claim that the threat was an insult to Mexico. That is apparently a display of the sentiment that has been experienced in trying to get Mexico to meet its obligations. All Mexico needed to do was to show some serious intention of living up to its requirements and the present situation would not have existed. It has brought it on by its own conduct.

MUSCLE SHOALS

The special commission which was named to make a careful survey of the Muscle Shoals property for the purpose of determining as experts what ought to be done with the propositions to lease the power privileges and what course should be followed in disposition of the problem has completed its task.

The commission had before it the suggestion of the war department that the plant be leased for power purposes until it could be determined what was to be done with it. The idea was that instead of permitting the entire investment to stand idle such return as possible should be gained from it. The idea of getting some benefit from the plant doesn't meet with the disfavor of the commission but it doesn't believe that anything in the way of a temporary lease should be made pending the decision of congress as to what is to be done with the property.

The commission takes the view, and it can be fully appreciated, that such corporations as might be permitted to take short leases of the property might be able to so install themselves on the property that it would prove a serious handicap to the government in disposing of it, and of course there is no telling when congress is going to come to a decision. More speed will have to be shown at the next session than has appeared in the past if it is to be in the near future.

With the commission opposed to the short lease that plan will of course be abandoned and the plant will remain as it is. Such a move will at least not provide congress with an excuse for doing nothing next winter. With the plant idle and no benefit derived from it it will be incumbent upon congress to get down to brass tacks and take action that will change the existing situation. By that time the commission should have its complete report ready for consideration with the presentation of facts which will overcome the necessity for further delay. Muscle Shoals is a big proposition but it has been hanging fire so long now that some disposition should be made of it.

SOUTH AMERICAN TRADE

Senator Jones, chairman of the commerce committee, has returned from a six weeks' tour of South America highly enthusiastic over the opportunities which exist in those countries for industrial, agricultural and commercial development, which development he points out is only in its infancy.

It was inevitable that he should feel that South America and the United States should be more closely linked. He calls attention to the fact that our methods are more modern and should appeal to them. They may learn from us better how to work out their future than from those more in the past. We need them, too, just as much as they need us."

He sets up practical impossibles of South American trade have others who have been visiting this continent. It is a common claim by those who have made tours of inspection that the countries and the United States should be more closely united and there has been a marked tendency in that direction within the past decade. Conditions over which we had no control have helped, and we have come to realize the great trade possibilities in that direction. They have long existed and have been growing but measures to get the full benefit of them were not taken till such action was almost forced upon us or until we were asked to supply the needs from that direction.

In connection with the efforts to develop South American trade it has been demonstrated that it is a case of meeting South America's requirements rather than selling it what we have. Why only in time come around to our methods which are more modern but they are apparently unwilling to break any speed laws in doing so. It is a field which must be catered to and where American wares if properly demonstrated should find a lasting outlet but it is useless to expect to instill haste in countries which have long been in the habit of taking their time and getting thoroughly acquainted before doing business.

Senator Jones is no more enthusiastic than others about the opportunities there, and when he says the United States and South America should be closer united he adds his voice to a strong sentiment that already prevails and fixes a goal which should be continually kept in mind.

PARCEL POST PACKAGES

A regulation which is to be put into effect by the postoffice department concerning parcel post matter appears to be entirely fair to the sender and promises to afford much relief to the postal service and the dead letter office. The heavy expense which is attached to the maintenance of that part of the service is under fire. It exists because of the failure on the part of the users of the mail to follow plainly and correctly address their letters and packages. It can be reduced and it should be and every person who mails a letter or parcel can do his part in bringing it about.

Heretofore there has been no guarantee required from those sending parcel post matter that they would pay for its return in case the person addressed could not be found. By the new plan the sender of a package is to be required to affix his name and address thereon as well as the name and address of the person to whom it is going. In case it cannot be delivered it will be returned and the return postage will be paid by the sender, or in case he doesn't care for its return he can relinquish claim to it in case delivery is impossible.

There is nothing fairer than that. If you want to send a bundle of magazines or papers for which you have no further use you are not required to guarantee to pay return postage if the one addressed cannot be located. You do not want them and they can be thrown away if you are so careless as to put on a wrong address. On the other hand if the goods in the package are worth recovering, possession can be regained by paying the return postage. There is no hardship involved in such a plan. Whether it will bring about any more care by those sending packages is another question. The department is of course as willing to bring back as it is to take away.

PROPERLY INCLINED

What seems to be a reaction to the effort in behalf of a federal child labor law and a move to get the state to assume its full responsibility is to be discerned in the report which has been made by the children's code commission in the state of Georgia. It is because of the conditions in southern states that there has been such strong arguments brought forth against child labor. From that part of the country have come the worst stories relative to child labor and its effect. Evidences have been seen from time to time of the purpose of southern states to correct those conditions. They have not moved rapidly but as in the case of the Georgia commission there appears to be a tendency in the right direction.

The commission which has been studying the situation in Georgia recommends a non political system of obtaining probation officers, an extension of the juvenile court jurisdiction, the elimination of exceptions to the 14 year employment law, requirement that children between 14 and 16 have certificates and prohibiting night work for children under 16 in certain establishments and requiring certificates between 16 and 18 for night work. Unless children between 14 and 16 are employed they must attend school and the compulsory school law would apply to all children up to 14.

The recommendations of the commission are encouraging, but the report does not establish the law. Whether the report will be accepted without change, or with slight modifications cannot be told until the Law makers of that state get through with it. But when a commission urges action along the lines that it does it is indicative of a change of spirit and correctly headed.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

Washington, June 16—The use of the $100,000,000 credit established by Morgan and company for the protection of the French franc will avert temporarily at least a further break in that debased currency. It is merely a make shift and Finance Minister Caillaux will have to exert all of the financial ability with which he is credited to avert a currency panic until the French people are willing to accept the inevitable and supplant their paper currency with hard money as the Germans have done.

France will undoubtedly attempt to do more financing in this country but President Coolidge has already arranged with the principal group of international money lenders that no further loans will be made until the French government arranges to meet its obligations to the United States.

Meanwhile the announcement that Belgium is preparing to send a mission to call upon Secretary Mellon and discuss refunding her loans to the American government will surprise none who is familiar with the recent financial affairs of that country. Last year Morgan and company with their associates arranged for a $100,000,000 loan to Belgium. One half of the amount was subscribed and the bankers are now preparing to float the remaining $50,000,000. An announcement to this effect will be made within the next few weeks in all probability. There is a direct connection between the announcement that Belgium is prepared to talk business with our government and the fact that Morgan and company are about to complete the loan. It is a part of the programme worked out between the white house, state department, and the international bankers.

Wherever democrats meet there is great gloom these days. They have not yet recovered from the tremendous ovation which the people of the west gave President Coolidge. Their "scouts" who watched his triumphal trip across the country have reported that no president since Roosevelt received such a whole hearted and spontaneous reception, in the very states where they had been led to believe that Mr. Coolidge was not particularly popular.

It would be interesting to know just what Messrs. Hiram Johnson, Brookhart, Norris and the other bolters think of the reception.

Unless all signs fail rubber is about to take the place of oil as the great speculative commodity. The department of commerce is working night and day in the hope of stabilizing the price but the prospects, as of the present, do not appear to be very good. Meanwhile it would be well for the public to examine with very great care any rubber "investments" that may be offered to them by a certain type of gentry who usually take advantage of such conditions.

Great Britain is about to impose a duty of 33 1-3 per cent on imports of lace. Anybody can see through that. The lace and embroidery committee of the British parliament has discovered that France is making it hot for British manufacturers, and the Baldwin Government is out for protection. The lace duty adds one more to the 6,000 odd protected articles imported into the United Kingdom. And the time for the democratic party of the United States to point to Great Britain as a splendid example of a free trade nation has gone a-glimmering. That will not help much in the political campaign of 1926, for free trade is about the only great issue on which a majority of the democrats can get together. Nor is that majority can be counted the Southern Tariff association.

Emissaries of the Russian bolsheviki have penetrated into Colombia, South American, and it is reported that they are in for a warm reception. Fortunately, emissaries of sound business preceded them by two or three years when the American commission under Professor Kemmerer, of Princeton, went there and helped place Colombia on a firm financial footing. In this task they had the whole-souled support of the Colombian congress, and the Bolsheviki are not going to be permitted to up-end that work.

It is reported from London that the Union Cold Storage company, which represents the Vestey interest in the world-wide meat trade, is increasing its capital to $60,000,000, and a struggle is looked for between British and American meat interests in Argentina. Probably if the situation were probed it would be discovered that a good part of that capitalization came from American interests, and that there is little to fear on this score. That seems to be the official view.

In 1918, a year when the United States was at war, the total payments of the States were $565,486,000, a per capita of $5.47. In 1923 the total payments of the States reached $1,230,320,000, a per capita of $11.82. The total in 1923 was $1,310,333,000, or a per capita of $11.95. It will be interesting to note the total of 1925 and what has been the effect of Coolidge economy in reducing it.

Louisiana's sugar industry, which represents an investment of $200,000,000, and on which 400,000 persons depend for a living, for the first time in a number of years looks encouraging. But the seaboard sugar refiners, who import Cuban raw sugar, are still demanding that it be made free of duty, and the Louisianans persist in voting for the party that wants sugar to come in free. Meanwhile sugar is shown as low as from 3.3 to 3.3 cents a pound. It has increased less than any other commodity.

17,000 Mile Air Trip

Sir Sefton Brancker, British director of civil aviation, returned to London recently after having completed in four months a 17,000-mile journey by air to India in which he started. The machine made the entire flight without a single mechanical breakdown. The purpose of the trip was to investigate the possibility of commercial aviation under tropical conditions. Sir Sefton declared upon his return that there should be no difficulty in crossing India by air, the route to be followed being up the valleys of the Indus and the Ganges, all flat country and where conditions were not at all bad for flying. Sir Sefton said the actual flying time of the plane was 216 hours from London to Rangoon and back. He has reported on sites for airship masts at Calcutta, Colombo, Delhi and Rangoon.

"You look awfully tired, child," Aunt Simmons told her niece. "Sit down in that big easy chair and tell me what you have been doing to make you feel."

"I'm really pretty tired," sighed her niece as she obeyed. "I have been trotting all over the world looking for a place for the Grahams to live, and it's been hard work. You see, the Grahams are people who got married a week ago and went on a short trip south. They can't afford to be gone long and Mr. Graham can't be away from the office at this season of the year for many weeks.

"George learned that they didn't know how they were going to find any place to live when they had only Sunday to look for it, so he up and told them that I am a wizard at such things and would be only too glad to help them out. George was at college with Mr. Graham and they are in the same frat, so of course he feels he ought to lend a helping hand."

"If I were you I'd make George do it," said her aunt, indignantly. "What possessed him to put it all on you?"

"Why, he didn't at all!" cried her niece. "He has been going with me on Sunday and last Saturday afternoon and once when he got time off from the office, but of course he can't go all the time. I'm glad he feels that he can call on me for things like that and I'm pleased that I've found a flat for them at last."

"Oh, so you succeeded?" asked Mrs. Simmons. "Do you want lemon in your tea?"

"Please. Yes, I succeeded," said her niece with enthusiasm. "I've found the darlingest apartment with five rooms and a large kitchen and sunshine all around and a lovely sleeping porch with no stairs coming up to it. The stairs come up inside so no one could be disturbed by the milkman and—Aunt, if any one were sleeping out there. If I hadn't had a house of my own to keep I would want to live in it myself. I just dream of my way up there and I'm absolutely—"

"Why the paper on the walls of the bedrooms is too pretty for anything and I couldn't just imagine how beautifully all that new furniture is going to fit in everywhere. You see, I happened on it by accident when I was out hunting and that seems to make it all the nicer, some way. I had a list of apartments from a real estate office and I had climbed stairs all the morning if I was worn out. I called up the house to ask the maid whether the baby was all right and give some directions about his food and then I went into a small restaurant for some lunch.

"It was a neighborhood I never was in before but really quite nice. However, the apartments weren't satisfactory and each one I went into seemed more discouraging than the one before it. I walked on and on after I finished with the list and decided I'd get on a bus and come see you, without looking at any more places today.

"I had to walk a long way to get over toward the lake shore so I took a crosstown car and got out where the conductor told me to, a street I was never on before. And there, just around the corner, I saw a sign in a window and I went in and poked around to suit myself. When I had seen it all over again I started away and came out a different door, so I was turned around and walked in the wrong direction for a long time. Then I got on the bus and came here. It is the loveliest flat!"

"I'm glad. Where is it?"

"Why, gracious!" cried her niece aghast. "I never thought to find out the name of the street it's on!"—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

William D. Mitchell of Minnesota, who has been appointed Solicitor General of the United States, to succeed James M. Beck, comes to the office with a notable record for hard work and efficiency. Mr. Mitchell has not held public office heretofore, but served both in the Spanish-American and World wars. He is a native of Minnesota and was graduated from its state university and its law. As a lawyer his reputation is well established. He has practiced law in St. Paul for nearly 30 years and his father was an associate justice of the supreme court of Minnesota. The new Solicitor General was for a number of years associated professionally with Pierce Butler, now an associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. His presence in Washington will add to the distinguished group of Minnesotans now in office there, which includes Frank R. Kellogg, Secretary of State, and Justice Butler.

"The Pants are Mine."

Little items about men's pants are a rarity, except in clothing "ads"—the only other referred to a certain small store where second hand clothing was dealt in. A customer called and picked out a pair of pants. He tried them on. They fitted perfectly and while the merchant's back was turned he bolted out of the door and down the street. Mr. Merchant caught a fleeting glimpse of him and shouted "Police! Help! Murder!"

An officer came and the owner of the pants pointed out the thief. "I'll get him," said the officer as he whipped out his gun and started in pursuit. The merchant's quick wit and correct idea of justice registered instantly as he followed behind shouting: "Shoot heem in de coat, officer, shoot heem in the coat, the pants are mine."

How People Regard Oaths

The difference between the value at time of assessment and the value in case of loss is interestingly told by a member of a board of assessors as follows: "A farmer came in and filed a damage claim for a turkey hen and gobbler that had been killed by dogs. His claim was for $50 and the turkeys had been appraised for that amount by a couple of his accomodating neighbors. I thought I'd see how valuable these birds were when the assessors were appraising them, and lo and behold this same gentleman had been assessed with 15 fowls for a total of $10. His tax schedule did not show that he had owned any turkeys but just had 15 fowls on the farm, which included the turkeys."

James Hood, the Negro Bishop

Corpses lay here and there on the battlefield. Wounded men writhed in pain. Little groups of helpers hurried from man to man, giving what aid they could. Among those who were helping was a young negro, about 30 years of age. His uniform showed that he was not a soldier but that he was a chaplain or minister. Serious-faced, kindly, with gentle hands that spoke deep sympathy, he cared for the wounded.

"Who is he?" asked a white man who belonged to another group. "Jim Hood. He's a minister, you know, to those black fellows. Poor chaps, they fought like tigers! There isn't a thing Jim Hood wouldn't do for them—and they know it."

The other man continued to watch the kindly work that the black minister was carrying on. "Minister, is he? Did he come from the South? Where'd he learn enough to be a minister?" "No, he's no southern black. He came from the north, just as you and I did, but I don't know where. All I know he's a real man."

As a boy in Pennsylvania, he had perhaps fewer opportunities to gain an education than he would have had in Virginia, and he had certainly had to work harder in order to get a living. There had been something in his nature that had prompted him to teach himself. Like Abraham Lincoln, he borrowed books and read them by a poor light after a day of work. The more he read books the more he wished to learn. Little by little, even in his poor surroundings, he was lifting himself toward better things.

Very early in his life there came to him the call to lead a religious life. Then, after he had read many books, he resolved to become a minister to his own people. He worked, read, persevered, and by the time he was 27 he fulfilled his ambition. He found his way to Nova Scotia, far from the tense feeling that was abroad in the United States in those days, and there ministered to the colored people who had taken refuge in the far north.

Then came the Civil war. Like any hero of any land, James Hood came back to his own, and went into the army to minister to negro troops. Well, long, and faithfully he served, saving lives and doing good. After the war he made his home in North Carolina, and did what he could to bring about good conditions there. He became one of the leading representatives of his people both in political and in religious life. At 31 he was made a bishop of his church and in his later days wrote several books that set forward the problems of the American negro.

Tobacco production in the Canadian provinces, Ontario and Quebec, during the last year, amounted to 18,710,740 pounds, of which 12,135,000 pounds was produced in Ontario and 6,575,740 pounds in Quebec. The value of the yield last year is placed at $4,358,892. The acreage planted to this crop totaled 21,317 from which an average yield an acre of 873 pounds was obtained.

Peter is Just as Wise as Before

Watch out for those with movements quick,
Lest they deceive you with a trick.
—Old Mother Nature.

Of course you have guessed that the five family cares of Mrs. Chipmunk were five babies. Peter Rabbit never had seen a baby Chipmunk. For that matter, very few people have. Peter had seen half-grown children of Striped Chipmunk, for then they were big enough to come out and follow their mother about. But the babies he never had seen, and so when Mrs. Chipmunk invited him to follow her to see them he was delighted. You know how curious Peter is, so he prepared to follow Mrs. Chipmunk.

Little Mrs. Chipmunk ran along on top of the old stone wall. Perhaps I should say she whisked along the top of the old stone wall. Peter hopped along just below, keeping his eyes on little Mrs. Chipmunk. Suddenly she disappeared. She had gone down between the stones in the old wall. Peter climbed up. He couldn't get very much more than his nose between those stones. You should have seen the disappointed look on his face. He hadn't a doubt that this was the entrance to the home of little Mrs. Chipmunk.

"Hurry up; hurry up. I can't wait for you all day," cried a sharp voice. There on top of a big stone further along the old stone wall sat Mrs. Chipmunk.

"Excuse me," cried Peter. "I took this for the entrance to your home, and I was wondering how I was going to get in." He jumped down and raced after Mrs. Chipmunk.

The way in which little Mrs. Chipmunk hopped in and out between the stones in that old wall was very perplexing. Could you have watched her you would have thought that she was playing a game of "Now you see me and now you don't." Peter began to suspect that. "Why don't you keep out in sight where a fellow can watch you?" he complained.

"Are you having trouble following me?" asked little Mrs. Chipmunk, her eyes twinkling. "I'm so sorry. You shouldn't be so slow, Peter. Never mind; we are most there."

Once more she disappeared between the stones of the old wall. It was down in the corner nearest the Green Forest. Peter found that this time he could get in between the stones. In fact, he had hidden in there many times. It was a place quite familiar to him. "This is funny," thought Peter. "I've been there times without number and never have seen anything that looked like the entrance to anybody's home." He looked about carefully, but saw nothing that looked like the home of any one, nor did he see Mrs. Chipmunk. "Where are you?" cried Peter; "where are you, Mrs. Chipmunk?"

"Right on my doorstep waiting for you. Do hurry, Peter," replied the voice of little Mrs. Chipmunk. But for the life of him Peter couldn't tell where it came from.

"Which way, Mrs. Chipmunk? Which way?" called Peter.

"This way," replied Mrs. Chipmunk. "This way. Hurry up, because I have got to see that those babies are all right."

Now this way didn't mean anything at all to Peter. You see, he was unable to tell from just which direction that voice came. It was very provoking. Peter began to be a little bit cross. "Why don't you show yourself where a fellow can see you?" he cried.

"Why don't you move quick enough to keep up?" retorted little Mrs. Chipmunk, and still Peter couldn't tell from just what direction that voice came. He knew that it was from somewhere under the stones of that stone wall. He popped his head out form between the stones for another look around. He was just in time to see the fanny tail of Mrs. Chipmunk whisk out of sight farther along the old stone wall. Then Peter realized that little Mrs. Chipmunk was simply playing tricks on him. She could dodge in and out of such small places that it was perfectly useless for him to even think of trying to follow her, as he should have known in the first place.

BACK'S BACK & STOPPED ACHING

I Suffered Three Years. Relieved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Paul, Minn.—"I have a little girl three years old and ever since her birth I have suffered with my back so if it were breaking in two and I had a bearing down feeling all the time. I also had dizzy spells and was sick at my stomach every month. I had read several letters from women in the newspapers and the druggist recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to my husband for me. As a result of taking it my back has stopped aching and the awful bearing-down feeling is gone. I feel stronger and do all of my housework and tend to my little girl. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for constipation. I have recommended them medicines to some of my friends and you may use this letter as a testimonial if you wish. I will be pleased to answer letters of other women if I can help them by telling them what this medicine has done for me."—Mrs. PRICE, 147 W. Summit Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota.

$5,152.30 CASH AND PLEDGES TURNED OVER TO HISTORICAL AND ART COMMISSION

The report that the sum of $5,152.30 in cash and pledges from the alumni had been raised towards the Hutchison memorial gymnasium made a particularly interesting feature for the annual meeting of the Academy Alumni association, Monday evening, at Slater hall. This is only a beginning of the responses from the alumni to the appeal to complete the fund for the gymnasium as a memorial to Professor William G. Hutchison, principal of the Academy from 1905 to 1918. The sum of $30,000 is assured through bequests that have been placed in two wills.

The largely attended reunion was opened at 8 o'clock with selections by the Academy orchestra, including a violin solo by Henry Brynan, while the graduates were gathering. Representatives from a number of the different classes acted as a reception committee under the direction of Mrs. Lucius Briggs and Mrs. Gilbert S. Raymond.

President Guy B. Dolbeare opened the business meeting about 8:30 and the minutes of the secretary, Lee Roy Robbins, were read and accepted.

Treasurer Raymond V. Congdon reported a previous balance on hand of $512.72, receipts from dues $524, interest $27.43, a total of $1,065.15. The expenditures had been $181.21, leaving a balance of $883.94. The report was accepted with applause.

The following officers were elected, as presented by the nominating committee, of which Joseph C. Worth was chairman: President, Guy B. Dolbeare; vice-president, Joseph C. Worth; treasurer, Raymond V. Congdon; secretary, George Houghton Gilman; assistant secretary, Bruce F. Rogers.

Report on Hutchison Fund.

President Dolbeare introduced Mrs. Elizabeth Brewster Davis, of the class of 1883, to make a report of the progress that had been made on the fund for the new memorial gymnasium for Professor Hutchison.

Mrs. Davis briefly reviewed the beginning of the memorial gymnasium effort, stating that the suggestion arose at the reunion of the class of 1883, two years ago. As a result of that meeting a former teacher of the Academy had placed a bequest for $10,000 in his will and another friend of the Academy had incorporated $20,000 in his will. As it was felt that something ought to be done in the lifetime of these prospective donors, the alumni between 1865 and 1885 were appealed to by letter, and the alumni association last year took up the matter, naming a committee, consisting of George Houghton Gilman, of the class of 1883, Harrison C. Noyes, Raymond V. Congdon, Miss Marion Bishop and Mrs. Davis. Through this committee the different classes have been appealed to to reach their members by letter and as a consequence of this appeal, there is now on hand $3,127.30 in cash in the bank and $2,025 in pledges, a total of $5,152.90.

Mrs. Davis said that this represents only a beginning and that there are many more classes to be heard from yet. She declared that those who had experienced the benefits of the school ought to be enthusiastic for the gymnasium plan. Other buildings had been provided as they were needed and this need of the Academy ought now to be met. The pledges made had ranged from $5,000 to $1 and she felt that it was by the comparatively small amounts that the total would be reached.

The class of 1915, which held a reunion Saturday night, had set a worthy example for others to follow by pledging $500 towards the gymnasium fund.

Mr. Congdon gave a stirring talk in which he urged immediate action by all the alumni of the school in making a response to the call for the gymnasium fund and said there was no reason why ground could not be broken for the building this summer. He spoke of the value of athletics from a number of different standpoints and said that out of the 3,000 graduates of the school there ought to be 2,000 who could give $25 apiece, which would assure the sum needed.

Upon motion of Bruce F. Rogers, it was voted that the alumni association appropriate $500 to the Hutchison gymnasium fund.

Miss Marion Bishop spoke of her satisfaction in hearing that the gymnasium was to be for the girls as well as for the boys and President Dolbeare stated that the executive committee would certainly expect to have the gymnasium co-educational just as the school is co-educational.

Upon motion of Weston C. Pullen a vote of thanks, which was taken by rising, was passed to Frederick H. Cranston and the Academy orchestra of which he is director.

It was voted to have the president appoint a committee of three to assist in securing addresses for publication of the list of graduates in the Academy catalogue, which is done every five years.

John Haslam, president of the class of 1925, which graduates this (Tuesday) afternoon, and is the largest class ever graduated from the Academy brought the greetings of his class to the alumni, and pleasantly expressed the appreciation which the members of 1925 feel for enjoying the educational opportunities which the Academy has given them.

Frank J. Murtha, Jr., spoke for the class of 1915, which held its reunion Saturday and was loudly applauded when he announced its pledge of $500 towards the Hutchison fund.

Mr. Congdon, who had attended the reunion of 1920 at the Wauregan house, spoke briefly for that class.

Principal Tirrell Speaks

In introducing Principal H. A. Tirrell, whose addresses at the alumni meetings are always eagerly awaited, President Dolbeare said that there was one class which graduated 25 years ago, with 41 members, of whom 33 are living, ten of them in Norwich, which he thought had done as much for the Academy as any class with the exception of that which numbered William A. Slater as one of its members. It had one minister and one lawyer in it, besides four teachers, and the others who had not taken up the occupation of matrimony were in business life. Three of its members are now connected with the largest corporation in Norwich and three with the Academy. He introduced Principal Tirrell who was a member of this class.

Principal Tirrell opened his talk by announcing the changes in teachers that will take place. Miss Jordan and Miss Avery are to leave the faculty to be married. Miss Greely, who has been the teacher in English is going to a school in New York state and Miss Kelly, who has been at the academy for a year, has been granted a fellowship at Yale.

The Spanish teacher next year is to be Miss Margery Walker, a graduate of Brown, Miss Flora Davidson, formerly at the Academy, will return in the English department, and Miss Grace Young, also formerly an Academy teacher, will return in the French department. A new teacher in the commercial department will be Miss Martha Jagodnik, a graduate of Simmons.

Speaking of the growth of the school, Principal Tirrell said that up to 1920 there had been 2,338 graduates, and in the last five years there had been 600 more. The school year just ending had begun with 930 students and the loss had been about 6 per cent. in the year from various causes. There are 275 taking the classical course, 65 in the scientific, 295 in the general and 289 in the commercial. The conditions that are discernible in the nation, where peoples from all lands flow together, are to be seen in the school, he said, and these pupils are doing a wonderful work for themselves. Speaking of the physical side, he said that the ideal was to have all interested and not to have a great group growing round shouldered by sitting on the bleachers while nine men get physical exercise. The gymnasium will help a lot. It is the one thing we need and we must have it.

Principal Tirrell closed with a few words of warm appreciation for the work that is done by the faculty members and was enthusiastically applauded as he took his seat.

This concluded the business meeting and the balance of the evening was enjoyed in dancing in the Academy gymnasium.

ST. JOSEPH'S PASTOR OBSERVES 25TH ANNIVERSARY

At St. Joseph's church Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock, Rev. S. A. Icieck, the pastor, celebrated solemn high mass in recognition of the 25th anniversary of his first mass. Rev. J. J. McCabe of Jewett City was deacon, Rev. Julius Jaworeck of Hadley, Mass., was sub deacon and Rev. Peter Sroka of St. Joseph's church master of ceremonies. The sermon was by Rev. Anthony Wojciesczuk of Meriden and the children's choir sang during the mass.

Father Icieck celebrated his first mass at Hilliards, Mich., in June, 1905. His first parish was at Sturgeon Lake, Minn., after which he was transferred to Duluth where he was located until the outbreak of the world war. Father Icieck then joined the Polish army, as a chaplain. Later he served in relief work in Poland under Herbert Hoover.

On returning to this country Father Icieck became editor of the Catholic Leader in New Britain, serving in this capacity for three years. He was then installed to Wallingford to organize a parish in that city and since January 15, of this year has been rector of St. Joseph's church, this city, succeeding the late Rev. I. V. Maciejewski, who for some years was rector of the church.

Since coming to Norwich Father Icieck has accomplished much in increasing activities in the parish. As a result of his interest in the parish, a new parish school, modern in every respect, is being erected opposite the church. Work on the school is progressing rapidly. New life has been instilled in the parish organizations and societies and a parish park, in the rear of the church, has been laid out and is now in use.

SEVERE ELECTRICAL STORM SWEEPS OVER NORWICH

A terrific electrical storm swept over Norwich about 11:15 o'clock Monday night accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain that flooded the streets within the space of a few minutes. The storm was of short duration but the lightning was as vivid as any experienced here this year. It was continuous and at one time flashes followed each other in such quick succession that the reflection from one had hardly died out before the sky was brilliantly lighted again.

The thunder was virtually one continuous roll, the crashes following each other in rapid succession. When the rain was at its height it was only with difficulty that one could see across the street. As far as could be learned the violent storm did no damage in Norwich, although one blinding flash and a deafening crash of thunder about 11:20 o'clock gave evidence that a bolt had struck somewhere in the center of the city. Just where the bolt spent itself is a mystery as no damage was reported. Persons on Main street report seeing a ball of lightning shoot along the wires through the street at The Wauregan house corner.

The storm was as brief as it was violent and the heavy downpour, resembling a cloudburst, stopped as quickly as it had begun. An hour later another storm, less violent, and accompanied with but little rain swept in from the West, while the previous storm which passed off to the Southeast appeared to swing around and start back again. The second storm was a much higher one than the first and the thunder was less deafening.

Numerous branches and limbs of trees were blown down throughout the city and town and a number of electric light wires were also blown down during the storm. Street lights in some sections of the city were out most of the night as a result of the storm.

MOBILIZATION CALL FINDS NORWICH UNITS READY

All officers and 79 enlisted men out of four officers and the 116 enlisted men of Battery B, and First Battalion Headquarters and Combat Train, the local units of the 192nd. Artillery, Connecticut National Guard, responded to the unexpected mobilization call Monday evening. The mobilization call was in a way expected as all national guardsmen were aware of the fact that Governor Trumbull was not in sympathy with the plans for a national defense day on the Fourth of July and would have a mobilization day of his own, but it was not anticipated that the call would come Monday evening.

At 8:36 o'clock, standard time, 18 blows were struck on the fire alarm signal, quickly followed by fifteen blows of the court house bell. This was the signal for a mobilization of the national guard at the state armory on McKinley avenue. Shortly after the mobilization call was issued, through the co-operation of Chief Howard L. Stanton of the local fire department, the guardsmen began arriving at the armory.

Battery B., Captain William R. Denison—total strength—two officers and 60 enlisted men. Present, two officers and 55 men.

First Battalion Headquarters and Combat Train, Captain Herbert R. Burdick—total strength, two officers and 56 enlisted men. Present, two officers (one reporting by telephone from New London) and 24 enlisted men.

As far as the local companies were concerned the mobilization was a success as most of those not present were accounted for. In the case of Battery B., which had only five absentees, one of these was sick and four were out of town.

EAST ENDS HAND HALLVILLE TEAM BAD BEATING IN TWILIGHT GAME

In a six inning game Monday evening, the East Ends, 1924 pennant winners, won their first game of the present season, when they defeated the Hallville nine 13 to 2. Many new faces were seen in the former's lineup, which was probably the reason for their overwhelming victory.

Harry Mills, the East Ends star twirler, was in fine form. He held Hallville to six hits, fanned nine, and walked but one. In addition to his fine box-work, Mills also scored four hits out of as many times at bat, and crossed the plate four times for his team. Fuller started the game for Hallville, but after two men had walked, and Mills had singled in the first inning, he was relieved by Butler Mansfield, who pitched the remainder of the game.

For the first two innings the game was nip and tuck. The East Enders tallied twice in their half of the first stanza on three walks, and Mills' single. Hallville scored one run in the second on Charon's single to right and Dilworth's two-base hit to left. In the third they tied the score on an error, a hit batsman, and a one-base hit by Mulholland.

ever disappeared in the last half of the third, when the East Ends went on a batting rampage. During this inning, fourteen men stepped to the plate, and before the smoke had cleared, eight hits had been made and ten runs scored.

Normandin opened the inning by getting hit by a pitched ball, and was sacrificed to second by Rot Leonard. Mills doubled to left, scoring Normandin, and crossed the plate himself on Bill Austin's single to right. Tim Coughlin shot a one base hit between second and third, Austin going to second. Jimmy Murphy then cleaned the bases with a home run to deep center. LeBlanc was given a free ticket to first, stole second, but was caught at third, Dilworth to Boyd. Ellsworth and Hamel also walked, and Normandin scored the former on a single to center. Leonard scored Hamel on a single to right. Mills then made his second hit of the inning, a one-base hit to left, and Leonard and Normandin checked in at home-plate. Austin's single to right scored Mills with the tenth run of the inning, and to all intents and purposes the game was over. Score:

Tonight's Game

Tonight's game will find the two of the league leaders in action, at the Duwell field when Jimmy Holland's Central team faces the Yantic Mills team. Both of these teams have each won a game and tonight's fray will decide which one stays on top.

The fans that have seen the Centrals perform know that Holland has banded together one of the fastest teams in the league. With Eccleston behind the plate, Speed Gaudette on the rubber, Lefty Dugas at first, Tombari at second, Gauchier on short, Yerrington at third and Courboulis, Gero and A. Dugas in the outfield this aggregation is bound to stay up on top till during the season.

The Yantic Mills also are bound to give trouble to the other teams in the league as they also present a strong lineup, which includes Smith who hails from the Reading team of the International league. The fans who saw this boy work behind the batter last Friday night were well satisfied that he's got the goods and will do considerable during the season to help keep the Yantic team on top during the season. Lamphere who held the St. Joseph's team in hand last Friday night will probably be assigned the box work. Up to last night the remainder of the Yantic lineup was not known except that they also are strengthening. The reports that have been going around about the different teams strengthening proved partly to be true last night when several of the hospital players played on the East End team in addition to Jimmy Murphy of the J. B. Martin team who socked out the first circuit clout of the season.

Several new faces were also seen in the Hallville lineup although Mgr. Taylor claims that several of the new men didn't show up but will positively be on hand next week. In addition to the report that the E. C. P. has signed up Dwyer, and Sheflott the Fordham battery it is said that when the E. C. P. play the Nuggetts on Thursday night the entire J. B. Martin infield will be on the Power Co's. roster.

JUNIOR TWILIGHT LEAGUE GETS UNDER WAY TONIGHT

The Junior Twilight league will swing into action tonight at the Academy campus when the Rosedales meet the Arrows. These games will be interesting and the purpose of the league is to develop baseball talent in the younger boys who are not old enough for the regular Twilight league. Last year several good ball-players were discovered in the junior league, among them being Johnny Greene who pitched so brilliantly for the Academy this season.

GOODRICH AND LOAYZA WIN IN ELIMINATION BOUTS

Goodrich had to fight twelve rounds against Benny Valger, a clever New York boxer for his chance a short time later. He charged at the opening bell and continued a vicious attack throughout, but was unable to land a finishing blow. The fight was slow and several times the crowd of 15,000 called for action.

Olano, favored by many boxing followers as the ultimate victor in this tournament, which is being conducted by the New York State Athletic commission, actually was stopped by the Chilean in the very first round when a left to the head rocked him In the third he went to the floor three times before he remained down.

NORTON ELECTED CAPTAIN OF YALE TRACK TEAM

New Haven, June 15 (AP) — Bayes Marshall Norton, 1926 S. of Vineyard Haven, Mass., today was elected captain of the Yale track team for next year, the election taking place immediately after the Yale-Harvard meet. Norton has been Yale's high point scorer all season and was the individual high scorer in this year's intercollegiate meet, with 12 points, winning the broad jump, second place in the 100-yard dash and third place in the 220.

Norton was a member of the 1924 United States Olympic team, winning fourth place in the 220-meter race in Paris. His best marks in the 100 and the 220 were made in the Princeton meet this year when he covered the century in 9 4-5.

YALE BEATS HARVARD ON TRACK IN FIRST ATHLETIC EVENT OF WEEK

New Haven, June 15—(A. P.)—Yale won the first of the commencement tilts with Harvard this afternoon, defeating the Cambridge track team 79 1-3 to 55 1-3. On the running track the times were very fast, one dual meet record being equalled and one new one made. Tomorrow afternoon the baseball nines of the two rival universities will meet on Yale field in the first of a series of games.

Yale won nine of the first places in the meet this afternoon and tied for one of the firsts, fifteen events in all were run off. Harvard's greatest strength lay in the field events and in the long distance runs, but Yale's plentiful seconds and thirds, combined with the majority of the first places, gave the blues the meet.

Bayes Norton, Olympic runner and star sprinter of the Yale squad, upheld his reputation as leading individual scorer of the team, taking high single score for the meet. He won both the 100 and 220 yard dashes and took second in the broad jump, which was won by Wieneck.

Walters of Harvard took second individual honors by winning both the half-mile and the mile. In the former event he was hard pressed by Gibson of Yale, who took second, the time being 1 minute, 56 3-10 seconds.

Captain Gage and Paulsen led the way in that order in the 440 yard run and were clocked at 48 3-10 seconds, said to be a new dual meet record. Norton's time in winning the 100 yard final heat was 9 3-10 seconds, which equals the record established by Capt. William Schick of Harvard in 1905.

Yale won all of the places in the broad jump and brought the meet to a stirring close by taking all places in the finals of the 220 yard dash.

MAD PLAY WINS BROOKLYN HANDICAP AT AQUEDUCT

New York, June 15—(A. P.)—Mad Play, Sam Hildreth's crack four-year-old, won the 37th running of the Brooklyn handicap, the opening day feature at Aqueduct today. James Butler's Sting, winner of the first three of the big handicaps,—the Excelsior, the Metropolitan and the Suburban—burdened under top weight, finished second, two lengths behind the winner, with Catalin third.

Although Mad Play went to the post a slight favorite, Sting had many backers who figured he would come through but the Butler colt pulled up lame, Jockey Bruening dismounting and leading him back to the stand at the termination of the race

Mad Play was in front after the first quarter and was never seriously menaced. Catalin with only 107 pounds up, ran second until the last jump when Sting nosed him out. Wilderness was two lengths astern of Catalan with King Solomon's Seal fifth. Cherry Pie ran an unaccountable bad race and finished last. Sunsinl, Aga Khan and Klondyke were among the also rans.

The purse is worth $7,600 to the winner. The time for the mile and a furlong was 1:50.

PRINCETON AND YALE TO PLAY AT POLO GROUNDS

Princeton, N. J., June 5—The play-off between Princeton and Yale to settle their baseball series and incidentally to decide the big three championship will take place at the Polo Grounds, New York, either Saturday, June 20, or Tuesday, June 23, according to an announcement made by the Princeton Athletic association today.

The indefiniteness of date for the encounter is caused by the Harvard-Yale series which still hangs fire and which will be staged tomorrow and Wednesday. In the event of a double victory for either Harvard or Yale, the final Princeton-Yale contest will be waged next Saturday, but a tie in the Harvard-Yale series will postpone the Princeton-Yale playoff until June 23.

The Tiger snatched two straight games from the Crimson and won the series. They dropped the opener to the Elis in the Yale series at New Haven on Memorial Day and evened up the count here last Saturday defeating the Blue 5 to 2. Coach Bill Clarke will resume practice for the Princeton nine tomorrow, after a cessation for the commencement activities.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, June 18.—(AP)—Opposing speculative forces struggled for control of today's stock market, battling considerable irregularity in price movements. Trading was in moderate volume, the day's sales aggregating about one and one-quarter million shares.

Bear traders, taking advantage of the Mexican controversy and the apparent difficulty in attracting public participation on the long side, offered stocks freely and succeeded in bringing about recessions of 1 to 3 points in many issues, part of which were later recovered.

Operations for the advance found encouragement in the continuance of easy money rates, the stiffening of non-ferrous metal prices and reports of trade improvement in several of the important industries.

Shares of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company, which has large interests in Mexico, were depressed about three points on each on selling inspired by the note of President Calles, protesting against the recent warning of Secretary Kellogg to that country. Some of the liquidation in those shares also was attributed to speculative disappointment over the failure of the directors to increase the regular dividends at today's meetings. Other oils reacted on profit-taking, net losses of about a point taking place in General Petroleum, Houston and Independent Oil and Gas.

Another attempt to rally the list by bidding up the steel shares failed to make much headway. United States Steel common crossed 117 to a new high on the movement and then fell back to 116 3-4 for a small fractional loss on the day. Heaviness of Famous Players was attributed to reports of a new stock offering.

Marked heaviness also was apparent in American Can, Loose-Wiles Biscuit, Mathieson Alkali, May Department Stores, Pierce Arrow prior preferred, and Western Union, all off 1 3-4 to 3 points. LaClede Gas broke 9 points.

Baking issues developed marked strength on merger rumors, Ward Baking B soaring nearly 7 points to a new top at 66 3-4 and then dropped back to 64, while General Baking closed 4 2-4 points higher at 148 1-2 after touching a new maximum at 149 1-2.

Special buying movements continued in several of the merchandising, food and public utility issues. Robert Reis duplicated the year's high on reports of high current earnings. American Beet Sugar advanced two points in reflection of President Coolidge's decision not to avail himself of the power to lower the tariff on the Cuban raw product. Fluctuations in General Railway Signal became more erratic, the stock rallying from a low of 163 to a new high at 178 for a net gain of 8 points on the day. Paper issues were again in good demand.

Rail stocks turned reactionary in the late trading, but the net losses were generally held to fractions.

Call money ruled steady at 3 3-4 per cent, despite heavy tax day demands. The time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with rates unchanged. Weakness of Italian lire which broke about 6 points to around 3.83 cents, feature the irregular foreign exchange market.

The first shipment of gold to Italy since the war was announced during the day. Demand sterling held firm around $4.85 1-2 and French francs were slightly lower around 3.82 cents.

NEW LONDON TRAFFIC OFFICERS USE WHISTLE TO DIRECT TRAFFIC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 16.—Following orders issued by Captain of Police Charles A. Pitney, all traffic officers started directing traffic today by use of a whistle, one blow of the whistle causing operators of machines to bring their machines to a stop and two blasts ordering the operators to proceed. The signals by whistle, it is believed, will greatly facilitate the handling of traffic, especially during congested periods, an act that was illustrated several times today. The whistle signal is generally adopted by all of the larger cities and has proved a success.

Hugh Dallas Casey, year and one-half old son of James D. Casey and Norma Tobin, died suddenly this morning, the victim expiring at the residence of Antone Ramus, where the child had been put to board and without having been attended by a physician.

The child had been in apparently sound health until a day or two ago. The symptoms displayed by the child did not appear to be alarming and for that reason a physician was not summoned. About 3 o'clock this morning the child had a sinking spell and expired a short time afterwards. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman was summoned and after ascertaining the facts in the case pronounced death to have occurred of intestinal complaint.

Miss Dorothy Winship, nurse, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. Oliver Winship, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, suffering from injuries of a painful nature she sustained Sunday afternoon, when the automobile she was operating collided with a tree, corner of Hillside avenue and Lower Boulevard. The victim received extensive and numerous lacerations of the face and head.

Miss Winship started for a ride with an acquaintance, intending to go to Groton. As the machine descended the grade of Hillside avenue, Miss Winship undoubtedly lost control of the automobile for when the corner of Lower Boulevard was reached, the machine failed to make the turn in safety and continuing across the highway crashed against a large tree. The impact of the collision completely wrecked the car, a sedan, and flying glass from the shattered windshield, was forced against Miss Winship's face and head. She was transferred to the hospital and a wrecker removed the automobile to a Groton service station.

Five hundred gallons of Belgium alcohol, of the approximate worth of $2,500, and which had been in storage in the local customs house, was destroyed, this afternoon, by order of the federal government and under the supervision of Deputy United States Inspector Jeremiah Dillon. The destruction of the alcohol took place in the rear of the customs house when the 100 cans, each containing five gallons, were removed from their places of storage in the customs house. A pick was used to penetrate the metal containers and their contents were deposited upon the ground by a force of workers. The alcohol had been in storage many weeks and was a part of a seizure of a rum-running craft that was captured in the Sound while trying to make a port, after obtaining the cargo from one of the rum-supply vessels at anchor between Montauk Point and Block Island.

The police court had an even dozen cases before it this morning to start the week. None of them were of a serious nature but they indicated that several accused persons had "tarried along with the wine." Viola Mayo Brewer, a recent bride, was the worst offender. She recently married Lonnie Brewer, both colored, the husband having an idea that he could lead Viola along the straight and narrow path that leads to all that is good and, to nothing that is bad, if the right pace is continued. But Lonnie mistook his mission. He believes he has a task on his hands now that is as difficult as that which Roald Amundsen has attempted in searching for the North Pole. Viola was out for some fun Saturday and in search for it she took on a load of liquor that she couldn't carry. So she attempted to seek seclusion in a bed at the home of Joe Novitsky, at 210 North Bank street. Joe was not at home else Viola would not have been allowed to enter. As it was Joe found her in his bed when he returned from a nearby store. He called the police and Viola changed her bed from feathers to pine boards at the police station. She had not wholly recovered from the effects of what she drank when she was arraigned in court this morning charged with intoxication and breach of the peace in offensive conduct. Viola admitted that she was drunk, but that she was offensive she denied. The testimony was against her however and she was found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $20. That was more than Lonnie could show, but he made a determined effort to raise it and reclaim his bride. His bill was a little more than $42.

John Shevlin was drunk and so were John Bjorndae and Joe Landry. Each drew a fine for their folly. Shevlin is a sailor stationed at the state pier and Joe earns his living on a coal barge.

James Coleman was drunk and a bit disorderly, but has a reputation for sobriety and attendance to his duties that led to his release upon the payment of the costs of his trial.

Meik Ishuk, the fellow who mixed things up with Abe Shasha last Friday, and who failed to appear for trial, was there this morning and was penitent. He did not want to be antagonistic to Shasha and said he entertained no enmity toward him, so a settlement of his case was also effected by the payment of the costs he had necessitated.

Traffic ordinance violators appeared in the persons of Joe Mitchell and Morris Rosenberg. They paid fines for parking on Bank street more than the time allowed by law.

William Polenear failed to endorse his auto operating license and was fined $2. Tony Cadrello was charged with parking his taxicab on the south side of State street, but he got away on a suspended sentence as the ordinance relating to parking there is vague.

Billy Ward, a man who has no home was charged with trespassing on railroad tracks near the Union railway station. Officer Kane tried to remonstrate with Ward, but he didn't take kindly to the advice given to him and he was arrested. Ward was sent to jail for ten days.

The funeral of George H. Beck occurred this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 67 Shapley street and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. The bearers were Edward T. Adams, James D. [illegible], Alexander Macdonald, James [illegible] and Thomas [illegible].

Jeffers. Interment was in Jordan cemetery.

Miss Harriet Emmerich, Connecticut avenue, has resumed her duties as stenographer in the probate court after having spent a week at Southampton, L. I.

Benjamin A. Armstrong has sold a house and lot, corner of Norwood avenue and Briggs street, to Jeremiah J., and Paulina Howard.

Annie M. Hislop has sold a house and lot, corner of Fitch avenue and Addison street, to Henry Coogan.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles R. B. Stoeckel has caused the operators' licenses of Eugene Sullivan, 76 Harrison street; Henry Shapro, Y. M. C. A., and Samuel Scott Cooper, 266 Connecticut avenue, to be suspended. The trio were implicated recently in alleged violations of the automobile laws.

The choir of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church was tendered its annual dinner, Sunday afternoon, by Rev. Timothy M. Crowley, [illegible] of the church, the affair occurring at the Forrester cottage at Ocean Beach.

NEW LONDON PLANS TO ENTERTAIN ENGLISH CREW

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 15—The city council held a hot weather session this evening—one that was of but half an hour's duration. There was not a great deal of business to be done, and that was done quickly. There will be a reception to the officers on the evening of the 2nd prox and after that there will be busy times for the visitors. More than a dozen applications for the privilege of selling fireworks were made to the council and they were all referred to the city manager with the power of granting them if the applicants comply with the regulations governing the matter.

The New London Kennel club was given permission to hang a banner at State and Union streets during a period of three weeks to advertise its enterprise as the club is to give 35 per cent. of its profits to the Boy Scouts.

Abraham Zaslow, 27 West Coit street, operator of the Ford commercial truck that ran over Lois Cran Pearl street, Mystic, several days ago, dall, 14, schoolgirl of Mystic, on the child sustaining internal injuries that resulted in her death an hour later at Home Memorial hospital, was arraigned in the Groton town court this morning on a charge of manslaughter. A continuance was granted until next Monday forenoon and Zaslow furnished a surety on his bond for appearance at that time.

Vernie H. Walker, Hobart, Okla., and Miss Mary Zesewitz, daughter of Mrs. Mary Zesewitz, 17 Front street, were married this morning at 9 o'clock in the chapel of St. James Episcopal church, the wedding ceremony being performed by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of the church. Mr. and Mrs. Walker departed this noon on their wedding trip, which will include a visit in New York state and upon their return to New London the couple will reside at 17 Front street.

J. P. T. Armstrong, Hillside avenue, has returned from a brief visit in New York.

Seven youths, four from Poquonoc and three from the borough, were arraigned before Judge Costello, charged with breaking into the Poquonoc Bridge school several days ago and stealing four fountain pens. The boys were placed on probation.

The New Haven police tonight requested the New London authorities to be on the lookout for August Gasperdelt, alias C. Kleinfeld, charged with the theft of a quantity of clothing from the American Railway Express company at New Haven. Gasperdelt is described as being about 60, five feet, nine inches in height, and weighing about 175 pounds. He wore a dark blue serge suit and straw hat when last seen in New Haven.

Local military officials, late this afternoon, received instructions from the war department at Washington to [illegible] a mobilization call to be made at 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of learning the time required for the assembling of the local military companies in the event of an emergency. At 7:30 o'clock seven blasts of the fire alarm were sounded, which is the call for troops to assemble at the state armory. With the sounding of the fire alarm, many mistook the number of blasts to be six, which is the call for all members of the police department to assemble at once at the police station and, as a result, North Bank street, in the vicinity of the police station, was soon crowded with curiosity seekers. The call for the mobilization of the troops resulted in the members of both companies responding in quick time and was a general order, as it affected all state troops throughout Connecticut.

A chapter in colonial history was retold recently at New Haven when the Second Company, Governor's foot Guard, celebrated the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the charter granted to it and the departure of the company to aid the Colonists who fought the battle of Lexington and Concord. This ceremony also commemorated the scene at the "powder house" when Captain Arnold asked the selectmen for powder and ball, and when the same were not forthcoming, demanded the keys to the "powder house."

Why we call them TRUE Low Pressure Balloons

THE comfort and cushioning you get out of balloon tires depends on how soft you can run them with safety to the tire.

Even two or three pounds make a big difference.

It is therefore important for you as a car owner to know that U. S. Royal Balloons need not be over-inflated to save them from early and uneven tread wear or tread separation.

U. S. Royal Balloons are built of Latex-treated Web Cord. They have the new U. S. "Low-Pressure Tread."

This construction provides long tire service at even lower pressures than have been recommended in the past.

True low pressure means extra cushioning, added comfort and less wear and tear on your car.

Don't compromise to save your tires. Ride on U. S. Royal True Low Pressure Balloons.

The three-a-day comedian leaned over the desk at his hotel and inquired the clerk. "How's tricks?" "Fine, doc. But poor old Harry sure got the berries last night. They hissed him right off the stage. Then I came on. The audience quieted down and listened to my first number with attention. Then, just as I was doing them my patter, blowed if they didn't start hissing poor old Harry again."—Wall Street Journal.

Your Health

is affected by wrong hygienic habits

* * *

This NEW way in solving woman's oldest hygienic problem will mean much to you

SIXTY per cent of many women's disorders, doctors now point out, are often traceable to wrong hygienic methods.

Now there is a new way . . . a way that supplants the dangers and uncertainties of the old-time sanitary pad.

Physicians urge it. Women's doctors have adopted it. Hygienic authorities employ it. And your own peace of mind demands it. For it offers charm and immaculacy under any and all circumstances.

It absorbs 5 times the moisture of the ordinary cotton pad. And that means great protection.

It is so easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—that ends an old-time embarrassment.

It is deodorized. And that prevents danger of offense.

You can get it at any drug or department store, just by saying "Kotex." And that banishes the embarrassment of asking for a "sanitary pad."

Eight in every ten women in the better walks of life have adopted it. Which proves its benefits.

It will mean much to you in health, in daintiness and protection. It proves old ways a needless folly.

KOTEX
DEODORIZED

1 Protection: 5 times as absorbent as cotton pads. Absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture—and scientifically deodorized.
2 No laundry. Discard as easily as a piece of tissue.
3 Easy to buy, anywhere. You ask for them by name. Many stores keep them, ready-wrapped . . . help yourself; pay the clerk. That is all.

RESOLUTIONS.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Jewett City Savings Bank held on the 15th day of June, 1926, the following resolutions on the death of James H. Kennedy were adopted:

James H. Kennedy, a Director of this Bank, died at his home in Lisbon, on the 13th day of June, 1926, at the age of 74 years.

Mr. Kennedy became a Corporator of this Bank on the 14th day of July, 1914, and a Director on the 11th day of July, 1922. He brought to the service of the Bank a keen sense of duty and responsibility and a character and integrity unquestioned, which, coupled with a ripened judgment, made him a distinct asset to the directorship of the Bank. Of a genial and kindly disposition, it was always a source of joy, to come into social contact with him. This institution and its Board of Directors have suffered a great loss in his death.

Resolved: That this tribute to his memory be recorded in full in the records of this Bank, and copies sent to his family and to the public press.

FRANK E. ROBINSON,
Secretary.

TAFTVILLE

The annual Children's Day service of the Taftville Congregational Church school was held Sunday morning at the church, with an attendance that completely filled the auditorium. The decorations were most attractive, a large bank of laurel being before the chancel, with laurel and ferns in the rear. Baskets and vases of laurel, ferns, daisies, roses, snowballs, peonies, carnations and iris were on the choir rail, the decorating having been done by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. The service opened with the procession, Father of Lights in Whom There is No Shadow, the members being led into the church by the junior choir. One of the symbolic services arranged by the Congregational Sunday School Extension Society was used. The various departments of the church school from the beginners to the seniors took part in the service. The address was made by Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, pastor of the church. During the service two children were baptized, Betty Eileen, daughter of Mrs. Everett M. Pingree and Shirley Lois, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curt Seifert. The offering is for the Congregational Sunday School Extension Society who planned the service. The committee in charge were Miss Gertrude M. Young, chairman, Mrs. Adam Leupold, Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis and Mrs. Eugene N. Monty.

Corpus Christi, the feast in honor of the institution of the Blessed Sacrament was observed Sunday at Sacred Heart Church with a high mass and outdoor procession, and an out-of-door benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. The various parish societies took part in the ceremonies, the Children of Mary Society members wearing white dresses and veils, the first communicants, pupils at the Sacred Heart School, Rev. Wilfred Desmarais bearing the monstrance and attended by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, the pastor of the church. The clergy walked under the canopy, and were preceded by a score or more acolcytes wearing red cassocks and white surplices. Brunelle's band played and the men's choir sang appropriate chants along the line of march. There were about a thousand in the procession, who went to a vacant space on Hunters avenue, where the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament was given, before the return to the church. As is customary, the houses before which the procession passed were attractively decorated for the event, some being trimmed with the national colors, others with the papal colors. Flowers were used profusely, great banks of summer blooms being arranged on porches. Banners of various church societies and others bearing Latin inscriptions were flown from almost every residence. At the Sacred Heart School, an altar covered with beautiful roses and surrounded by a number of young girls each bearing a palm, had been arranged by the Sisters of Charity.

The semi-annual business meeting of the Taftville Congregational Church school was held Sunday noon in the vestry of the church with the superintendent, Victor E. Davis presiding. There was a discussion regarding the advisability of membership in the Council of Religious Education, and it was finally voted to pay the sum of $25 from the church school treasury to the Council. The annual church school picnic is to be held the second Saturday of July at Ocean Beach. Special cars will be chartered to accommodate all those who desire to go. Allan Bogle was appointed chairman of the picnic committee and Miss Elsie Heap, chairman of the ticket committee, both with the power to choose their own committes.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Pingree of Goodyear spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pingree of North Third avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gley and daughter Hazel of Lisbon have been recent visitors in Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Belval and Mrs. Mathilda Carch of North B street and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred White of South A street spent the week-end in New Bedford, Mass., with relatives, making the trip by motor.

CHURCH ARMY CRUSADERS ARE TO ARRIVE IN NORWICH THIS MORNING

The eleven members of the Church Army, who are to arrive in this city Tuesday on their tour of New England represent one of the many branches of a militant evangelistic body within the Church of England. It sprang into being at just about the same time that the Salvation Army wandered into the streets and from a personality fully as interesting as old General Booth himself. But it has never ventured to America before, as the Salvation Army did many years ago.

The Crusaders will arrive in Norwich this (Tuesday) morning about 11 o'clock and will be met by the rectors of the Episcopal churches and escorted to Trinity church. The following is the schedule of services:

12 m. Trinity church. Brief service of welcome.

2 p. m. Trinity church. Service for women.

7:30 p. m. Union square. Open air service. Address of welcome by Mayor Waters.

8:30 p. m. Brief service in Christ church.

Wednesday.

8 a. m. Christ church. Holy Communion.

8 p. m. Y. M. C. A. hall. Lecture by Captain Hanson, entitled, Twenty-five Years In and Out of Prison. Everybody is welcome to all the services and the lecture.

Upon the arrival of the leader, Capt. B. F. Mountford, in New York city, the unique history of the Church Army was given in the New York Evening Post in the following sketch:

The founder of the Church Army was Wilson Carlile, who may still be seen out Hyde Park way in London, as stately and dignified a figure as old Marble Arch in the shadows of which he now has offices. He is seventy-eight and seldom plays the old trombone which was the backbone of the organization at its start.

Wilson Carlile was a prominent London business man. He had amassed a fortune and was living in step with it. Then suddenly there came business reverses. The fortune vanished. Mr. Carlile went back to work and by as swift a wind as blew riches out of his lap they were blown back.

All of which let Mr. Carlile duly thankful—and thoughtful. He had enough money to do for his needs the rest of his life. And he wanted to do something about it. So he quietly slipped out of business and began to study for the ministry. Not long afterward he became curate of a wealthy church in Kensington.

Even this didn't satisfy him. His parish was rich and his church was full. But there were scores of non-churchgoers he wanted to reach. So he started out to hold street meetings. And he took with him his trombone to draw the crowds. This was the start of the Church Army.

He met with persecution, just as General Booth and his followers did. There was the Skeleton Army, a band of folk who resented the retailing of religion in the streets. They often broke up Carlile meetings. But on only one occasion did he halt them.

This was a time when a husky objector caught Carlile on the point of the jaw with his fist. The evangelist went a hospital for six months. And those same six months the other man spent in jail. But the incident had a curious sequel.

Twenty years later Carlile recognized his assailant in a "pub" into which he had gone in connection with his work. He got the man out and took him home to dinner with him. They afterward became fast friends. And now on Carlile's watch chain there hangs a silver fist, clenched. It is a gift from the man, a curious memento of an incident which both have now dismissed but not forgotten.

Carlile later became rector of the church at Billingsgate, that tempestuous fish market district in London from which strong language has taken its name because so much of it flows there. But while he does not speak the tongue he understands it thoroughly and is beloved to the extent of being called the "Bishop of Billingsgate." And now the Church Army has more than 1,000 workers in sixty different departments.

The crusaders who are to come here are drawn largely from those gypsy evangelists who tour England by foot or in vans and hold open air meetings and from another branch whose workers visit prisons. Captain Mountford is of the latter group. He has had unusual experiences.

"Not many years ago," he says, "a man who had met our workers while serving a sentence for burglary in Pentonville prison came to us after he got out and wanted to join our army. We gave him temporary clerical work and while performing it he saw an advertisement regarding a position as secretary to a group of missionaries in India.

"He answered it, told his story frankly and was accepted for the post. He made good so readily that he was sent back to England to be educated for the ministry and now has returned to the Indian field as a full-fledged missionary.

"And there are cases where prisoners have ironed out their criminal twists to good uses. There was a forger who had spent twenty years of his life in prisons. He was, of course, a master of handwriting. We got hold of him in that cheerless prison at Dartmoor. He got on his feet and through the very gift which had led him to trouble got a position as a teacher of handwriting in a school and has held it fourteen years.

"There is the other side, too. Not long ago a man who had been sentenced for poaching was about to be released at the completion of his term. I talked with him and he professed to be deeply moved by our evangelical work. 'In fact,' he told me, 'I'm so grateful that the first brace of pheasants I get I'm going to send along to you.'

"Another man, a burglar I had been working with, professed such a contrite spirit that he wanted to give something to the thank offering. Prisoners are allowed no money in England and I reminded him of that fact. 'Well,' he said, seriously enough, 'I can tell you where there's a lovely old silver teapot planted.'"

Captain Mountford and the other crusaders will visit several American prisons during their visit of three months here. He believes prisoners here are given much more liberty than they are in England. And he likes to talk with them and hear their stories. He has become a close friend of many. In fact, just before he sailed an old burglar told him farewell regretfully.

"You know you're just like one of us," he said, which may or may not have been a compliment.

PRESENT PRESIDENT BEACH'S PORTRAIT TO STORRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, June 13—President Charles Lewis Beach of the Connecticut Agricultural College was honored by the alumni of that institution this afternoon, when his portrait by Ella Emmet Rand was unveiled in what was one of the most impressive events of the commencement week programme. The unveiling took place in Hawley Armory under the direction of the C. A. C. Alumni Association.

George H. Hollister of Hartford, president of the alumni association presented the portrait of President Beach to the college, Harry G. Manchester of Winsted, vice-president of the board of trustees accepted the portrait on behalf of the college. Willard Wattles, instructor in English recited a poem entitled, "The College With the Open Door." President Beach thanked the alumni for so honoring him, remarking that the appreciation shown him far more than repaid him for all his efforts in buildings a better Connecticut Agricultural College.

President Hollister of the alumni association spoke highly of the twenty-five years of service to the college by President Beach, reviewing the growth and progress made under his direction in that time. In part, he said, "In 1896 a young man was called to the then Storrs Agricultural School as instructor in the new department of dairying. He came from the great dairy state of Wisconsin, the son of a dairy farmer, and a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. With his practical knowledge obtained on the farm and the scientific knowledge obtained at college, he showed great ability in his chosen field. For ten years he was in charge of the dairy work at the college and gained the absolute confidence of the dairy farmers of the state. His reputation spread beyond the boundaries of Connecticut and in 1906 he left to become head of the dairy department of the Vermont Experiment Station.

"In response to a unanimous call he came back to the Connecticut Agricultural College as its president in 1908. At this time the affairs of the college were at a low ebb, there were financial difficulties to overcome, scholastic standards to be raised, new equipment to be secured. When asked why he assumed such a burden, he replied, 'I think it is the love of the difficult.' That has been characteristic of him through all the years, to tackle and find a solution for the hardest problems. During his administration the college enrollment has grown from less than two hundred to five hundred students, with corresponding increase in equipment for their construction and comfort. Also, due to his efforts in many respects, it today takes first place among the agricultural colleges of New England.

"It is not alone material benefit that has been gained from this man for he has made a place for himself deep in the hearts of those who have had the privelege of association with him. It is only fitting that at this time mention should be made of the loyal and gracious lady who for so many years aided with the college in all its in every way within her power to carry on successfully the difficult task he had undertaken.

"For a long time the alumni has desired a portrait of its president. At the annual meeting in June, 1924, a committee was appointed to secure that portrait. Thanks to the generous response to the appeal from those associated wit hthe college in all its branches, alumni, students and friends, the committee was able to secure the services of the noted artist Ella Emmet Rand.

"Today I have the honor to present to the Connecticut Agricultural College a portrait of Charles Lewis Beach which, Mr. Manchester, as president of the Board of Trustees, I give into your affectionate care."

FINED IN CITY COURT FOR FIGHT IN TAFTVILLE

On a charge of breach of the peace as the result of a fight in a store on Hunter's avenue, Taftville, James Barry, 21, of North Main street, was fined $25 and costs by Judge Arthur F. Libby. Barry appealed to the next term of the criminal court of common pleas. It was claimed by witnesses that Barry showed a knife.

Henry Rackowski, 17, this city, was fined $25 and costs for driving an automobile without an operator's license. He was operating a machine belonging to a man named McIver, whose son was in the machine and had his father's driving license with him. He paid his bill, which amounted to $35.50. A Waterford man paid $5 for violating a local traffic rule.

Peter Ashe, of Waterford, paid an $8 fine. He was accused of parking in a "no parking" area in Franklin square and also did not have his operator's license with him.

NATIONAL GUARD UNITS RECEIVE NEW EQUIPMENT

The coming of summer always awakens interest in outdoor sports and camping and the local National Guard units are busily preparing for their annual encampment which will be held from July 5th to 19th this year.

Battery B and the Combat Train have been receiving new equipment in large shipments recently and are rapidly becoming well equipped Field Artillery units. Early this year the 192nd regiment was changed from a 155 m. m. G. P. F., or long rifle regiment to a 155 m. m. howitzer regiment and attached to the 43rd division, composed of Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont National Guard units. Major General Morris B. Payne, of New London, formerly colonel of the 192nd Field Artillery, C. N. G., is in command of the 43rd division.

A new feature of the uniform is the division insignia which is a blue 43 superimposed on a black and red background and worn on the left sleeve just below the shoulder.

The Combat Train has recently received an artillery reel cart and reel and 5-ton tractor. Battery B has two four-wheel drive trucks, new field artillery telephones for use in the field manouvres, a battery commander's telescope, French aiming circle and six 5-ton tractors.

Authority has been received by Captain W. R. Denison, of Battery B, to enlist new men and several have already signified their intentions of enlisting, being especially anxious to attend the annual encampment at Tobyhanna, Pennsylvania, which is pleasantly situated in the hills of northeastern Pennsylvania, near the Scranton section. This camp under tents should prove very pleasant to the veterans of Camp Devens and Fort Eustis.

ZIONISTS STATE CONVENTION HELD IN COLCHESTER

The annual state Zionist convention was held Sunday at the Elmwood House at Colchester. The morning convention was started at 9:30 o'clock with Abraham Goldstein presiding. Then a program by junior members of the Colchester Judean club was given, which included the singing of Hatikvoh and The Star Spangled Banner. The delegates were then greeted by Mrs. Joseph Agranovitch, of Colchester, Waterbury then extended a greeting through Rabbi Harry Schwartz of that city. As Dr. Morris Dunn, of New Britain could not be present, Attorney Irving Rachlin read a message from him which contained his address. A report was read by Atty. W. Slonim, of Hartford, as to the membership of the state. There are now 1,800 members in Connecticut. The quota set for the next convention to be held in Waterbury in October is 2,500. Nominating and resolution committees were then appointed.

A report on the activities of the Keren Hayesod was given by S. B. Levenson from New Haven, Connecticut regional director. To date, $70,500 has been submitted by the state of Connecticut to the National headquartera. The convention then adjourned for luncheon in the dining hall of the Elmwood House.

The afternoon session was held outdoors due to the arrival of many unexpected guests. The following were recommended for the national executive committee at Washington to be at the convention held there June 28 to 30, Rabbi Leon Spits, of New Haven; Dr. Morris Dunn, of New Britain; Joseph Hartenberg, of Hartford. It was voted that Connecticut send a delegate to represent it at the World's Zionist congress, to be held in August. Addresses were given by Rabbi Nathan Militikovsky, of Palestine, Judge Bernard Rosenblatt, of New York and Samuel C. Kone. The convention was then adjourned. A musical concert was given in the hall by Israel Rosenberg, of New Britain, and Benjamin Cohen of that city. A banquet was served in the evening. The chief speakers were Miss Rachael Natelson, of the National Hadassah and Abraham Tannebaum of the Young Judean club.

SENATOR M'LEAN GIVES $1,000 TO LEGION FUND

George P. McLean, United States senator has contributed $1,000 to the American Legion national $5,000,000 endowment fund campaign for disabled veterans and World war orphans.

His contribution will be credited to the Connecticut quota of the Legion soldier and orphan relief undertaking, it was announced at headquarters of the state endowment fund committee.

Besides making a substantial gift to the Connecticut quota, Senator McLean as a member of the state committee, is giving much time to the project it was stated. Announcement of Senator McLean's donation to the fund was made by Edwin L. White, commander of the Connecticut department of the Legion.

To Branford goes the honor of being the first Connecticut town to raise its quota. Branford was "over the top" the second day after the state wide campaign for "those who gave the most" opened. Cromwell was a close second.

Brings Suit On Note

Suit against Leon Sachner of this city to collect a note for $1,000 has been brought in the superior court by Henry Willar, of Worcester. The note was given May 2, 1923, to Abraham Levine and was assigned by him to Willar June 4, 1925, according to the papers in the suit.

In the quiet heart of the desolate Cambridgeshire Fens of England has been found a former world wanderer, who, at the age of seventy-one, is leading the simple life with thirty-eight cats as companions.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

According to the Courier of 1850 there were twelve trains daily passing through and stopping at Norwich, on the Norwich & Worcester railroad. Stage coach competition was keen in those days but the railroad continued to show gains in financial income each succeeding year.

News of the week taken in part from the Courier of 1850 is as follows:

Tuesday, June 11, 1850: The receipts of the New York and New Haven railroad for the month of May were $40,631, being a gain of $16,664 over the same month a year ago.

Worcester, Mass., according to the new census has a population of 15,864. Cambridge, Mass., by the same census is credited with a population of 14,-624.

Norwich people are grieved to learn of the death of Hon. Hiram Weed, secretary of state of Connecticut, whose death occurred Saturday last at his home in Danbury, aged 50 years. His successor will probably be appointed by the legislature as soon as convenient.

The news from Washington is that General Lopez was re-arrested in New Orleans last week. The arrest, it is added, has caused much feeling in New Orleans.

Thursday, June 13, 1850—The New London Star is sending out a wail because the regular democratic ticket was defeated in that city in the city election. A half in half ticket was elected by the voters.

The Aurora states that a woolen factory, 50 by 40 feet and two stories high, is in course of construction, at the head of Mystic, in Stonington. It is to be worked by steam.

The prospect of digging a tunnel through the Alps between Chambery, in France, and Suza, in Sardinia, has been talked of for several years. The great feat is now about to be accomplished and the tunnel will be seven miles long, 19 feet high and 25 feet in width, admitting a double track. The estimated cost is about $3,000,-000.

Subscription books are now being opened for the Providence and Plainfield railroad and it is hoped that the road may soon be put through to connect with roads leading to New York, Hartford, Fishkill and other important places. The subscriptions are to be binding providing $300,000 is raised.

Saturday, June 15, 1850—Democrats in Colchester are up in arms because of the rumor that Pomeroy hall is to be chosen for judge of probate in Colchester. A petition is to be gotten up against his appointment and forwarded to New Haven.

The legislature has, after some trouble, finally agreed upon James A. Hovey, Esq., of Norwich, for judge of the New London county court. The appointment however is causing no little trouble in his party.

The Boston Transcript has published a story that Mr. Paine has sold out his patent for manufacturing gas from water, for five million dollars, one half cash down.

Twelve trains passed over the Norwich & Worcester railroad making stops in Norwich in 1850. The first train to leave Norwich in the morning was at 6:30 o'clock and the last train arriving in this city was at 7:30 o'clock. (These trains show how little the train service has improved in nearly a century, in fact, they had better service in the old days than Norwich enjoys in 1925.)

IN SCHOOL DAYS.

Still sits the schoolhouse by the road,
A ragged beggar sunning;
Around it still the sumachs grow,
And blackberry vines are running.

Within, the master's desk is seen,
Deep scarred by every idle boy's
Hard knife; and there the initials carved
Of sweethearts and of girls and beaux;

The charcoal frescoes on its wall;
Its door's worn sill, betraying
The feet that, creeping slow to school,
Went storming out to playing!

Long years ago a winter sun
Shone over it at setting;
Lit up its western window panes,
And low eave's icy fretting.

It touched the tangled golden curls,
And brown eyes full of grieving,
Of one who still her steps delayed
When all the school were leaving.

For near her stood the little boy
Her childish favor singled;
His cap pulled low upon a face
Where pride and shame were mingled.

Pushing with restless feet the snow
To right and left, he lingered;—
As restlessly her tiny hands
The blue-checked apron fingered.

He saw her lift her eyes; he felt
The soft hand's light caressing,
And heard the tremble of her voice,
As if a fault confessing.

"I'm sorry that I spelt the word:
I hate to go above you,
Because,"—the brown eyes lower fell,—
"Because, you see, I love you!"

Still memory to a gray-haired man
That sweet child-face is showing.
Dear girl! the grasses on her grave
Have forty years been growing!

He lives to learn, in life's hard school,
How few who pass above him
Lament their triumph and his loss,
Like her,—because they love him.
—John Greenleaf Whittier.

GIPSY DAYS.

Love caught me in a golden net
All scented rose and rue,
Love lured me to a little house,
And set me tasks to do.

I bake and sweep and sew a seam
And keep the hearth-flame bright,
And lie against my lover's breast
All through the starry night.

But, oh, the trails I once gave roamed
Beyond this sheltered spot,
With high winds beating in my face
Where harborage was not!

I look from out my window pane
To Hills of Far Away,
My feet grow weary for the roads
Beyond the break of day.

But—Love has such imploring eyes,
I could not quench their light
And so I bake and brew and sew,
And lie awake at night!
—Faith Baldwin in Everybody's.

BORAH WOULD KEEP U. S. OUT OF CHINA TROUBLES

Washington, June 16—Opposition to the United States being drawn into the situation in China was expressed today by Chairman Borah, of the senate foreign relations committee, in a cablegram to an American citizen in the troubled zone.

"I see no reason why the United States should be drawn into any controversy or conflict with Chinese authorities or the Chinese people," the cablegram said. "Doubtless, the situation, as you say, is serious, but not serious by reason of any acts of policies of the United States, and it is not to be presumed that we will be drawn into controversies of other powers.

"The United States has not evinced any imperialistic designs in China, and I venture to believe the American people as a whole would like to see the national rights and interests of China fully respected.

"Personally I would favor the withdrawal of extra territorial rights in China as speedily as practicable, and a policy adopted by all which would respect the territorial integrity and national rights of a great people."

YALE GRADUATES GAY AT THE BASEBALL GAME

New Haven, June 16—Yale graduates back for reunions cavorted and danced before 12,000 spectators as a preliminary to the Yale-Harvard baseball game here today.

Toy balloons and rocket parachutes with flags attached filled the air above the field. Witnessed by a solidly banked line of spectators along the line of march to the field, 13 classes, most of the men disguised almost beyond recognition by a diversity of costumes, marched to Yale field.

The class of 1919 had a placard feared to tread." When the class came to serenade President Angell after the game, in accordance with the honored custom, the president gave his answer.

"I was interested in your placard, but I want to remind you, who it is that rush in when Angells fear to tread."

President James R. Angell and President-Emeritus Arthur T. Hadley were in a box in the grand stand and were cheered by the various classes.

After the game, the classes marched to the residence of President Angell where each clas sgave a long Yale and listened to a few remarks.

Hartford, June 16.—(AP)—The appeal of Gerald Chapman to the supreme court, from his conviction in the superior court for the murder of a New Britain policeman was perfected today with the filing of the final papers in the proceeding by his junior counsel, Nathan O. Freedman. The appeal is scheduled to be heard at the October term of the supreme court, and for that reason Chapman, who was sentenced to die on June 25, was granted a reprieve until December 3.

Among the many errors assigned to the court as reasons for appeal and revision of errors is the statement that Judge Newell Jennings erred in charging the jury as follows:

32 Dead In Wreck Of Immigrant Train

Was Derailed Near Hackettstown, N. J.,—36 Persons in Critical Condition.

Hackettstown, N. J., June 16.—(AP)—Thirty-two persons are dead, 36 in critical condition and at least 35 more are suffering from injuries received at 2:30 a. m., eastern standard time, today, when four cars and the engine of a seven-car special train on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad were derailed and piled upon one another at Rockport Sag, two miles west of here.

One hundred and eighty-two passengers, immigrants of a former day who had become prosperous in the great corn belt and were on their way to visit homelands across the sea, were hurled into the maelstrom of death and injury as coach pounded upon coach and scalding steam from the bursting engine tortured the victims.

The train left Buffalo, N. Y., yesterday at 6 p. m. At Portland, Pa., it was routed over the old Lackawanna main line, replaced by a cutoff twelve years ago and now used principally by trains of the Morris and Essex branch. The train's entry into New Jersey was heralded by a violent thunder storm, a storm that washed gravel over the tracks at the Rockport crossing, into which the train plunged as it gained momentum from the rise ahead.

Two day coaches and a Pullman were piled on top the engine as it toppled over. One other Pullman car was derailed and three remained upright.

By automobile, special train and ambulance the injured were taken to the Easton, Pa., general hospital; the Warren county hospital at Phillipsburg, Morristown Memorial hospital at Morristown and Dover General hospital.

The eighteen of those taken to Easton are dead, Morristown reported two deaths, Dover five, and seven bodies are in the morgue at Hackettstown.

The homes of all except the train crew are in Chicago and vicinity.

August Fox was the first man on his feet after the wreck, followed by Henry Steffens, 60, Carl Engel and Reinhardt Tschke, all of Chicago and all more or less injured. They labored heroically pulling dead and injured from the twisted steel cars, until help arrived from Hackettstown.

Above the rumble the thunder and lashing of the storm the crash of the wreck awakened Mrs. Duncan Dunn, who lives at the State Game farm about 500 yards distant. She communicated with Hackettstown over privately owned wires, enabling physicians who in turn sent emergency calls to surrounding hospitals.

In the wrecked engine buried beneath twisted coaches could be seen the bodies of Loomis, his hand still on the throttle, and of his fireman. On the ploughed up roadbed beneath the locomotive lay the twisted body of a little girl in a flimsy night gown.

125 SURVIVORS SAILED ON U. S. LINER REPUBLIC

New York, June 16.—(AP)—Eager to see their homeland again, but shaken and saddened by the train wreck which claimed fifty-seven of their companions in dead and injured, 125 Germans from the west sailed today on the United States liner Republic from Hoboken.

Rescued from the horror which ensued when their special train from Chicago was wrecked before dawn near Rockport, N. J., survivors of the party were rushed to Hoboken in another special.

They had graphic tales to tell of their experiences, while the liner waited for last possible late additions to the fortunates saved. Running through each story was the heroism of the farmers resident near the wreck and of the sacrificing efforts of some of the passengers to alleviate the suffering of the injured.

CHICAGO GANGSTER SHOT AT DETECTIVE IN CITY HALL

Chicago, June 16.—(AP)—Warfare between gangsters and policemen which started last week with the shooting of five policemen, tonight was carried into the city hall when an unidentified man appeared at the office of Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, and fired directly at Sergeant Elbert Curran of the state's attorney's staff.

Curran was not hit and the man escaped after Curran had fired several shots at him as he fled down a corridor. A few minutes after the shooting every door to the county building was guarded and for an hour gun squads ransacked the building in the belief that the gunman had been cornered.

Yesterday Sergeant Curran received a telephone call from a man in broken English said that Sergeant William Sweeney, the policeman who shot and killed Michael Genna, notorious gangster, last Saturday after Genna's gang had shot two policemen and wounded a third, would be killed tomorrow.

Curran said the man who fired at him resembled a man who appeared at the county building yesterday evening and asked to see the state's attorney, explaining that his brother was in trouble and intimating his relative had been seized when more than 200 alleged gangsters had been rounded up after last week's shootings.

ICY BLASTS TIE UP PLANES FOR AMUNDSEN RELIEF

Advent Bay, Spitsbergen, June 6—Ice blasts from the east Spitsbergen glaciers today tossed the two seaplanes of the Norweigian government's expedition which is to search for the Amundsen-Ellsworth North Pole explorers as they lay moored to their buoys in the bay here. There has been no flying done since Sunday afternoon, when the aviators took a few spins.

There is talk among the fliers of making a dash over the inland glaciers from Advent Bay for Kings Bay, about 30 miles to the north. The trial spins supposedly halted the possibility of such a flight. It is certain, however, that the aviators will not make their start before tonight, and possibly they may postpone it until Wednesday. Drifts beneath the airmen mean bird shooting.

An Eve Of Departure Message to Macmillan

Secretary Wilbur's Farewell: "Good-Bye, Good Luck, and Come Back Safely."

Boston, June 16.—(AP)—A word of farewell from Secretary of the Navy Wilbur to Commander Donald B. Macmillan, who will set out from Boston tomorrow for Wiscasset, Maine, on the first leg of his ninth journey into the arctic, was delivered today.

As principal speaker at a luncheon tendered to Macmillan by the Boston City Club which has been his home during his stay in the city, the assistant secretary of the navy said the Macmillan expedition had "fired his imagination."

"Most people think that the navy is a war institution only, but it is something more," he said. "The navy is a guarantee of a step forward in every direction, we do not feel that we have sacrificed any of our personnel, for Commander Macmillan has a splendid record as a leader and a splendid knowledge of conditions in the Arctic region. We expect success and a safe return for the entire party, but if they do not come back the navy will find them, with luck."

A silk flag to be carried on one of the amphibian planes which the Macmillan party will use for polar exploration was presented to Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd, in charge of the naval contingent of the expedition, by Francis J. Good, senior vice commander of the Massachusetts department, American Legion. In reply Commander Byrd praised the two naval officers and six petty officers who comprise the aviation detail of the expedition.

"They were carefully elected," he said. "It took months to get them for they are the best in their line and their various commanding officers did not wish to let them go. The petty officers are mechanics who keep the planes running. They haven't much rank or position but they are the fellows who deliver the goods. I hope that when they return they will receive the recognition that is due them."

DOROTHY PERKINS' TRIAL IS NEARING ITS CLOSE

New York, June 16—The statement of Dorothy Perkins that she fired the shot which killed Thomas Templeton, Jersey City war veteran, featured the concluding testimony today in the trial of the 17-year-old girl. Her fate will be in the hands of the jury Thursday afternoon. Summation of counsel is expected to take about four hours, at the close of which Judge McIntyre will charge the jury.

The alleged admission was read into evidence today when the prosecution introduced statements made by Dorothy, following the shooting as the climax of a St. Valentine's party at her home. The depositions were read despite strenuous objections of defense counsel, who contended they were not proper rebuttal testimony.

"I fired the shot, but didn't aim it at any one."Dorothy was qouted to have said. "Someone said 'Tommy got it,' the police stenographer as having then I ran from the hall."

Captain William T. Jones, pistol expert, recalled by the state, declared the bullet hole and the power stains in the coat and vest worn by the girl's father indicated his arm might have been raised when the shot was fired. She has contended he was attempting to strike her.

Harry Brown, also called in rebuttal, was asked by one of the jurors if his refusal to take off his coat when he came into the Perkins' home meant he was carrying a pistol. Brown denied he was carrying a gun, and said he took off his coat later.

Motions of the defense to dismiss the case, after the jury had been excused, and to have the jury disregard statements in the rebuttal were denied, as also was the proposal of the the defense that the jury visit the scene of the shooting.

RESULT OF DEFENSE TEST SENT TO WAR DEPARTMENT

Governor Trumbull Telegraphed That Connecticut National Guard Was Mobilized in Four and One-Half Hours Notice—Asserts That the State's Procedure Should in No Wise Be Construed as in Disparagement of General Plan For Defense Test July 4th.

Hartford, June 16.—(AP)—Governor John H. Trumbull reported to the war department by telegram tonight the result of the surprise defense test of the Connecticut National Guard last night. He requested that this report be accepted in lieu of one on National Defense Day, July 4th, "when, in accordance with my telegram to you of June 1st, the Connecticut troops will not be called out." The following is a copy of the governor's telegram, addressed to Acting Secretary of War Dwight Davis:

"The Connecticut National Guard was mobilized on four and one half hours' notice at seven p. m., Monday, June fifteenth. The movement was undertaken as a defense test to determine the actual state of preparedness of the state's military forces and resulted approximately in a ninety six per cent. response by officers and a ninety per cent. response by enlisted men. No warning of any kind having been given prior to the muster order at two thirty p. m. am satisfied that our troops are well organized to respond promptly to any emergency call for their services.

"This report, to be supplemented by detailed information forwarded via the regular military channels is respectfully submitted in lieu of a report on national defense day, July fourth, when, in accordance with my telegram to you of June first, the Connecticut troops will not be called out. The state's procedure in this respect is in no wise to be construed as in disparagement of the general plans of the war department for a national defense test but, on the contrary, is intended to be in full sympathy with the principle. In view of the circumstances as to procedure in Connecticut, however, I am convinced that the response to this defense test, particularly in view of the fact that it came as a complete surprise to the military department, is more impressive and representative of what the state can do than a test attempted on the national holiday when many of our soldiers will be away for week-end recreation.

"I am sure that the more representative report is more acceptable to the war department. Connecticut, which people are always to be found squarely behind the national defense policy, certainly prefers to make it."

FURTHER TESTIMONY IN SHEPHERD MURDER TRIAL

Chicago, June 16.—(AP)—William Shepherd's trial for the murder of William McClintock, to whom he is accused of having fed typhoid germs, is the precursor of a suit to break the youth's will which made Shepherd a millionaire, Miss Isabelle Pope, who was affianced to the "millionaire orphan," admitted upon cross examination today.

The slender young brunette who waited with a marriage license while "Billy" died, testified that she had agreed with Iowa cousins of the boy's mother to divide the estate "fifty-fifty" in the event the will was broken.

Mrs. Julie Shepherd, for 16 years young McClintock's foster mother, was considered in the agreement, Miss Pope naively admitted, because it was not believed that she was "implicated in this."

The portion which would be set aside for the woman who mothered the boy and was not mentioned in his will would be a tenth or $100,000.

Except for an $8,000 annuity, the entire estate was willed to Shepherd.

Completing her direct testimony, hailed in advance as an important link in the chain of circumstantial evidence the state has set out to weld about Shepherd, Miss Pope talked again of the change in the Shepherds' attitude towards her after they learned of her engagement to "Billy," she told of Shepherd having informed her he had studied about "typhoid and germs," and testified that others were in the party at which young McClintock is held by the defense to have eaten typhoid carrying oysters, but had not felt ill-effects.

Upon cross examination, the young woman identified passages in numerous letters she had written to "Billy" while he was attending Dartmouth College at Hanover, N. H., in which she said she was enjoying visits with the Shepherds and that they were "darling" to her.

Later Miss Pope admitted that the Shepherds had remarked that upon her marriage to "Billy" they would gain a daughter, and not lose a son, and that Mrs. Shepherd had telephoned her an acknowledgment of the announcement of the engagement, and again had been "darling."

WEEHAWKEN POLICE NOT GUILTY OF SMUGGLING LIQUOR

Jersey City, N. J., June 16—Eight members of the Weehawken police department, a Weehawken councilman and a Jersey City broker, were tonight found not guilty by a jury of conspiracy to smuggle liquor into New Jersey.

Two of the original twelve defendants, Police Lieutenant Philip McNulty and Patrolman John Fischr were freed yesterday when the prosecution admitted it had no evidence against them. A previous trial had resulted in disagreement.

Out of a possible complement of 57 enlisted men and three officers, a quota of 40 enlisted members of Company C, 169th Infantry, with two officers were present at the state armory in response to the test mobilization called for by Governor Trumbull, Monday night. The notification for mobilization that evening came at 6:30 in the afternoon. Only two of the guardsmen listed as absent were unaccounted for. The others were employed in other cities, and it was thought inadvisable to call upon them. Captain Joseph R. Morrison stated that he could have the entire personnel of his company, if given notice of twenty-four hours. Second Lieutenant Edward A. Morrison who was in Massachusetts and in ignorance of the order for mobilization, was not present. First call was given by Bugler Louis Wojcik, an assembly followed at seven o'clock. Captain Morrison was in command of the company with First Lieutenant Ellison S. Smith. The roll was read by Acting First Sergeant Ernest Jacobs.

With the exception of the officers, the company numbers 57 men, and several more enlistments are open before the departure for camp, Monday July 6, when the company leaves for Niantic, to stay until July 19th. The camp lies about two miles from Crescent Beach. Mornings are to be devoted to drilling, afternoon to recreation and all forms of entertainment are to be given during the evenings, including cabaret talent from Hartford.

About half past nine Monday evening one of the most dramatic and severe storms of thunder and lightning experienced in this section this year, accompanied by a terrific wind, swept down on Willimantic and surrounding territory. The storm was of short duration, but the lightning was almost continuous. The storm was introduced in a thoroughly fitting manner in the city when the power went off at 8:35, and remained so until nine o'clock. After this it continued to go off and on in certain sections. The reason given at the local plant was "trouble up the line." Along the borders of Mansfield, Willington, and Ashford, a regular twister developed. Great trees were blown over on the road between Warrenville and Storrs, and that part of Gurleyville leading onto the main thoroughfare. Although men were at work clearing the Warren-Storrs road, it was not open until ten o'clock the morning after the storm, and according to reports, the other road was still blocked late Tuesday afternoon. On the Hobby farm in Ashford, one side of the barn was blown in, and the silo toppled over. Along the road nearby, one third of a mile of rail fence was festooned across the fields. On account of the interrupted telephone service caused by the fallen limbs of trees, many stations were put out of commission. It was stated at the local telephone exchange Tuesday afternoon that thirty lines were out of order, affecting about one hundred and twenty-five stations. Twenty-two toll lines of the system in Colchester were put out of commission by the storm.

Mr. and Mrs. Post now occupy the old Burnap homestead in Andover. Mr. and Mrs. Post have four children, Wells M., Ernest K., and Howell B. Post, and Mrs. Charles W. Brown, the wife of a former pastor of Andover Congregational church, now living in Brookfield, Mass. There are eight grandchildren, Ralph Brown, Miss Mildred Post, Harold Post, Miss Marion Post, Burnap, David, Antoinette and Charlotte Post, still in the grade schools.

A very interesting and instructive talk on the dairy industry was given by Clifford E. Hough of the Hartford Rotary Club at the regular weekly meeting of the local Rotary Club at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday noon. Mr. Hough said that milk is the only article of commerce to be purchased daily by all families, and the dairy industry is the largest in the country, representing three billions of dollars yearly, and one quarter of America's agriculture. He commented upon the fact that Connecticut, importing $6,000,000 pounds of butter and cheese, produces milk to such an extent that no importation is necessary, adding that business in Connecticut milk markets is reaching our adjacent towns, which should be of benefit to local people. He said that in Connecticut, where the milk is noted for its high percentage of butter and fat, the laws make it practically impossible for skimmed or watered milk to be sold, and that the costs of collection and distribution have been stabilized by a study of supply and demand.

A picture "The Winning Golfer" was presented President John F. Ahern by James B. Fullerton. This (Wednesday) at four o'clock, President Ahern, Gerard E. Loisel, James P. Bath, and James P. Mustard are to meet the St. Mary's Parochial School nine, champions of the local Grammar School League, for the presentation of the Rotary Club cup to the winning team by President Ahern. Last year the pennant winning team was from St. Joseph's school.

Announcement was made by Richard H. Dodge, chairman of the entertainment committee of an evening meeting next week at North Coventry Grange Hall when a fried chicken and strawberry shortcake supper will be served by the ladies of the Grange. About thirty members and their guests are to be present. Gerard E. Loisel is in charge of attendance, and Fred L. Avery of transportation.

A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Hough, and adjournment was taken at two o'clock.

Some kind of poison, or an epidemic of some sort is causing the mysterious death of the fish in Columbia Lake. Since Saturday, the shores of the lake have been found strewn with dead fish, causing considerable anxiety among the owners of lake property, as well as those occupying the cottages. Raymond E. Clarke, Deputy Fish and Game Warden for Tolland County, to whom the matter has been referred found ninety-one dead perch on the shore between Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch's home, and the Brown cottages, Monday afternoon and said that there is a theory that the fish have been affected by some kind of poison. ## PUTNAM

Outgoing mail service for Putnam has not been improved by the new time schedule on the New Haven but 45 minutes has been added to the closing time for the day. Prior to April 14 the mails have closed at six p. m. the great bulk of first class mail being carried on the boat train which left here for New London at 5:34. This train has been advanced to 4:23 and it was believed then 4 p. m. would be the latest hour at which the day's mail could be deposited in the post office.

Robert Bridgett, of Boston, chief mail clerk of this division, was in Putnam yesterday and on his recommendation the evening mail will be carried on train No. 771 leaving at 7:45 for Boston, worked in a full R. P. O. (a mail car with a full force of clerks) and distributed so that mail for New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Worcester, Boston, Springfield would reach its destination the next morning.

This does not help the morning arrival and nearby cities like Norwich and Webster would not be included, but it is a very gratifying change from what was feared would be a badly curtailed service.

The Base Ball Guide, devoted to items and stories concerning the national pastime, recently had the following concerning Paul Johnson of North Grosvenordale.

"Paul Johnson has been making the tongue of the Columbus fans work overtime. Johnson in the past week gave an exhibition of slugging that made many a fan dig into the record book to seek new laurels for him. Johnson's first noteworthy feat occurred in the third game of the Toledo series. He was the socking of one of the Pitcher Caravan's fast ones over the left field fence. The wallop was one of the longest ever made on that field, and Johnson is the sixth one to gain the honor in the history of the park.

The next day Johnson started in to smack the pill in earnest. In six trips to the plate he hit one home run, three triples, and a two bagger for a total of fifteen bases. The hitless time at bat he was robbed of another extra base hit by a sensational catch by Paul Strand, right fielder of Toledo.

Johnson continued the third day with his slugging against Louisville by two more home runs being long distance wards. Johnson in his fifteen times at bat hit safely twelve times out of twenty-seven trips to the plate for a total of thirty-one bases, quite a record in any man's ball game."

Thousands for other Cars

The Chrysler Six has brought about a startling and unique motor car situation in motor car ownership.

All over America are families which own two, three, four and even seven Chrysler cars.

There are two main reasons—but they both go straight back to the fact that it is a genuine delight to drive a Chrysler Six.

They go straight back to the fact that the Chrysler Six is an entirely new type of car, built on a new kind of engineering which produces results radically different from any heretofore registered.

At one extreme are the families which can afford the most expensive chauffeur-driven cars.

Many of these have found a new joy in motoring. Men who have not driven their own cars for years are now driving their own Chryslers. They have discarded the heavy, cumbersome cars; or keep them only for occasional use.

For general use—the Chrysler Six. So great is the demand to drive this car on the part of both men and women in the same family, that two or three and even more Chrysler cars are found necessary.

The other side of the picture shows families which have owned a car costing perhaps twice as much as the Chrysler Six, and who have discarded it in the interests of economy and greater convenience.

Now they own and operate two Chrysler Six cars for the cost of one cumbersome car which does not begin to bring the driving and riding thrill ever present in the Chrysler Six.

You, too, will become a Chrysler enthusiast after your first thrilling, delightful ride and drive in a Chrysler Six—a ride we are eager and anxious to give you.

Typical Reasons Why Many Families Own Two or More Chrysler Cars

Mr. Edward C. Taubel, of Norristown, Pa., says: "The four cars we have purchased from you have been a revelation to us in easy handling, small amount of upkeep and general all around service.

"Having owned high priced cars for the past 15 years we feel we are giving you well deserved thanks for making us Chrysler owners.

"We can recommend your car to anyone looking for that something in automotive performance that we have found lacking in other cars."

E. W. Holmes, of Buffalo, New York, who owns two Chryslers, makes the significant statement:

I now weigh 140 lbs., would you believe it? Thanking you very kindly and in return if I may know of anyone else who is fat I shall be glad to tell them about SAN-GRI-NA."

ANOTHER GAME GOES

When a ban[k] ... of goods valued at $100,000 was advertised for sale this month, one wonders how many gave it a second thought after ascertaining that it was for the disposition of a lot of material which has been acquired by a concern engaged in the manufacture of mah jong sets. Likewise one is disposed to feel that there will be about as great a difference possible between the value placed upon that material a couple of years ago and the price that it brought, if in fact there were any bidders.

When mah jong came it was contagious. It spread over the country like wild fire. Everyone was crazy about it, or thought he was. There was a ... to get a set, and ... were arranged in price to suit all tastes and pocketbooks. You could get the cardboard equipment or the costly imported outfit, and they are to be found in many households today as mementoes of the invasion of the great Chinese game.

Mah jong provided much entertainment. It was a game which was susceptible of much development. It called for study and furnished a chance for much mental exercise. There were experts and there were systems. They were those who did a good business giving instructions and there were those who never really solved the intricacies of the game about which all kinds of stories were told as one of the means of giving added zest to the fad.

Mah jong may not be dead but it certainly is not thriving. It will continue to have devotees, and well it may. It is something different where it is unfortunate to get out of practice. Much was predicted for it but it has slumped far in advance of all predictions. There was the time when it was heralded as the game that would sap all interest in bridge. Those who made such a claim are not boasting of it at the present time.

SPEED AND WEAKNESS

Springfield finds itself face to face with a serious problem. It has recently participated with West Springfield and Hampden county in the construction of a $6,000,000 memorial bridge. It is a modern structure which meets the requirements much better than its predecessor. But there have already developed two serious difficulties. It has been the scene of something like five automobile accidents, and it is a question whether the railing along each edge has been constructed sufficiently strong to give the protection that is expected of it.

The bridge makes a fine place for the speedsters and there have been several instances where for one reason or another the machines have jumped the curb onto the sidewalk, crashed into and through the railing and narrowly escaped going overboard. This makes it evident that there is a crying need for placing immediate restrictions on the bridge traffic, for revising the present curb and for strengthening the railing.

The situation is not so different from the railroad crossing. No driver ought to need if his car gets out of control happen if his car gets out of control on a bridge when traveling at a high speed. And yet nearly a half dozen have given no heed to the situation and have plunged ahead quite the same as they probably would had they been facing a Stop, Look and Listen sign at a railroad crossing. There seems to be slight excuse for any machine to be handled in such a way that it would mount the sidewalk, and certainly a railing, or a balustrade, might not be expected to withstand the impact of a speeding auto or truck, but when the construction is of such a type that there are fears that it would not support a crowd watching a regatta there is another phase of the matter which deserves correction. Springfield and its neighbors did not end their worries by the construction of a new bridge.

JULIUS KRUTTSCHNITT

Frequently is it the case that men are able to accomplish great things because of the high grade men with whom they are able to surround themselves. They can command and direct but they leave the important details to men in whom they can place confidence, and who work at their task quite as faithfully as would the one to whom the credit untimately accrues.

In the building up of the Southern Pacific railroad and its union with other lines E. H. Harriman was an outstanding figure. And yet none probably knows better than Mr. Harriman did how much of his success was due to the advice and expert knowledge received from Julius Kruttschnitt, who has been referred to as a preeminent combination of engineer, manager and executive.

Because of his thorough understanding of the business of railroad construction and management, Mr. Kruttschnitt was advanced until he became the head of the great system which got its wealth of the Harriman money. He grew out ahead because the harried ... [illegible] ... tions of increasing responsibility it was found that he measured up to them in every respect.

At the time of his retirement from the presidency of that system a brief time ago it was not without full credit for his long list of accomplishments in connection with that system both as subordinate and executive. By his death it suffers an even greater loss and the country a great railroad leader and builder.

CONNECTICUT'S MOBILIZATION

In connection with the change from Armistice day to Fourth of July for the Defense day demonstration much criticism has been offered to the effect that it did not permit time enough this year, between the day when the change was being advocated and the Fourth, to make the necessary arrangements for the muster of the nation's forces.

From all indications this opinion was based upon the arrangement of an elaborate programme, the getting together of the needed equipment and the perfection of details for an event that would include a parade and other exercises as well as a dinner. Given at that it would seem possible to get action within the alloted time, but the feeling has been expressed in certain states that it would not.

Connecticut did not offer such an excuse for not participating in Defense day on the Fourth. As a demonstration of the fact that no great amount of time is required Governor Trumbull called a surprise mobilization of the state's military forces. There was notice given less than five hours in advance and yet 80 per cent. of the guardsmen of the state were assembled in the armories of the state by eight o'clock. He had fixed the muster in Connecticut for Flag day. It was a fitting selection and proved that in case there was an emergency which should require the services of the state's forces it would be possible to get a quick response in a twinkling. While states are pleading that a month to six weeks did not provide enough time to arrange for a Defense day muster Connecticut has accomplished it in less than five hours with commendable results.

It was not time that caused Governor Trumbull to inform the war department that it could not bring about a mobilization of its forces on the Fourth, but the conviction that so many had arranged their holiday plans so that it would be impossible to make a creditable showing. Connecticut has probably not suffered in results because of its Flag day mobilization. Had there been a week's notice of the mobilization order the result would unquestionably have been much better.

NEW ENGLAND TRANSPORTATION CO.

The formation of a subsidiary corporation by the New Haven road to handle motor bus business in connection with the rail system will by no means come as a surprise. That or similar action has been ind[icated] ... a long time. The bus has been making its appeal to the public in keeping with motor vehicle development. It has, with the aid of the system of good roads, been able to put trolley lines out of business and it has helped to reduce the amount of passenger traffic on rail lines, although the greatest reduction in this respect can probably be attributed to the automobile.

That the motor truck has been carrying much of the freight that was formerly handled by the railroads is no secret. Railroads in fact have not only been forced to resort to them to bolster up their business but they have found it advisable to employ them for the extension of service, the speeding up of deliveries and the more economical handling of goods.

Thus it is a logical outcome that the rail lines should recognize the need of clinging to the business which they have and endeavor to rende[r] the transportation service that is expected of them by the adoption of the new method of transportation.

There is no reason to suppose that the steam lines are to be abandoned. The railroads are going to be depended upon for the bulk of that kind of transportation which they are doing, and particularly over long distances. When it comes to the short distances the situation has been ... changing decided changes and the railroad proposes to meet requirements in that respect.

One of the interesting features of the announcement is that the new corporation proposes to carry passengers, baggage, freight, mail and express. That means the extension of rail facilities by bus to an extent which has not as yet been reached by the pioneer bus lines and it will be the source of much relief to communities which have been fearing that such service would disappear if the railroad service stopped. It will likewise be good news to communities which already see where improved service could be obtained through the use of bus lines properly administered and backed.

LAUGH IT OFF

"Why did that old man scowl at you so hard?" asked the thoughtful pianist from Utah who wanted to be always thinking. "I thought everybody who lived out here in Languishing Heights loved his neighbor."

"I will tell you why old Bokes tried to kill Ralph with a bitter glance," spoke up the genial friend who was present. "Ralph couldn't tell you—he would choke all up with emotion, though years have passed since then.

"The village water mains stopped short of our street when we first erected these vine-clad mansions, and so we had a well dug on our lot line. It seemed impossible that such a comparatively small hole could make such a mountain of sand and earth around it when done and the question was how to get it smoothed, down and spread out. We could not get rid of it and that was where Ralph had his inspiration. He said that Old Man Bokes, who had a sort of farm down the road, owned a horse and scoop plow and he was certain he would be glad to loan us the combination.

"He proved his faith, too. That was the most interesting horse I ever saw. At first glance you never in the world would have thought it was a horse. Structurally it was a combination of the Eiffel tower, an elephant and all the bones in the catacombs of Rome.

"We set to work with the scoop, circling the mound of dirt about the well, which had been dug square. I suppose that walking in circles does make one lose his bearings—at any rate, Ralph drove the nag cross-lots over one of the angles of the excavation and then let out a mighty shout when the right hind leg of the horse disappeared down the well. When I turned to see what all the excitement was about I saw Ralph frantically hanging on to the horse's tail, with one foot braced against the animals' spine, in this endeavor to hold him up.

"The horse, never taking his reproachful eyes from his driver's face, was slowly but inexorably disappearing, rear end first, into the earth.

"'Look at him!' Ralph cried. The horse had gone down the hole, but his mournful head projected above the ground. His expression plainly said that his future was entirely up to us.

"Worse still, Old Man Bokes at the moment came ambling down the pike to see how the work was getting along. When he saw the situation of his faithful pet he became excited and we gathered that he felt we had torn the animal from its happy home solely for the purpose of burying it alive.

"Other neighbors came running at the sound of his lamentations and all tried to help, but the horse remained utterly oblivious to our whistles, clucks and various expressions of endearment.

"We knew that we had to get that horse out for two reasons. One was that we wanted to use the well eventually and the other was that we really

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hanging The Flag

Mr. Editor:

Yesterday was Flag Day and I have no doubt your fair city paid homage to "Old Glory."

But, on Deporation day I traveled quite a distance through Eastern Connecticut, my native soil by the way, and while I saw hundreds of flags, most of them hung flat, yet with but one single exception everyone was hung backwards.

The regulations issued several times a year by Washington specify that in case of a flag hanging flat, that is to say, against a house or porch, the union shall be on the flag's right, that is to say, that as you look at a flag the Union should be in the upper left hand corner regarded of whether the flag is suspended from the end or the side.

Will you not, dear Bulletin, do a little missionary work?

Yours very truly,
W. H. PRICE

What Did Dad Say?

Little Joe was in the yard the other evening catching lightning bugs. After catching one he held it in his hand for some time, turning it over and over. Finally he inquired of his father: "Dad, where does this bug turn on?"

Little Drops of Water on Stone

Harry tells the following story: A friend of his, a salesman with a reputation for an odd twist of humor, one day saw a wealthy manufacturer, to whom he had been trying to sell his goods for some time, sitting at the front window of his office idly playing with a pencil. The salesman entered, presented his card and was told that the president was busy. He hurried outside in time to see his prospect slowly tear his card to bits and toss them into the waste basket.

At the same time the next day the incident occurred and each week for more than a month the procedure was carried out. Then the young man had an aluminum card made. As he presented it at the customary hour, he told the secretary to tell the "boss" to tear that up if he could. Shortly after he was admitted to the inner sanctum and made a sale.

Edward Capern, the Lace Maker, an English Poet

Sometimes, out of the most dire distress—out of lack of everything, including even health itself—there comes most unexpected blessings. The one who grumbles, the one who is disagreeably discontented, often merely advertises his unwillingness to work. For the man who will work, every door is open, every opportunity at hand. The faint heart seldom wins fame. The story of Edward Capern, an English once-dumb Helen Keller shows what the will to work can accomplish in spite of every handicap. So, too, the story of Edward Capren, an English poet shows what those who might complain can really do if they wish.

If you could have gone into a place where a number of people were at work making lace in 1845, in England, you would have seen the workers bending closely over their work. In those days modern machinery was not in use. The hands and the eyes were constantly employed in quick and delicate work. Among the workmen you would have seen a slender, pale young man of about 25, bending very closely over his task. You would have seen him peer at the threads, wipe his eyes, and peer again. You might have seen him shudder as the thought flashed through his mind: "I can't see! What am I going to do?" A year later, 1846, found Edward Capern struggling still more. He peered more closely at his work: he wiped his eyes more frequently; and he looked ahead to the future fearfully. The next year, 1847, found him blundering with the threads and spoiling the work.

One day he broke down altogether, ruining the lace he had been at work upon. The master could keep him no longer—and out he went, jobless, half-blind, wretched, 28 years old, with no knowledge of any other kind of work. That was why he became famous. That was why he is remembered today nearly 30 years after his death at the age of 75. For a while he did starve. Then, through his own efforts, he won a place as mail carrier in a country district. He could read little—but he had most of the day in which to think. He began to hum songs as he went along with his bag and began to make up new ones. He sang them to his friends, and wrote them down. They liked them; he made up others. People began to ask him for copies, and at 37, nine years after he lost his job as lace-maker, he became an author, seeing his first book of poems published. Those who read his work liked the honest swing of it and asked for more. So, from year to year, as he went along the country road with his bag of mail, he made songs and poems, and issued new volumes.

Sometimes, out of his happy heart, he made up the music for his own songs. One of his books he called Wayside Warbles. When he grew old, and unable to trudge along with his mail any longer, the British Government gave him a pension and so he lived to a serene old age, dying in 1894 at the age of 75. Out of misfortune, and out of partial blindness, he sang his way into fame!

NOT QUITE APPLE TIME

Mrs. W. B. Bailey

"Here, children, have a nice red apple, each of you, said Mrs. McMillin, a neighbor who had recently moved into the last house on the block.

"Thank you!" said Billy as he took his apple while his blue eyes sparkled at its beauty.

"You'll not be vexed if we wait a few minutes to eat them, will you?" Dena's wondering brown eyes seriously considered the woman's face. "You see it is not quite apple time."

"Now the idea!" exclaimed Mrs. McMillan, "some of this book stuff, I guess, I'll just find out."

"Yes," explained the children's aunt, who was caring for them during the six month's enforced absence of their mother, "we have breakfast at eight, for the children at ten, dinner at twelve, apples or some other kind of ripe fruit at three and a light supper at six."

"Don't they ever want things at other times?"

"Perhaps, once in a while, but usually they eat so well at meal times they are not hungry at others.

"When I took the children five months ago Dena was five pounds under weight and had the reputation of eating almost nothing. I watched even before her mother left and noticed that the child ate so continuously between meals that, of course, she had little appetite when called to the table. There she expected to be begged to eat and it had become a sort of game with her. She almost always asked for something later even before we had the dishes washed. So I established this rule and she weighs above the standard now, eats heartily and, although I do not coax nor insist she knows that she must go hungry until the next regular eating time if she fails to eat what she needs at any one of them.

"The children are perfectly happy as you can see, and as healthy as they are happy."

"Well, I don't do things that way, but I don't need to for my children are all over weight and they eat any time and anything they can ... also let them have as much of anything as they wish until it is a ... I don't believe in trying to raise them by book rules.

"Are your children really always in perfect health?"

"O, of course they have spells with their stomachs—inherited the weakness from their father, I think."

The aunt said nothing but thought that the trouble might not be entirely due to inheritance.

Power and the Baby

When a baby cries it means hard labor for himself as well as for his afflicted parent. Drs. J. R. Murlin, R. E. Conklin and M. R. March of the University of Rochester have been conducting careful measurements of the energy used up by crying babies, and they find that the metabolism, or rate of feed use, by crying babies is markedly higher than that of infants contentedly cooing or sleeping in their cribs. Crying 1 per cent of the time increases the use of energy 1 per cent; so that if a baby cried all the time it would double its energy requirements and would double its amount of food it would need.

Assuming that a child could ... up such a distressing performance for a day and a night, and, assuming further, that one-fifth of the energy could be transferred into muscular work, the doctors calculated that on this basis this imaginary long-time squaller could develop enough power to lift himself to the top of the Washington Monument.

Valedictory Address.

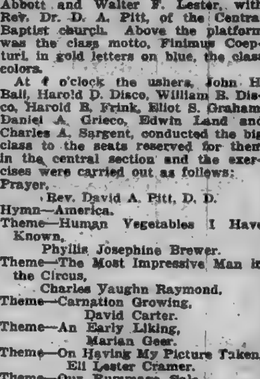
The valedictory address was delivered by Miss Elizabeth Storrs Avery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight L.



JOHN GASKELL HASLAM
Class President

Avery, of Norwich Town, and in her last words to the school from which she graduates she spoke as follows:

Parents and Friends, Gentlemen of the Board of Trustees, Mr. Tirrell, Teachers, all who have helped to give us our high school course, we thank you for the training that we have received these last four years. We are grateful for the sacrifices you have made and the effort, time and money you have spent for us. Can you not find some of your payment in the feeling that you have helped to educate, better to prepare for the duties of life, some of the youth of today? May you be recompensed by seeing the effect that this education has in our lives.

Classmates, today marks a step in our course. We have come to our high school graduation. This, however, should not mark the ending of our education. Some of us will go on with our studies; others will go out into the business world. None of us need think that our education has finished. There are always opportunities to learn new things! Let us all advance.

In not many more years it will be our generation who will be carrying on the greater part of the work of this world. Perhaps many of us have found fault with the way in which the older generation is now doing its part. Soon we shall have an opportunity to see what we will do. Are we going to have a better or worse chapter in history than the preceding generation? May one of our aims be to secure world brotherhood. Let us do away with racial hatred and wars and have a love for our brothers of all nationalities. We think today in terms of the world more than our early ancestors did. Yet, there is surely room for advancement in our relations with other peoples.

Other fields lie open for progress. Let us in our youth lay a good foundation for the work that lies before us. Our high school course has been a step of preparation.

May we so live our lives that we shall make the world better and thus work with God.

Principal Tirrell Presents Diplomas.

Your course of study with us is ended. You are about to begin other tasks.

We trust that you are leaving us with some sense of the responsibilities and opportunities that are yours. Your usefulness will depend very largely on your attitude toward duty and toward service. I would emphasize especially in these last words the great differences between doing fairly well and doing one's best. The difference between the athlete who runs 100 yards in eleven seconds and the one who runs in ten seconds seems perhaps trifling, only 10 per cent. But that 10 per cent. of excellence separates one man from thousands. In all walks of life the slight apparent difference in attainment makes a tremendous difference in effort, in influence, in final accomplishment. In a four-mile race if one crew goes 30 feet to a stroke and the other goes 29 feet 11 inches the difference is trifling, about one-quarter of one per cent., but the difference accumulates in the four miles to 60 feet at the end of the race. Keep in mind the great importance of doing your best.

And now on behalf of the trustees of the Academy I have the pleasure of presenting you with your diplomas.

In accepting the gift, President Palmer spoke earnestly but briefly to the class, mentioning the fact that the graduates in this class numbered more than all the students in the Academy when he was a student there. He expressed his great appreciation of the themes which had been read, which he said impressed him as an unusual series of essays, both as to the subjects chosen, the imagination shown and the human interest put into them. He went on to say that there was one attribute which he wished to place before the graduates and that was loyalty to the school. All that they had enjoyed of the opportunities offered by the Academy, he said, had come out of the self-sacrificing generosity of the founders and those who had continued that work, and he urged the graduates so to act and so to speak that the reputation of the school would be enhanced in their hands, reflecting their gratitude and their interest in the school.

He based his talk on Proverbs, 29th chapter, 18th verse, "Where There Is No Vision the People Cast Off Restraint."

CENTRALS BLANK YANTIC TEAM 13 TO 0, IN LOOSE PLAYED GAME

The Centrals won their second straight game in the twilight League, Tuesday Evening, when Zip Gero applied a generous coat of whitewash to the Yantic Mills Team, shutting them out 13 to 0.

As in the first game, they swamped the Palace Team 13 to 6, the Centrals played like champions. They made a total of 16 hits, five of which were doubles, off the delivery of Jerry Lamphere, and their fielding was faultless. Eccleston, led his teammates with the stick, getting two doubles and a single in four trips to the plate, while Eddie Murphy was close behind with a double and two singles. Tombari also hit well, making three singles.

Gero, who has been pitching for Chapman Tech this season, was in fine form. Although touched up for seven hits, he was especially strong in the pinches, and Yantic could do little with his delivery when hits meant runs.

The Centrals scored enough runs in the first inning to win the game, when they tallied twice on singles by Courbois, and Eddie Murphy, and a double to left field by Gaudette. They resumed their attack in the third with three more runs. Eddie Murphy opened the inning with a double, and after Gaudette had grounded out to Ainsworth, scored on Eccleston's two base hit to right. Yerrington shot a single to the same sector, and Eccleston scored. Yerrington stole second and then came home on Tombari's one base hit to left. In the next inning, the Centrals made a farce of the game, scoring five more runs. In this inning, they just batted around and as a result of successive singles by E. Murphy, Gaudette, Yerrington and Tombari, and a double by Eccleston, brought the score to 10 to 0. In each of the last two frames, the present league leaders, counted once making the final score 13 to 0.

The nearest the Yantic Team came to scoring was in the third. Jerry Lamphere opened the attack with a single to left. After H. Lamphere had flied out to left, Burns also singled to left, J. Lamphere going to second. Marchand shot a hit into right, but Jerry Lamphere was caught at the plate on Gaudette's perfect throw to Eccleston. Smith ended the session by grounding out to Yerington.

The fans will have a chance to witness what should be a real pitching duel tonight when the St. Joseph's team meets the Palace team.

Either Mike Morin or "Bullet" Shahan will toe the rubber for the Palace team, while "Tony" West, star twirler of the hospital team, will shoot them over for the St. Joseph team. Both of these boys have plenty of stuff and a world of speed and should furnish plenty of excitement for everyone present.

It has been quite a time since Shahan has performed in Norwich, as he has been doing all his pitching in the last two years in New London, for the Robert Gair Co. team, which finished second in the Twilight league in that city last year. Shahan has picked up a lot of experience in New London and will, no doubt, send plenty of the boys back to the bench after they take their three healthy swings.

There is no need of mentioning the work of Tony West, as everyone that has warmed a bleacher in these parts during the last few years, knows what this boy is capable of doing. Last week in the last two innings that he pitched against Yantic he struck out six men in a row. The remainder of the St. Joseph's team is as follows: Henry Mileskje, catch; Izbicki at first, Frank Busch at second, Steve Hoffman on third, Cimochowski on short, and E. Busch, Leo Cimochowski and Brownie Chalicki in the outfield.

What lineup the Palace will use is not known, except that Morin will use a few new men tonight.

Tonight the fans that come over to the Duwell field will have a chance to see "Hank" Morin, considered the best umpire in eastern Connecticut, in action. The fans have done considerable crabbing about the two umpires that have been working so far this season and as the league officials realize that the fans must be pleased, they have signed up Morin to umpire the remaining games of the league schedule. Morin has already proved himself a hard, honest worker by his work at the Hospital and at the N. F. A. games. He keeps things moving from the beginning right to the finish of the game and has proved himself boss. Everything possible is being done to make this league a big success and it is hoped that the fans will do their share.

YALE SMOTHERS HARVARD IN FREE-HITTING GAME

New Haven, June 16.—(AP)—Smothering three Harvard pitchers under a deluge of hits and runs, the Yale baseball team won the first of the annual series, 25 to 15, at the Yale field this afternoon before thousands of gally garbed alumni and their guests. For the first five innings the score see-sawed back and forth from inning to inning, but in the sixth the Ellis fell upon Phil Spalding's offerings and pounded him out of the box. Puffer and Herrmann, who followed Spalding were of little avail in stemming the Yale tide. With Yale far ahead, Holabird eased up toward the finish of the game.

Brilliantly garmented alumni, back for the reunion exercises coincidental with commencement, made the scene a colorful one. Preceding the game, the alumni, with a score of bands, marched to the field from the campus. After counter-marching on the diamond and cheering President James R. Angell and President Emeritus Arthur T. Hadley, heads of the university, who were occupying special boxes, the graduates took their places in the right field stand which had been reserved for them, and by the spontaneous cheers and queer antics, added much merriment to the occasion.

When the game started Captain Pond was in the box for Yale and against him was Phil Spalding.

Neither team scored in the opening inning, although Harvard threatened when Keene, who had walked and took second on a passed ball reached third on a sacrifice. Zarakov walked but Pond strengthened and struck out Todd and Tobin grounded out.

Both teams scored in the second. Yale took the lead in the third, 3 to 2 and was still ahead at the fourth, 6 to 5. Here Captain Pond, whose hurling had not been quite up to his usual standard, took himself out of the game and inserted Holabird. Harvard found Holabird to their liking and pushed over the tying run in their half of the fifth, but Yale went into the lead again by one when they came to bat.

Harvard again tied the score in the first of the sixth, but their advantage did not last long. Yale suddenly found Spalding's curves to be what they wanted and after three runs had been brought over the plate he was removed in favor of Puffer, who was found for seven hits, which netted six more runs, a total of nine for the inning.

In the eighth, Herrmann, who had relieved Puffer in the seventh, weakened and was pelted for seven hits, which netted nine runs. Score:

CARDS CLEAN UP SERIES WITH PHILLIES

St. Louis, June 16.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals made a clean sweep of their series with the Phillies, winning the fifth and final game today, 6 to 4. The game was marked by much argument with the umpires. In the sixth inning Manager Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals took a couple of punches at Art Fletcher, leader of the Phillies, and both pilots were chased by the arbiters. Score:

MIELA ELECTED CAPTAIN OF WINDHAM HIGH TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, June 16.—John Miela was elected captain of the Windham High School baseball nine for next season at a meeting of the lettermen following the commencement rehearsal today. Miela has been Windham's leading hurler for the past two seasons and his election to the captaincy comes as a well deserved tribute to his proficiency.

With the loss of but two infielders and one outfielder by graduation, Coach T. A. Callaghan for the next season will have plenty of material from which to groom an aggregation to represent Windham. Ivor Prater Arnold Storrs are the two infielders who will be among the missing. Monroe Usher, leading hitter for the locals during the season last week concluded, will also be graduated.

The following will be among the nucleus which will be available for next season: S. Miela, catcher; Haggerty, J. Miela and Dillon, pitchers; R. Pickett, Haggerty, Gadarowsky, and E. Nichols, infielders; and Sawicki, J. Nichols and Merrill, outfielders.

TAFTVILLE CLASHES WITH SACHEMS THIS EVENING

At the Providence street Grounds in Taftville this evening the Sachems and the Taftville A. A. will clash in a seven inning twilight game. Manager Troland of the Taftville team is sending Lloyd Jarvis against the Sachems, heading Lefty Dugas in reserve. The remainder of the Taftville lineup will be the same as last Saturday when the Airlie team of Hanover was turned back with the small end of the Manager McBurney is set on trimming the Taftville team and he will throw his strongest lineup into the battle. Who McBurney will use in the box is unknown other than that he will have some one fully capable of taking care of the Taftville hitters.

As an added attraction at the game the Taftville band will give its public concert of the season. The band will play before the game and will also give several selections between the innings.

BRAVES BREAK WINNING STREAK IN 15 INNINGS

Chicago, June 16.—Boston broke Chicago's winning streak today by going on a batting rampage in the thirteenth inning and taking the final game of the series here, 7 to 4. The locals had won five in a row. The game was a see-saw affair with good pitching on both sides and sensational fielding by Grimth, Pittinger, Elix and Kibble. Manager Bancroft started the rally which tied the count in the eighth when he batted for Ryan. Bush, who replaced Cooper, weakened in the thirteenth inning after two were out and the visitors scored three times. Score:

New Haven Team Wants Games

The Westville Baseball club, New Haven champions of 1924, are on the field again and have won their first two games, trimming the Derby-Shelton Town team and the Lenox of Fair Haven. They are booking games with all the leading clubs in the state and would like nothing better than a game with Taftville club, and the State Hospital team.

They have on the club the best semi-pro players in New Haven namely, Fritz Krall, Lenny Jackson, Bert Cavadini, Ward Brothers, Jim Heerin, Billy Doherty, Dolan Coombs, Bernie Gough and Johnson.

If any of the above clubs want to book a good attraction with a bona fide club, communicate with Frank Perrotti, manager Westville Baseball club, Whalley Ave., New Haven, Ct.

Intercollegiate Polo

Rye, N. Y., June 16.—The Harvard and West Point Polo teams joined Yale in the undefeated class and are now within striking distance of the championship trophy as a result of having won today's games in the third annual intercollegiate Polo tournament at the Westchester Biltmore Country Club.

In the first game of today's card, Harvard defeated Princeton, 16 to 0, and afterwards West Point, winner over Virginia military institute last Saturday, defeated Norwich University of Northfield, Vt., 11 to 1.

BAY STATE FAST CIRCUIT AT THE NORWICH FAIR GROUNDS TRACK

Some of the fastest horses on the eastern tracks got the word today in the opening of the three-day meeting of the Bay State short Ship circuit at the Norwich Fair grounds track. Well over a hundred trotters and pacers are stabled at the track ready for the opening race this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The track is in first class shape, the rain of Monday night doing it a world of good. With the track in such a condition it is expected that the track record of 2:09 1-2 will be broken in the feature event of the meeting, the 2:07 pace on Thursday afternoon.

Today's programme calls for three races, the feature of which will be the 2:13 pace for a purse of $1,000. The other two events are the 2:17 trot, purse $500, and the 2:12 trot, purse $800. In the feature event is Alvin Pointer, Billy Crozier's bay gelding which raced here last year with much success. Another horse that will be in the money is Prigie's Lady, a bay mare, owned by Captain Stanford of Springfield and driven by Art Martin. Keen competition may be expected from Dale Asoff, F. S. Whitcomb's bay gelding. Robert W., Doc Cody's horse and Good Hope, Ed Butler's bay mare.

In the 2:17 trot Bee Worthy looks good to lead the field but the Liberty Bond stables' entry must watch out for Belle-at-Law, Ed Butler's horse and Pitman's Chop Suey. Dewaretta, Johnny Pilgard's entry is liable to give the leaders more or less trouble. The other horses are more or less strangers to the local track and may spring a surprise.

In the 2:12 trot there is not much to go by in picking the logical winner from past performances on the local track. Peter Buskirt, a Pitman entry, is pitted against Peter Cantrill, Johnny Sloan's horse. Both horses were sired by Peter the Great and have made some fast time on the other Bay Shore circuits.

In the first event there have been [illegible] nominated out of which [illegible] be at least 14 starters. There [illegible] nineteen nominees for the 2:17 trot [illegible] eight for the 2:12 trot.

MIKE McTIGUE TO SPEND SUMMER AT OCEAN BEACH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 16.—Mike McTigue, former light-heavyweight champion of the world, will spend the summer in this city at Ocean Beach. This announcement was made known with the decision of the former champ to hire a cottage at the Beach for the summer. McTigue arrived here two days ago for the purpose of visiting relatives but his stop has been lengthened and now comes the announcement that he expects to locate here for the summer. McTigue's wife and three children are also in the city, having accompanied him here.

It would not be a surprise if some morning the milkman saw a man running in the vicinity of the Beach. For McTigue declared that he intends to keep in condition and that he will go through the same training grind as though he was to oppose Paul Berlenbach for his lost title on the next day. He means business and no doubt any embryo light-heavyweight who wants a little practice can engage in a sparring match with McTigue.

It is the intention of McTigue to visit friends in Providence some time this week. Probably his training to keep him fit for his next fight will not begin until next week. But, at any rate, there is a prospect for any admirer or boxer who would like to see the former Light Heavy champ in person to do so at any time before he makes the trip to Providence.

There seems to be no particular bout in the future for which McTigue must get ready, but it is expected that he will demand a return engagement with Berlenbach in the near future.

YANKS PLAY LOOSE GAME LOSING TO TIGERS

New York, June 16—Loose playing by the Yankees enabled Detroit to win today, 5 to 3. It was the ninth time this season that the New York club failed to extend a two-game winning streak. Babe Ruth hit his third home run of the year and also got a double.

Fred Merkle, late of the Rochester International League club, joined the Hugmen today and supplanted Wiltse as coach at the third base line. Score:

EHMKE WINS PITCHING BATTLE FROM ROBERTSON

Boston, June 16—Robertson and Ehmke hooked up in a pitcher's battle which the Red Sox won from Chicago, 2 to 1, today, only after the wind had played a decided part in the game. In the fifth inning an error by Davis placed a man on the bags and Flagstead's fly was carried away from the fielders by the wind, and dropped safely for two bases, scoring the winning run. This was Ehmke's fourth straight win in the present Red Sox home stay. Fielding plays by Kamm and Flagstead were features. The score:

HARVARD CREWS HOLD EVENING ROWING PRACTICE

Red Top, Conn., June 16 (AP) — After the wind which had been blowing all day, died down tonight, coach Stevens ordered his crews on the river for evening practice. The varsity was sent for a long paddle to the railroad bridge and back, a distance of eight miles.

The combination and junior crews were given time trials while the freshmen went through a series of racing starts.

The regatta with Yale will open tomorrow semi-officially with a race between two eights composed of waiters and coaches from the Yale and Harvard camps.

SUB BASE BLANKS TABS IN LOOSE-PLAYED GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 16.—The Submarine Base began play in the second round of the City Twilight league by walking away with tonight's game with the Tabs. Playing eleven baseball, with poor pitching, the verdict of 13 to 0 found the Gobs breezing in to an easy win.

Gibbons, for the Base, was at top form in this evening's brilliant performance. He was within a breath of a no-hit no-run game, but Havens, the Tabs' shortstop, spoiled these rather illuminated visions. This was in the seventh frame, and Gibbons was in a hole with the batter with three balls and a strike on him. He had no alternative in the matter and grooved the next ball—result, a line single to left field.

The game had its features, though it offered little chance for a tight game, the Base scoring eight times in the first inning. Hawes stole home in the sixth inning with the final Sub Base Run.

MARKET WAS PROFESSIONAL

New York, June 16—Stock prices swung upward today under the leadership of the railroad shares. Trading continued under the domination of professionals, whose operations were aided by cheap money rates. Business was in slightly reduced volume, the day's sales aggregating about one million shares.

Establishment of a new 1925 freight traffic record in the week ended June 6 stimulated the demand for the rails, with special strength being shown by the northwestern carriers on more favorable weather news. "Soo" performed jumped four points to 52, the common advanced 3 1-4 to 37 and Chicago and Northwestern moved up 2 1-2 to 57 1-2 while net gains of a point or more were recorded by Atlantic Coast Line, Great Northern preferred, Norfolk and Western, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Chicago Great Western preferred, Western Pacific and the Wheeling and Lake Erie issues.

Pool operations were aggressively conducted in a number of public utilities. American Foreign Power jumped nearly five points to a new peak at 44 and was followed into new high ground by American Telephone, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, Electric Power certificates, Kansas City Power and Light first preferred and People's Gas.

Motors also presented several points of strength. Moon motors crossed 24 to a new top in anticipation of increased earnings through sale of the new car to be put on the market this week. Pierce Arrow common and preferred also attained new top prices at 24 3-4 and 77 5-8 respectively. Mack trucks advanced more than 3 points to 180 7-8 and then yielded slightly on profit taking.

Reactionary tendencies again predominated in the oil group, although special buying took place in Independent Oil and Gas, which jumped over 3 points to a new maximum figure at 40 1-2 on reports that the company had received an offer of $4,000,000 for a 50 per cent. interest in its holdings in Lincoln county, Omaha.

Large current earnings furnished the groundwork for another advance in the food and merchandising shares. Robert Reis Associated Dry Goods first preferred, and Douglas Pectin mounted to new high ground, while American Sugar, California Packing, Cudahy Packing, Kinney and Company, Kresge Department Stores, Montgomery ard, New York Canners, Sears Roebuck and a few others moved up 1 to 2 1-2 points.

A temporary burst of strength in United States Steel common sent that stock up to 117 as against a previous close of 115 3-4, but it cancelled nearly all of its gain in the later trading. Other pivotal industrials were well supported, American Can and Baldwin each showing net gains of more than one point at 187 3-4 and 113 3-8, respectively. Dupont was run up nearly seven points to 176 7-8 and General Electric closed nearly 5 points higher at 290 1-2. Burns Brothers A also showed a gain of five points at 106 1-2.

Weakness of Italian lira, which established a new low record for the year at 3.81 3-4 cents, was the feature on the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling ruled slightly higher around $4.85 3-4 but French francs turned reactionary breaking seven points to 4.75 cents. Belgian francs weakened in sympathy but the other European rates showed only nominal changes.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, June 16—Glowing reports from the spring wheat belt, Canada in particular, had a good deal to do today with a big new setback in wheat prices here. One unofficial estimate was current that the Canadian prairie provinces this season would yield 500,000,000 bushels, an amount more than double the total in 1924. Largely as a consequence, the Chicago wheat market closed heavy, 3 to 4 3-4c., net lower, July 1.49 1-2 to 1.49 3-4 and September 1.47 to 1.47 1-4, with corn 3-4 to 1 7-8c., down, oats 1 to 1-8c. off and provisions varying from 15c. decline to a raise of 10c.

Offerings of wheat swamped the finish was at virtually the lowest market in the final trading, and the prices

NEW LONDON FREIGHT HANDLERS MAY STRIKE UNLESS SETTLEMENT IS MADE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 16—A strike of freight handlers in the employ of the New London line here may be the result of the steamship company causing two steamers to arrive and depart from this port daily, for it became known today that the stevedores on the local pier have informed Edward S. Doil, agent of the line, that they will expect to receive compensation at the rate of time and one-half for labor performed on Sundays. The freight handlers let it be known, howlast night revealed the demand to Agent Doil and when no assurance that the demand would be granted, the men quit work, but when Superintendent of Docks Kitchen appeared on the scene a conference was held between a committee representing the freight handlers and Agent Doil and Superintendent of Docks Kitchen, which resulted in the men returning to their labors with the assurance that their demand would be given consideration within a day or two. The freight handlers let it be known, however, that if the demand was not granted by next Saturday that a strike would result.

There are approximately 35 freight handlers employed nightly at the pier and their week work scale calls for 48 hours, this having been performed in six working days prior to the second daily trip being started Monday. The freight handlers contend that to include the necessary hours on Sundays to complete the 48-hour schedule will not be adhered to by them and if any work is performed by them on Sunday they will demand and receive the added compensation or precipitate a strike.

Since the freight handlers made their demand last night a close watch of the railroad's dock property has been made by special agents of the railroad.

Besides the approximate 35 freight handlers, should a strike occur there are about 15 checkers and clerks that would also be affected, making the total number of employes at the pier to be idle 50.

It is believed that the matter will be amicably settled within the next 48 hours.

A large limb of a tree on Lower Boulevard was felled during the high wind of today. A force of workmen of the highway department caused the limb, which obstructed traffic, to be removed from the highway late today.

Two fellows, evidently strangers hereabouts, made a nuisance of themselves late this afternoon by soliciting alms among passengers at the Union station. Captain Richard Kelley and Sergeant Martin Kane, of the railroad's police apprehended the offenders, who were locked up to await trial in the police court tomorrow morning.

A rumor gained circulation the past day or two that the regatta committee of the Yale-Harvard race, which will be rowed on the Thames river next Friday, had changed the rules and regulations for boats other than those connected with the rowing of the varsity race and that instead of allowing craft to anchor at the finish of the race, that no anchorage would be permitted. F. Valentine Chappell, chairman of the regatta committee, when interviewed on the matter this afternoon stated that the report was erroneous and that river craft would be permitted to anchor at the end of the course just the same as has been the case in former years.

Robert M. Smith, assistant superintendent of the New Haven-New London divisions of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad here, has been promoted to superintendent because of the recent promotion of Edward E. Regan to acting general superintendent of lines west. J. F. Doolan has been appointed assistant superintendent in place of Mr. Smith.

In the Waterford town court, late yesterday, Joseph Skolzylas and C. G. Denison were arraigned before Judge Frederick Dipnock, charged with breach of the peace. Both men drew a fine of $5 and costs.

Henry T. Bray, Hartford, has sold to Joseph Segal, New London and Hartford, a house and lot on Bentley avenue, Ocean Beach.

Tyler G. McNamara, Bridgeport, has sold to David Pesnin, Hartford, an undivided one-third interest in a house and lot, corner of Bentley avenue and Easterly place, Ocean Beach.

C. G. McConnell, Lewiston, Me., has communicated with the New London police for the purpose of seeking certain information relative to his sister, who is supposed to reside at 44 Twelfth street. The matter is being investigated by Sergeant John Cavanaugh.

City Manager William A. Holt was given authority recently to cause the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument, State street, to be cleansed and to secure that condition of the structure prior to the Yale-Harvard boat race; the work was commenced today. When a force of laborers began the work of applying a liquid mixture to the structure, the application was spattered upon automobiles that were parked in the rear of the monument with the result that the mixture, which contained strong acid, discolored paint on the hoods and bodies of the machines.

Patrolman Clarence Wells, in making his rounds on Montauk avenue early this morning, discovered a live wire of the Connecticut Power company down and in a position that made it dangerous to traffic. The wire had apparently been dislodged from a pole during the high wind that accompanied an electrical storm earlier in the morning. It was quickly put back in position by a force of repairmen.

One of the boldest robberies to occur in New London in a long time was revealed today when it became known that a young man, in passing along the street yesterday, to make a deposit at the National Bank of Commerce, State street, was held up and relieved of $85, the amount of the intended deposit.

The boy, the son of the proprietor of the Goodyear Shoe Repairing company, 194 Bank street, was given the deposit shortly before 3 o'clock and instructed to go direct to the bank. The boy went through Pearl street and when between that street and State street, on Union, he was accosted by a sailor, who took the money from the passbook the boy carried and returning the book to the youth, the bluejacket disappeared. The boy returned to the shoe store and informed his father of what had occurred with the result that the police were notified, Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to the case and his investigation did not result in a clue being obtained that might lead to the identification and arrest of the thief. No record of the complaint was made at the police station.

Frank Freeman's auto balked when he attempted to put the machine into commission yesterday on State street after he had stopped to transact some business. Mr. Freeman labored with the engine, but it was out of order. He then telephoned to an expert at a garage, but that consumed so much time that an hour and a half slipped away and still his auto was at the curbing. Policeman Clyde Murphy found the stalled machine and tagged it for the owner to appear in court to answer today. He was there and explained to the judge, who sympathized with him to the extent that he suspended judgment.

Tony Longo, a fish dealer at Mystic, was found operating his auto in New London yesterday without having a certificate of registration in his possession. He was ordered to be in court Friday and account for his negligence.

Benjamin F. Edwards, this city, and Miss Viola Jackson, Putnam, were joined in wedlock last night at the Huntington Street Baptist church, the ceremony being performed by the pastor, Rev. Joseph R. Elder. The brother and sister of the groom, Robert F. Edwards and Mrs. F. M. Hedges, attended the couple.

Mrs. Thomas Carey and daughter, Mildred, have returned to their home, Willetts avenue, concluding a visit with Mrs. Catherine Carey, Norwich.

James P. Sullivan, J. P. T. Armstrong and Frederick W. Mercer, residents of Hillside avenue, have lodged complaint with the police because of the alleged continued yelping of dogs owned by James Dignowity, 939 Pequot avenue. Dignowity raises canines and it is alleged some of the younger of the animals quartered on the Dignowity premises bark so continually that the families of the complainants cannot sleep nightly. The complaint is being investigated.

The funeral of Mrs. Clarisa Stedford was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her former residence, Waterford, the services being conducted by Rev. G. H. Strouse, pastor of the First Baptist church, Waterford. Relatives of Mrs. Stedford acted as bearers, interment was in Jordan cemetery.

Funeral services for Edward S. Tefft were held this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at his former residence, 15 Addison street, and were attended by a large gathering of mourners. Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James Episcopal church, officiated. The bearers were Ira M. Comstock, Edwin C. Ford, William Bellamy and Arthur W. Shurts. Interment was in Riverbend cemetery, Westerly.

News has been received in New London of the death, in Buffalo, N. Y., Saturday, of George W. Eastwood, a former resident of this city. Mr. Eastwood, who is a veteran of the World war, is survived by his mother, Mrs. J. A. Traphagen, 38 Evergreen avenue.

JEWETT CITY

The fire started when a spark struck Jewett City about midnight and did more damage to the electric lighting system than has happened in five years. Superintendent Earl Mixson said Tuesday that one transformer was lost, sixteen poles of line wire and thirty-one street lights, besides several circuits being put out of commission. He worked with his helper until late Tuesday night to repair the damage. The house owned by Fred and Emory Campbell was suddenly struck, for after a blinding flash and explosion in the house, they found splintering, glass smashed and completely turned around on the wall, the pieces being scattered over the floor. Fred Campbell had a severe headache the rest of the night and suffered from dizziness the next day. It was reported that a hay barn in a lot on W. C. Kerry's farm was burned. The fire could be plainly seen from the borough.

The order of service of the conference of six churches at Newent Congregational church today (Wednesday), is as follows: 11 a. m., organ voluntary, doxology, Lord's prayer, responsive reading, hymn, No. 15, scripture, solo, Miss Doris Myott, prayer, hymn, sermon, Rev. Esther Caroline, daughter of Mrs. Grace Frink, of Griswold, and Walter Averell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hyde, of Lisbon, were married at the bride's home on Tuesday afternoon at one o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. E. Scates, pastor of the Jewett City Baptist church. The ceremony took place under an arch of laurel, and the living room was decorated with roses. The bride wore white silk crepe, with maline veil and orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and sweet peas. Her maid of honor was her sister, Miss Mabel Frink. She wore orchid georgette with hat to match. The little flower girl was Caroline E. Hill, of Hartford, who scattered rose leaves before the bride as she entered the room. She wore orange voile with rainbow shoulder streamers. The best man was Arthur Avery, of Norwich Town. The bridal chorus from Lohengrin was played by Miss Ellen Prior, of Jewett City, as the party entered the room, and Mendelssohn's wedding march after the ceremony. A buffet lunch was served during the reception, the dining room being decorated in pink, a wedding bell being suspended over the table. Mr. and Mrs. Hyde left by automobile for the White Mountains and will live in the Williamson house on East Main street on their return. The bride's traveling gown was Lavin green poiret twill ensemble suit, trimmed with thibet fur, and a hat to match. Mrs. Hyde received many gifts of money, silver, linen, pyrex and household furnishings. She has been employed with dressmakers both in Norwich and Hartford. Mr. Hyde is clerk in the Jewett City Savings Bank. The bride's gift from the groom was a diamond white gold bar-pin. Her gift to him was a gold watch chain. She gave the bridesmaid a pearl necklace, and the flower girl a pair of white gold beauty pins. Forty immediate relatives and friends were present.

J. C. Savings Bank will close at two o'clock d. s. t., Wed. p. m., on account of funeral of Director Harry Kennedy.—adv.

Miss Esther Frink was very pleasantly surprised at her home last Friday night when about forty of her friends gave her a miscellaneous shower in honor of her approaching marriage to Walter A. Hyde, of Lisbon, which took place Tuesday. Music and games were enjoyed after which refreshments of cake, cookies, and lemonade were served.

The gifts included china, pyrex, linen and many useful kitchen utensils.

The success of the affair is due Mrs. Leon Young, Mrs. Raymond Krug and Miss Clara Hyde.

For the words in the Indian language used by Sarah Gill in her salutatory Thursday evening, credit should be given to Lemuel Fielding of Norwich, who is a real Indian, as he loaned Miss Gill the book from which she obtained the Indian words. Mr. Fielding was present at the graduating exercises, which he enjoyed immensely.

The violin on which Sarah Gill played in the school orchestra at the graduation exercises was presented to her by her great grandfather Lewis D. Crowell of Danielson. While its value is estimated by a professional violinist at $250, its real worth to the recipient, is incalculable inasmuch as Mr. Crowell made the instrument himself.

Gardner, Ben Schleifer, Sol Paquette and Adrieu Maynard. The meeting adjourned until next Monday night.

The Boy Scout dance in Glasgo was very successful netting about fifty dollars. The prize waltz which was for a five dolla, gold piece was awarded James Dolan and his partner Miss Driscoll of Jewett City, and they gave the prize to the scouts towards their Camping Fund. Driscoll's orchestra which furnished music contributed some money towards the fund, while the prompter, F. H. Gilbert gave his services without charge.

Fire broke out at A. E. Hall's saw mill in Foster, Friday, soon after noon and but for the discovery of it, by a woman living in a nearby cottage and her prompt action, it would have proved most disastrous. All of the men had left the woods and supposed everything was all right as everything had been wet down before leaving, as usual. It is thought a spark must have fallen in the slab pile and so started the blaze. The Foster fire warden was notified and he got his workers together and with Mr. Hall's men and other volunteers, the fire was finally brought under control. The slab pile was burned and several acres of land burned over but there was no damage to the mill or lumber. Mr. Hall feels most grateful to all those who assisted in putting out the fire.

The Chipmunk Nursery

Where babies are there love doth grace
And truly sanctify the place.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit was wise enough not to be cross when he discovered that little Mrs. Chipmunk had been playing tricks on him. He was wise enough not to be cross because he was wise enough to realize that he should have known better than to try to follow Mrs. Chipmunk to her home. Even had he found the entrance to that home he couldn't have entered it. It was many times too small. But Peter hadn't stopped to think of that. You know Peter is one of these people who doesn't stop to think.

Had Peter found the entrance he would have found it a round hole just big enough for little Mrs. Chipmunk to pass in and out of comfortably. It was partly hidden under a stone at the very bottom of the old stone wall. Had Peter found it and wanted to dig it larger he couldn't have. There was no telltale sand around that entrance. Only one as small as Mrs. Chipmunk could have found it, and then only by happening to poke his head under that stone.

The doorway was the entrance to a long, very crooked hallway. To begin with it went straight down, then it turned and made its crooked way slightly up. There were several branches. At the end was a nice, big, comfortable room. It was the nursery. In it was a nice bed of soft grass, and in that soft bed were five baby Chipmunks. At this time they had little fur coats and their eyes were open. You see, they were growing very fast. To begin with they had been like Peter Rabbit's own babies, without fur coats, little pink helpless babies.

Now that door by which Mrs. Chipmunk had entered was not the only doorway. Goodness, no! Mrs. Chipmunk would be the last one to be so foolish as to have only one way of getting in and out of her house, especially when she had the care of five precious babies. So there was another door opening on a sunny bank where a little later she would take the children to play. That door hadn't a grain of sand around it either. Only sharp eyes could discover it in the grass of that sunny bank. When Mrs. Chipmunk had made that home and planned that nursery the first thing she had thought about had been the hiding of the entrances.

Now, of course, a great deal of dirt had had to be taken out in the making of such a nice nursery and of all those long tunnels. Yes, sir, a great deal of sand had had to be taken out. Little Mrs. Chipmunk knows as well as any one else that a heap of sand at the entrance to a home is bound to be seen by everyone who passes that way, and so that entrance is no secret. No one is ever in doubt where Johnny Chuck lives; that shining doorstep of sand gives his home away. Of course Johnny has a secret back door with no sand around it, all the sand having been pushed out his front door.

But little Mrs. Chipmunk did even better than this. She had to get rid of that sand or there could be no nursery or no home, but she didn't suppose that that sand should give her secret away. So when she started digging for that home she had started at a different point altogether, and out of that doorway she had taken all the sand. Then when she had finished she had closed that doorway tight. She had packed the sand in along the hallway that led to it so that there was no longer any hole there. Thus all the sand had been left at some little distance from either of her doors, and no one by digging down where the sand had been left would ever have found her home. A very clever little lady is little Mrs. Striped Chipmunk. So she had made the nursery safe for the five babies.

PLAINFIELD

Class night exercises of the class of 1925 were held in the High School auditorium on Monday night. A delightful and interesting program was carried out. The program opened with an overture and march by Leache's Orchestra. The graduating class marched up the center aisle to the stage. The class motto "Fidelis" in gold letters was stretched across the stage front. A welcome address was given by Arthur Stuart Gallup. The class sang "When the Roses Bloom Again." The terrific thunder and lightning storm which swept over Plainfield at eleven o'clock Monday night was the worst in the history of the town. Much havoc to the trees and roofs of houses was caused. Wires were down and Plainfield was without light for an hour or so. The downpour of rain caused many calls to the local garages as cars were stalled with wet coils. Much damage was done to the newly laid cement on the state highway.

Even when you buy but a single slice of ham, it will pay you to ask for Armour's Star. The extra quality is worth getting. You'll favor "Star" flavor.

With the schools of the village closed Director Dessenger has asked the parents to send their boys and girls to the Community House. Instead of letting the children go swimming at the ponds and rivers in this section it is safer for them to swim under the supervision of a competent man at the club.

A regular meeting and luncheon was held Monday night at Dan's Place by the local sportsmen's club. Plans for a regular town football team were discussed. The meeting was in charge of John L. Leahy.

Local business men have been discussing for some time the forming of a local Chamber of Commerce. There are thirty-two business houses in the town and many of the important questions that arise could be easily settled. Moosup has a progressive Chamber of Commerce and it is believed that Plainfield, a larger town, could easily organize a chamber which will be a real benefit to the town. The town is growing very rapidly and it is felt that a Chamber of Commerce could improve the village a hundred per cent.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. David Bassin moved to New York City Monday.

All work on the state highway was suspended Tuesday on account of bad weather.

Monday afternoon at two thirty the Independent Fire Company and Lawton Mills Fire Company were called out to answer a still alarm. The Lawton Mills Company barn in the rear of Miss Katherine Kirby's home was a mass of flames. Ray Archer phoned in the call to the mill office. By work of the men employed in the Standard Roller Company shop a new Dodge sedan automobile was saved from destruction. The building, at one time a stable, was used for a garage by Miss Kirby. The building is a total wreck. The local fire companies worked for an hour putting the blaze out. No other property damage was done.

Several thousand people motored to Plainfield Saturday to attend the Firemen's Field Day. Never before in the history of the town has so large a number been present at any celebration. The huge parade formed on the Community grounds at two o'clock and marched through the new village to the state highway, past the Episcopal church and down through the Main street of the town, up to the Old Village and back to the Community House. It was the largest and most beautiful parade ever witnessed in Plainfield. Several hundred men and women participated. The floats were beautiful and displayed real art and skill. Two bands furnished the music: Plainfield Brass Band and the Boy Scouts Band of Willimantic.

After the parade the fire companies held their athletic meet on the local grounds. The results were: Hose coupling contest, Plainfield Hose Company, first place; Fiskville Hose Company, second place. Hose Carriage contest, Fiskville Hose Company; Ladder climbing contest, Plainfield Hose Company; Mile Flat for firemen, won by Raymond Miller of the Westerly Fire Company; Mile Relay, won by Plainfield Hose Company; 50 yard dash for boys, won by Armond Limerick a local boy; 50 yard dash for girls, won by Elsie Curier; Bicycle race, won by S. Yeskville. First prize, a beautiful loving cup, was won by the Westerly Fire Company for the neatest and best trained company. Second prize was taken by the Boy Scouts Band of Willimantic. The Grange Float won the loving cup for the most original float.

Prizes for other events were: Hose coupling contest, $35; Hose carriage, contest, a loving cup; Mile Flat, a box of cigars; Mile relay for firemen, $6; 50 yard dash for boys, a fountain pen; 50 yard dash for girls, a coffee percolator; Bicycle race for boys, a bicycle tire.

At the dance given at the Community House in the evening the 5 tube radio set was awarded to Miss Eva Carson of Plainfield.

The Field Day Saturday made history for the town and proved to be the most successful celebration ever held. The Chief of the Fire Department of Westerly stated that Plainfield gave the visiting firemen the best and most hearty welcome ever given to them. The deputy fire chief of Norwich stated that Plainfield was a real friendly town and that the reception given visitors was beyond words of praise.

As the visiting companies left town in motor buses they were cheered and given a real send off. A great deal of credit is due the companies of Jewett City, Moosup, Central, Wauregan and Danielson for their hearty co-operation.

A big delegation of local Knights of Columbus attended the 3rd degree held at Jewett City Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mathieu and family motored to Worcester, Sunday, where they spent the day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Drouiet. Mr. Mathieu upon his return to town stated that the whole city turned out to give Carroll and Gauthier, two Holy Cross men, a real send off. He stated that Carroll was presented with a five hundred dollar diamond.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sale of Real Estate

Real Estate Broker John A. Moran has sold for S. M. Cabaud the modern home with large acreage of land located on Canterbury Turnpike. Mr. Cabaud was one of the officials connected with the J. B. Martin Co. in this city and recently sailed for France to take up his duties at the factory in France. The new owner Harvey A. Tibbals of this city will occupy his purchase as his future home.

Broadway Theater

There will be five extra fine acts of B. F. Keith vaudeville at the Broadway theatre the last of this week which promises to eclipse all previous programs shown at that popular playhouse.

Richard Dix arrives at the Broadway theater Thursday in the role of a young man who has lightning in his fists in the Paramount picture, The Shock Punch, directed by Paul Sloane from John Monk Saunders' Liberty Magazine story.

The story has to do with a young millionaire who dreads the thought of getting "soft" and hires a couple of professional pugilists to keep him in trim. The action starts with the first scene, and doesn't let up for a minute.

Frances Howard is the girl in the case. She is the daughter of a building contractor who likes Dix but doesn't take to his fistic accomplishments and tells him that if he wants to stay in good with her he'll have to tone down a bit. This Dix tries to do, but everywhere everyone seems to be tempting him to demonstrate the famous "shock punch" he has developed as the result of weeks strenuous training.

—and he does, not once but several times, and when that old blow hits home, you'll almost break the handles off the seats.

If you don't like The Shock Punch, the motion picture isn't made that will entertain you.

Palace Theatre

The final performances of the Augustin Stock company in "Almost a Hero," will be given this afternoon and tonight at the Palace theatre. This is a clever melodramatic farce comedy and has an excellent surprise ending and it should not be missed. For the last three days of the week starting Thursday night the Augustin Stock players will present an extremely delightful comedy drama, "A Thief in the Night," which had a long run in Boston, Chicago, New York and has been presented by every stock company throughout the country. To our mind, this will be the most enjoyable play presented by this company since their initial performance as it contains wholesome love interest, startling situations, barrels of real comedy and plenty of action, making unusual entertaining features. Ruth Floyd, leading lady, will be seen in the role of Eva Lon the heroine. This is a most exceptional character, and there is little doubt that the popular star of the local stock company will acquit herself with unusual credit and to the delight of her legion of admirers. She is always at her best when interpreting light comedy roles, and the role of Eva Lon is admittedly one of the greatest of the parts ever written. William Augustin will portray the duel role and all of you who recall his work in "Cat and Canary," will be more than pleased with his work in this play. Mr. Augustin has played this role over a dozen different times so we can look forward to an excellent performance from him. In fact, each and every member of the company have roles that call for splendid acting. As an extra added feature the members of the company will introduce vaudeville during the action of the play. Seats are now selling for all performances and reservations can be secured in advance by calling 1645.

Breed Theater

For his fourth picture on his Metro-Goldwyn contract Jackie Coogan has a contrasting story as different from Little Robinson Crusoe as A Boy of Flanders was from Jackie's Long Live the King.

Instead of the glitter of the South Seas and the palm and jungle-clothed islands of the equatorial zone, the East Side of New York is the locale of The Ragman, which is coming to the Breed Theater today and the episodes are those characteristically metropolitan. The appeal of the narrative is intimate, and grows out of the singular association of little Tim Kelly (Jackie Coogan,) and Max Ginsberg, the latter a dealer in rags, sacks, and old iron.

Into the life of this submerged merchant comes little Tim Kelly, who quickly proves his business shrewdness and the partnership of Ginsberg and Kelly results. How the little fellow not only rehabilitates the spirit of the junk dealer but his finances also, is the plot material of what promises to be Jackie's most human and beguiling picture. The nature of the story is such as to lend itself to comedy, a fact which Edward F. Cline, the director, has been highly competent to develop hilariously.

TO A WEED-GROWER.

Teach me the secret of thy loveliness,
That, being made wise, I may aspire
To be
An beautiful in thought, and so express
Immortal truths to earth's mortality;
Though to my soul ability be less
Than 'tis to thee, O sweet sunsmile.

Teach me the secret of thy innocence,
That in simplicity I may grow wise,
Asking from art no other recompense
Than the approval of her own just eyes;
So may I rise to some fair eminence,
Though less than thine, O cousin of the skies.

Teach me these things, through whose high knowledge, I,
When death hath poured oblivion through my veins
And brought me home, as all are brought to lie
In that vast house, common to saint and thanes,
I shall not die, I shall not utterly die,
For beauty born of beauty—that remains.

Perhaps the most interesting building in sofia, the capital city of Bulgaria, is the little round chapel of St. Georgi in the Jewish quarter. It is the one building in the town which has seen the whole of Sofia's history. Originally, so it is said, it was a Roman temple, then it became a church, then a mosque, and now it is a church once more.

Seabely had the new chief of the fire department of a small Berkshire town taken over the reins of office, says the Boston Globe, then he dispatched a letter to a Boston concern dealing in fire apparatus and asked for the price on hose. The company scorned to answer by mail, but sent its star salesman to interview the chief in person and sell him whatever hose he wanted, and, if possible, a ladder truck and a couple of hosewagons. He booked the chief's order for all he wanted to buy—20 feet of garden hose.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH CRUSADERS CONDUCT INSPIRING MEETINGS

Eleven crusaders of the Church Army of the Church of England, enroute from New York to Saint John, New Brunswick, stopped off in Norwich Tuesday on their way to Providence where they will remain over the week end. Clad in attractive olive drab uniforms, bordering on the military, the soldiers of Christ arrived in Norwich and were met by the clergy of the Episcopal churches of Norwich.

With Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity church, Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of Christ church, and Rev. Robert B. Day, rector of Grace church, Yantic, leading, the visitors marched to Trinity church where a short service of welcome was held.

The Church Army Crusaders are lay evangelists of the Church of England who are visiting some of the Northeastern dioceses of America at the invitation of the episcopal bishops of New England. They are in this country to learn what they can of evangelism in connection with the Episcopal church of America and to give a demonstration of church army methods in evangelistic route marches. Their special appeal is to that oft-times splendid but misunderstood fellow who says he has no use for religion.

The crusaders are men of the road, treking their way for the most part from town to town-witnessing en route, prepared to rough it if need be but gratefully accepting meals or hospitality where offered. Each man has a ground sheet and three blankets. The crusaders are in North America for about four months. They arrived in New York recently, spent their first week end in New York, their second in New Haven and are now on the road to Providence, where they will be located this coming week end. From Providence they will work up the coast of Massachusetts through New Hampshire and Maine, stopping at Portland, and from there will make their way to the Canadian border to St. John, N. B., visiting a number of Canadian cities, sailing during the fall from Canada to their home in England.

The service of welcome at Trinity church opened with a procession of the clergy, singing the hymn, Today Thy Mercy Calls Us. Prayer by Rev. Mr. Day followed and the scripture lesson was read by Archdeacon Brown. Following the singing of the hymn, Jesus Shall Reign, the Crusaders knelt at the chancel and sang Breathe on Me Breath of God, after which all standing, sang the hymn, Go Labor On. The service closed with the welcome and blessing extended by Archdeacon Brown, who said:

Men and Brethren of the Church Army Crusaders:

It is my duty and privilege on behalf of New London Archdeaconry and the parishioners of Norwich and Yantic to extend to you a most cordial welcome. The fact that you come to us from our mother, "The Church of England," a mother to whom we owe over two centuries' nursing, care and protection and also an incomparable prayer book and many of the ways, traditions and customs which we revere and love—that very fact predisposes us in your favor. You come to us with your reputation going before you, a reputation for devotion to the church and for zeal in every good word and work; you come to us with the approval and commendation of your archbishops, bishops, and all the clergy in whose parishes you have labored. As we look into the story of your varied work we feel that we have much to learn from you. We are proud of our country and of our American Episcopal church but we are not too proud to learn from you. We trust your crusade will be of benefit both to you and to the churches and individuals whom you may reach. We bid you Godspeed on tour and pray that we may profit by ideas and views which you shall leave behind you and we trust that when you shall sail for your homes you will feel that this crusade has not been in vain.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon an evangelistic service was conducted at Trinity Episcopal church for women. At 7:30 o'clock in the evening an open air service was conducted at Union Square for the general public. The attendance numbered about 100. The clergy of the local Episcopal churches, and clergymen of several other denominations were present as well as Commandant and Mrs. E. W. Wilbur and a delegation from the local Salvation Army.

Mayor Milo R. Waters extended a hearty welcome to the Crusaders after which the visitors conducted an unique evangelistic service. Spirited singing of well known hymns featured the service, which was conducted under the leadership of Captain Arthur Casey who is in charge of the Crusaders. Prayer was offered, the Crusaders kneeling in the square after which several of the visiting soldiers of Christ told of their Christian experience. Captain Casey explained the object of the Crusaders' organization and told of the itinerary while they are in North America. He called attention to the fact that the Church Army is made up of men in all walks of life and of men of all ages. Two of the Crusaders are but mere boys, one being 18 and the other barely 20 years of age.

According to their own stories the Crusaders are made up of coal mine workers, office men and men engaged in engineering. Each man in a short talk gave his civilian occupation and recited his favorite Bible text. Several of the Crusaders gave short sermons on Christianity. The service was finely carried out and the audience was greatly impressed with the earnestness manifested by the "soldiers." Several of the Crusaders served in the English army during the world war and one, a young man in his twenties, was presented a medal for bravery on the field of battle by King George.

At the close of the outdoor service, the Crusaders bearing the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack and led by the local clergymen present paraded from Union Square through Church street to Washington street and up Washington street to Christ church, singing Onward Christian Soldiers as they marched.

Arriving at Christ church a brief service was held commencing about 8:45 o'clock. With J. Frank Corey at the organ, the Crusaders and the church choir formed in a procession and marched to the altar, while singing Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus. The service opened with prayer by Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown, after which Captain Casey expressed his appreciation of the welcome accorded the Crusaders in Norwich and expressed his thanks to the Episcopal clergy for the part they have taken in making the Crusaders' stay a pleasant one in Norwich. Captain Rogers, one of the Crusaders, was heard in a splendid solo and there were brief talks by three of the Crusaders on the need for service, the power of service and the necessity for a change in heart and life before service can come. As in the case of the open air service at Union Square spirited singing of hymns featured the service. The church service had a large attendance.

The Crusaders were quartered at Christ church over night Tuesday. They will conclude their visit in Norwich this (Wednesday) evening when Captain Hansen will give a lecture at the Y. M. C. A. on Twenty-five years

TAFTVILLE

King Philip's war, which drenched New England in blood, began two hundred and fifty years ago this month. The site now occupied by Taftville and the adjoining town of Lisbon played a role in this fight between th esettlers and the Indians, for being part of the land of the Mohegans, it became a strategic point, when that tribe entered the struggle. Near the junction of the Quinebaug and Shetucket rivers was a ford, through which the old Mohegan Trail ran into Rhode Island. It was by this route that the Narragansetts in their invasions of Mohegan territory, advanced on the day of the big fight at Norwich, when their sachem, Miantinomo was killed. Directly west from Taftville in the vicinity of Norwich Town were several Mohegan outlooks, where a good view of this ford could be obtained.

It was in 1675, when King Philip, war lord of the Wampanoags succeeded in forming a powerful alliance among the Indian tribes of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, for the purpose of exterminating the English settlers. An Indian war was inevitable. The rapidly expanding English colonies were crowding the Indians from their fields of hunting grounds and the differences of race, religion, customs and education made assimilation impossible. New England was too small to hold both races, and there was no common ground for compromise.

The war was begun by some of the more unruly Indians. Cattle was shot, crops were stolen and houses robbed. From this unauthorized guerilla warfare, sprang an organized attack upon the whites. Tribe after tribe joined the conspiracy and under the leadership of King Philip, they terrorized entire New England by suddenly swooping down upon settlements and massacring all the inhabitants.

When the Nipmucks, a tribe of Northern Connecticut threw their lot in with King Philip, the Mohegans, who had been friendly to the whites and who took sides against King Philip because of the aid he had been receiving from their hereditary enemies, the Narragansetts, marched into Nipmuck territory, and inflicted punishment by killing a number and taking others prisoners. These prisoners were brought back to where Taftville now stands and a village was built for them near the ford of the Shetucket river. Here they lived for some time under the protection and rule of the Mohegan sachems at Norwich. They were known as the Showtuckets, probably having taken their name from the local river, but they are sometimes called the "surrenderers" because of thir submission to Mohegan rule.

It would be interesting if the site of this ancient Indian village of the Showtuckets could be discovered. There is no exact spot that could be pointed out as being the home of this tribe. The history has come down to us that there was an Indian village here, populated by the Nipmuck prisoners, taken by the Mohegans in King Philip's war, 250 years ago. What became of the Showtuckets we do not know positively. Perhaps later they were assimilated by the Mohegans, or they may have rejoined their own people after the long conflict which ended in King Philip's death, had been fought.

Ivy Oration

Following the exercises at Slater Hall the class went to the north front lawn of the Academy Grounds and Edward Antoofian, the arbor orator, planted a small fir tree. In his address he said:

(This tree, which is planted here, resembles us as a whole. Its future, as our future, is uncertain but hopeful. We, in our youth, are going out of this school with the purpose of attaining to higher ideals and higher standards. We are determined to do our greatest work in life—to give service.

As we go on in life we gather more and more strength, both mentally and physically, to accomplish our task.

We shall continue to gather strength for our task until the coming years wear away our strength and compel us to unload our burden upon the shoulders of the following generation; for them to carry on the standard where we fall.

So this tree, now young and supple, will grow, let us hope, and gather strength until it is a tall [illegible] look up to this tree, even as they will look up to us, if we strive to do our best.

But in later years, we, when passing by, shall look up to this tree and within our hearts cheer our Alma Mater and pray that this monument of the class of nineteen hundred and twenty-five may live forever.

Shortly after 6 o'clock the class supper was served in the gymnasium with President Haslam as toastmastre. The gymnasium was elaborately decorated, the color scheme being gold and blue, the class colors. At each cover was a menu card with blue cover, gold seal on the front page. The menu cards were printed on the Academy press. The programme included the usual reading of the papers by the class poetess, poet, historian, prophet and prophetess. The menu follows:

Chandler Performance

—a ten-mile ride will astonish you!

YOU have heard a great deal about Chandler performance.

You know that a Chandler broke all speed and stamina records when it sped 1000 miles in 689 minutes; that not even specially designed cars have been able to reduce Chandler's record-breaking dash to the top of Mount Washington.

You have heard that you can't clash gears in a Chandler—

—that the smoothness and getaway of the Pikes Peak Motor is no less pronounced than its power—

—that in comparative quality of coach work, the Chandler-Fisher bodies rank with those of any car built.

We invite you to verify all this. We urge you to accept our offer to provide you with a demonstrator any afternoon or evening.

You have definite ideas of motor car values and one ride will make you a Chandler enthusiast.

TWO TRAINS COLLIDED ON NEW YORK ELEVATED ROAD

Thirty Persons Were Injured—Northbound Train Crashed Into Train Standing on the Sixth Avenue Line Near the Yankee Stadium—One Car Was Telescoped and Two Were Derailed—Panic Ensued Among the 1,000 Passengers on Both Trains.

New York, June 17—(AP)—Thirty persons were injured seriously and sent to hospitals but none was killed when two northbound elevated trains of the Jerome avenue line crashed near the Anderson avenue station by the Yankee stadium tonight.

The first train had been halted by a block signal and was struck in the rear by a train whose motorman apparently failed to see the signal. The rear car of the first train was telescoped and two other cars were derailed.

Both trains were jammed with a rush crowd estimated at about 1,000 persons and a panic followed. Every window in both trains was broken by the crash and flying glass was said to have been the cause of many of the injuries.

Passengers were thrown from seats and many were trampled in the rush for exits.

Police began an investigation of reports by passengers that N. J. Ryan, motorman of the second train, had been seen running from the scene of the accident. It was thought that he might be among the injured however, and a check was begun to determine whether this was so.

Motorman Ryan was later found near the scene of the accident and after being questioned by District Attorney John E. McGeenan of the Bronx, was locked up charged with criminal negligence.

150TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BATTLE OF BUNKER HILL

Boston, June 17.—(AP)—Boston lived with its memories today. Early in the morning the crash of howitzers on Breed's Hill on which the battle of Bunker Hill was fought, signalized the opening of the city's observance of the 150th anniversary of the famous revolutionary struggle. More than 30,000 persons, in pageant and parade, portrayed again the historic colonial period. Governor Fuller, Mayor Curley, together with Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, Jesse H. Metcalf, and Peter E. Gerry of Rhode Island, Governor Robert P. Robinson, of Delaware and Governor Aram G. Pothier of Rhode Island took part in the two day observance of the day concluded tonight. The day incidentally marked the 100th anniversary of the ayng of the corner stone of the Bunker Hill monument.

Speaking at a patriotic gathering in old Faneuil Hall, Charles Evans Hughes, former secretary of state, declared that America had been "measurably successful" in establishing a rule of reason. He issued a warning against the dangers of internal destructive forces, the decline of patriotism, from bigotry, and radicalism, and from the overcopidence accompanying health and strength.

He cautioned against the threat to local self-government by socialistic tendencies. He urged perpetuation of the aims and purposes which impelled the acts of the early Americans.

Strongly, he supported democracy and declared intelligence the only solution of its problems, to the extent that the country is successful in its internal affairs will it buildt up a reasonable peace policy abroad, he said.

CITY OF SHANGHAI NOT YET BACK TO NORMAL

San Francisco, June 17.—(AP)—Shanghai, gateway city of China, is not yet back to normal.

With the protests of British officials against the slaying of one of their countrymen, W. W. Mackenzie, by snipers, outside the city's foreign territory, still warm on the wires, the news came today of an attack by a Chinese mob upon a British policeman in the international concession. The policeman, P. J. Gavin, was in a hospital tonight with a fractured skull, his recovery doubtful.

At Peking, the Italian minister, representing the protocol powers, presented another note to the Chinese foreign office emphasizing the gravity of the anti-foreign agitation and urging that the Chinese government take a definite stand for the maintenance of order.

QUALITY, NOT QUANTITY, OF CIVILIZATION NEEDED

Cincinnati, June 17.—(AP)—A civilization of quality to remedy the evils of a civilization of quantity were urged by the Rev. Paul Dresser, of Bath, Me., in an address on the need for scientific birth control delivered here today at the annual convention of the Swedenborg church. He ascribed social wrongs, crimes, and a good share of poverty to indiscriminate procreation which produces children unfit for life and useless to society.

"The laws of countries and of churches favor the production of many children," the Rev. Mr. Dresser said. The state wants citizens regardless of individual worth and the church ever works for numbers.

"In the scramble for numbers it has been overlooked that the worst evils, civil and religious, are due to over production of the human kind. It is true that a high percentage of crimes are due to arrested development, and it is also true that a high amount of arrested development is due to bad natal and post-natal conditions."

THIRD OF FAMILY TO MEET DEATH BY DROWNING AT SEA

New York, June 17.—(AP)—The third member of the Cromwell family, socially prominent in three states, has met death by drowning at sea.

In each case the victim was a woman in the prime of life and without any reason, so far as her family knew, for a mental condition which might lead to her attempted suicide.

Miss Elizabeth Mary Cromwell, a debutante of two seasons ago and member of the Junior League, was drowned yesterday, according to wireless dispatches, when she fell overboard from the Holland-American liner Veendam, en route to Europe.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Cromwell and a second cousin of Misses Dorothea and Gladys Cromwell, of New York, who leaped to death from the decks of the liner La Lorraine in January, 1915, while returning from Red Cross work in the war zone.

Her parents received a wireless message today from the Veendam, saying, "Your daughter fell overboard this morning. Every effort made to rescue her, was futile."

"I believe her death must have been due to an attack of vertigo," said her father. "I telephoned our family physician, who inoculated her for typhoid before she sailed, and he assured me she was perfectly healthy and not subject to any morbid tendencies."

MACMILLAN STARTS ON NINTH ARCTIC VOYAGE

Boston, June 17.—(AP)—Amid the din of roaring guns and shrieking marine whistles, Lieutenant Commander Donald B. MacMillan, and his little crew sailed from the Charlestown navy yard shortly after noon today on the steamer Peary to start officially his ninth voyage into the Arctic.

When the Peary passed beyond sight of the crowds which lined the pier and cheered the modern Vikings a fervent farewell, MacMillan left the steamer and boarded an automobile to speed over the road to Wiscasset, Me., where his schooner Bowdoin is anchored and ready to sail north on Saturday. The Peary will not arrive in Wiscasset until tomorrow at daybreak.

Just before the Peary sailed, MacMillan outlined his plans to the notables and the throng of Bunker Hill day celebrants assembled to wish him God speed.

He explained that his original plan, the exploration of the vast and unknown tract called Crocker Land, might be delayed a week to permit his expedition to search for Captain Roald Amundsen, who has been lost to the world since he started his polar flight almost four weeks ago.

If word is not received from the Norwegian explorer by August 1 when the MacMillan expedition expects to reach Etah, Greenland, the northernmost point its ships can go, MacMillan's flyers will begin a search. Amundsen, he said, will run out of food tomorrow if he has failed to reach Cape Columbia. The American believes that the lost explorer will be found in one of the three places he plans to search.

Amundsen's fate settled, MacMillan's party will fly to the unknown polar continent to complete their original task. He said that he expected to remain there until the middle of August and probably would return to the United States about September 20

The three amphibian planes, which the Peary carried on deck when she sailed, will allow MacMilan to accomplish as much in one day as he would in 15 months if confined to the use of ships or dog teams, he said.

After high officials had devoted all of their remarks in eulogizing MacMillan and Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Byrd, head of the expedition's naval flying unit, the explorer called public attention to the six navy petty officers and enlisted men, with his party as pilots and mechanics.

"Upon these heroes, up until then unhonored and unsung, rests the success of the expedition," he said. When word of a notable achievement comes from the north, it will be the result of their work, he predicted.

Rum Chasers Not to Molest Pleasure Craft

Instructions Issued by Rear Admiral Billard, Coast Guard Commandant.

Washington, June 17—Frequent conflict between coast guard craft seeking rum runners and pleasure boats along the Atlantic coast has prompted Rear Admiral Billard, coast guard commandant, to issue orders that vessels "which may be plainly recognized as yachts or as craft used solely for pleasure" are not to be stopped.

Admiral Billard at the same time issued an appeal to all American yachtsmen and owners of pleasure craft to help the coast guard by "having nothing whatever to do with rum running tugs and motor boats, and by giving due heed to coast guard vessels in their vicinity and by being alert to stop promptly when signalled to do so."

"Coast guard vessels," the commandant's statement added, "are easily recognized and all of them fly the distinguishing coast guard ensign."

Pleasure craft owners also were urged to aid the coast guard by advising its crews or stations when they learned of a foreign rumship hovering off the coast.

Pointing out that the "trying, arduous and difficult task" of checking rum running along the seaboard with a new duty added to the historic work of the coast guard in giving aid to life and property in distress at sea, the admiral declared:

"The coast guard is performing this duty of preventing the smuggling of liquor from the sea earnestly, actively and aggressively. It proposed to bend every effort to prevent contract by American craft with rum ships off our coasts.

"The active operations of the coast guard in upholding the law naturally require that many vessels and boats be stopped for examination. In this matter, the service desired to interfere with law abiding citizens afloat to the least possible extent, consistent with the performance of its duty.

"As it may reasonably be presumed that yachtsmen and owners of bona fide pleasure craft are not engaged in smuggling liquor from the rum fleet, this office, after mature consideration, has issued orders that vessels which may be plainly recognised as yachts or as craft used solely for pleasure be not stopped, boarded or searched for the purpose of ascertaining if they are smuggling liquor, unless they be found communicating with or hovering about rum ships, or unless other particular suspicious circumstances require that they be stopped, boarded and searched."

Prior to the issuance of the coast guard order, the internal revenue bureau received a protest today from the national civil service reform league based on the action of prohibition agents in shooting at a pleasure launch Thursday on the Detroit river. An inquiry into the incident already had been ordered.

There have been a dozen or more protests along the same line, but in most of them, the prohibition agents or coast guard crews affected have established that their acts were within the law. In one or two cases pleasure craft had failed to heed stop signals from the coast guard crews and shots were fired across they bows. Officials have not yet obtained sufficient information for a decision on the Detroit incident.

During the day, Comptroller General McCarl issued a ruling that may serve to increase Admiral Billard's dry navy, holding that the coast guard may use prohibition or customs service funds to pay for the repair, maintenance and operation of vessels seized in the rum running campaign and turned against the smugglers, coast guard officials never have let it be known how many of the seized boats could be utilized, but the impression given has been that several score of the seized vessels were, or could be made serviceable at small cost.

At least a score of persons are still in hospitals at Easton, Phillipsburg and Dover suffering from injuries. Several of these are in a critical condition from scalds and burns.

Warren County officials today were conducting three separate investigations. Prosecutor S. C. Smith, Jr., of Phillipsburg, who had investigators at work all day, tonight expressed the opinion that the wreck had been caused when the locomotive left the rails and striking a switch covered with sand and dirt washed down by the violent electrical storm at the time of the derailment. So far, he said, he had discovered nothing to indicate negligence by the railroad company.

REPORTS CONFIRMATIONS OF DAWES REPARATIONS PLAN

Facts Given in Detail by S. Parker Gilbert, American General Agent For Reparations—Finds That Confidence and Conciliation is Replacing Distrust and Discord—Acknowledges Cooperation of the Allied Governments, the German Government and all Other Agencies Concerned in the Execution of the Plan.

Berlin, June 17.—(A. P.)—The substitution of confidence and conciliation for distrust and discord has been the outstanding accomplishment of the experts' reparation programme known as the Dawes plan, in the opinion of S. Parker Gilbert, the American agent general for reparations.

His observations on the working of the London agreement of 1924 which put the Dawes plan into effect, are recited with great detail in a report made public today covering the last eight months:

The period under discussion includes the temporary administration of Owen D. Young, generally considered the genius of the new reparations plan, during September and October of 1924, and the six months ending April 30, when the agent general's organization was in complete charge of carrying out the provisions of the London agreement.

"Its early operation has fulfilled expectations and this report is written in the belief that information regarding what has been done will assist both in creditor countries and in Germany toward confirming those forces which are working for reconstruction."

Mr. Gilbert states in the introduction of his report to the reparations commission.

The experts plan, the report states, proposed in effect an international experiment in good will, in that it aimed to remove from the field of controversy a subject which was largely economic in character, and to give a fair trial to methods of patient inquiry and quiet administration.

Mr. Gilbert acknowledged the loyal co-operation of the allied governments, the German government and all other agencies concerned in the execution of the plan.

He cites the condition of the German budget and currency as an indication of the measure of progress achieved in promoting Germany's economic rehabilitation. In his opinion German industry possesses resources for production on a large scale, although there still is a serious shortage of working capital and a need for building up foreign markets, one of the most serious problems facing Germany, says the agent general, is the need to adapt itself to stable conditions as compared to those which existed during the inflatation period.

The two essentially preliminary objects of the programme, the balancing of the German budget and the stabilization of German currency, have been realized, says Mr. Gilbert, if the German budget for the fiscal year of 1924-25 reveals a safe balance of receipts over expenditures which will enable the government to liquidate many outstanding liabilities and provide cash reserve for the future.

Referring to the national currency the report observes that the result, measured in terms of international purchasing power it has varied only within limits practically identical to those of other stable currencies. Germany's ability to develop foreign markets is viewed less optimistically by the agent general who states that the foreign trade of Germany since stabilization of her currency has on the whole been adverse.

Referring to problems revolving upon German finance, Mr. Gilbert asserts that the main reliance in the long run must be on the growth of domestic capital and willingness to broaden the base of home credits, which was narrowed by inflation. This situation, he stated, "will take the real leadership and general willingness to face the facts as they are and to work out these various problems to a solution."

Germany's payments in cash and deliveries in kind during the period covered by the report aggregate 620,643,419 gold marks, of which 277,807,233 were deliveries in kind. Other payments included the following:

Restorations of the Louvain library 680,425; reparations recoveries 133,500,000; armies of occupation 87,000,000; requisitions, damages and furnishings in the Rhineland 24,000,000; furnishings in the Ruhr 32,200,000, and the following administrative and control costs: Reparation commission 4,200,000; Rhineland high commission 5,500,000; military mission of control 7,000,000; office for reparations payments 2,000,000.

In the past few months about 130 such contracts have been executed. Some of the larger and more interesting will provide France with 168,000 telegraph poles, costing approximately 1,652,000 marks, the completion of two ships at 14,500,000 gold marks; 4,000 railway trucks costing 23,615,000 gold marks.

The sums paid to the major cointe creditors amounted to the following: 247,700,000 gold marks to France, 148,700,000 to Great Britain; 66,000,000 to Belgium and 44,000,000 to Italy. Other credits countries, including Jugoslavia, Rumania, Japan, Portugal and Greece received deliveries in kind to the value of 32,322,000 during eight months.

The payments to Great Britain have been almost wholly through the operation of the reparation recoveries act, the ultimate adjustment of which Mr. Gilbert reckons as one of the accomplishments achieved in connection with the official working of the Dawes plan and the transfer principle.

AN OPTIMISTIC STATEMENT BY CONGRESSMAN TILSON

New Haven, June 17.—(A. P.)—After a European trip which lasted several months Congressman John Q. Tilson, who is again back in Connecticut, said today that he was returning more than ever convinced that President Coolidge's policy of rigid economy and tax reform is the correct remedy for what he characterized as the abnormal conditions still existing in this country.

"While abroad," he said, "I tried to observe conditions carefully and obtained as much information as I could concerning political and economic conditions. I return with the conviction that throughout the world, the pendulum of public thought is swinging toward conservatism—away from the belief in quack remedies for public ills and back to the principle that the success of the state as well as the individuals who compose it, must be founded on hard work, economy and common sense."

MAYFLOWER TO ANCHOR NEAR THE SUMMER WHITE HOUSE

Washington, June 17—The Mayflower was ordered today to leave Washington navy yard Saturday for Marblehead, Mass., and anchor near the summer white house at Swampscott. The will enable it to arrive in New England waters before the president reached the white court next Wednesday to begin his vacation.

The yacht, which will be based at Marblehead, during the summer to be available to President and Mrs. Coolidge for cruises along the New England coast, will carry white house servants and a detail of marines who will guard white court during the president's stay.

On the Mayflower also will be two white house pets—Rob Roy, the white collie, and Paul Pry, the airedale. Recovered from a threatened attack of pneumonia, Rob Roy got back to the white house today after being treated for several days in a veterinarian hospital.

CONTEST OVER WITNESS IN SHEPHERD TRIAL

Chicago, June 17.—(AP)—Guarded in a hotel for months as a principal witness in the trial of William Dering Shepherd, charged with feeding typhoid germs to his millionaire foster son, William Nelson McClintock, Charles C. Faiman was not called as a witness today by State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, who said he would not vouch for Faiman, and asked the court to question the witness.

The motion to have Faiman examined by Judge Thomas J. Lynch was opposed bitterly by William Scott Stewart and W. W. O'Brien, the defense attorneys, but Judge Lynch indicated he would call Faiman, examine him, and permit both prosecution and defense to cross-examine him.

Decision on the matter was held in abeyance, however, until tomorrow morning. Counsel will be given a further opportunity to cite precedent.

"If Mr. Crowe will say the witness is not worthy of belief I have no objection to the step," argued Stewart.

"I do not say that," stated the prosecutor. "I simply mean the state does not vouch for him and does not wish to be bound by his testimony, that of a man jointly indicted with the defendant and a confessed accomplice who more than once has changed his story."

The defense argued that State's Attorney Crowe was not acting in good faith, and that the prosecution hoped through the move to broaden its scope of questioning the man heretofore hailed as the state's "star" witness.

Prosecutor Crowe gave this as his reason for not wanting to have Faiman called as a state witness.

WILLIMANTIC

Exercises in celebration of the graduation of the class of 1925, Natchaug Grammar school, were held Wednesday evening in the assembly hall of Windham High school, and attended by an enthusiastic crowd of friends, relatives, "old grads" and interested outsiders, that taxed the capacity of the hall to the limit. How rubber can be speeded up and made to do in a few hours what ordinarily takes several years was revealed to the American Chemical Society in Baltimore recently by L. M. Blaney and C. G. Davis of Boston. By increasing the concentration of oxygen, they reported natural aging could be duplicated in a short time.

DANIELSON

State Officer Edward Strawsma of the Danielson barracks continued on Wednesday his investigation of the death at Central Village Tuesday night of Solomon Anthony of that place, son of Peter Anthony.

The investigation appears to indicate that the youth fell from his bicycle and did not have time to arise before the automobile driven by Baril of Moosup came along and ran over him, causing practically instant death. The back of the youth's head was smashed in and his chest crushed, as though a wheel of the car had passed over it.

A spotlight that the youth had been carrying, to answer the state's requirements as to having a light on a bicycle during the night season, was found near where the body lay in the highway. When picked up this device could not be lighted, and there is no way of establishing whether it was in working order before the boy fell off his bicycle, as it is assumed he did.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill is collecting information relative to the accident, having commenced his investigation shortly after the youth was killed.

No action had been taken against Baril on Wednesday, and it was not indicated at that time that any would be. In the car with Baril at the time of the accident was Edward Doyle who was seated beside the driver; Joseph Baril, brother of George, and Alcide Lemire, all of Moosup.

Peter Anthony, father of the victim of the accident, was terribly shocked when he came along to see why a crowd had gathered and was told that his boy had been killed.

The plea of nolle contendre of George Butts to a charge of reckless driving was accepted a session of the town court Wednesday morning and a fine of $25 and costs imposed, all but a dollar of the fine being remitted. Mr Butts paid $13.56.

Mr. Butts' appearance in court grew out of a collision Monday evening, between an automobile he was driving and another machine owned and driven by Ulysses Jessup of Academy street, Danielson, Mr. Jessup suffering a broken collar bone in the accident. Mr. Jessup said Wednesday morning that he will bring a civil suit for damages against Mr. Butts.

Beginning probably this (Thursday) morning mail from New York and points west will be received here about 5 a. m. on the arrival of the train that since the first of the week has been carrying milk, express, parcel post and newspapers, but no passengers or first class mail. This new arrangement also will benefit Jewett City and Putnam. The early train will bring locked pouches of mail, no mail clerk being assigned to the train and the pouches to be made up on the mail train out of New York that is due in New London about 3:50 a. m. If some similar arrangement to get a mail out of Danielson later than 4:27 p. m. could be arranged, Danielson would not miss the boat train south so much, but this does not appear possible just now.

What remains of the old Providence and Danielson trolley road is to go the way of the section that has disappeared between East Killingly and North Scituate. Some years ago the rails and tie and the overhead between East Killingly and North Scituate were removed. Up to about a year ago the remainder of the line between North Scituate and Providence city line near Killingly street was kept in operation, but the traffic over it was not profitable and service was abandoned, motor busses being substituted and are continuing to operate. At an early date the rails and tie abetween North Scituate and the city line are to be removed and where the line follows the route of the state highway from Danielson to Providence the roadbed will be filled and permanently paved.

Never a profitable line, though it did a very considerable freight business, the passing of the last link in the old Providence and Danielson road directs attention to another transportation route whose end was hurried by the development of motor transportation. In its palmiest days the trolley line could not compete successfully with such passenger and freight service as is now offered by bus and truck lines. It was cheaper, but that does not seem to be an important factor, or at least not a paramount one, in this day of many dollars and demands for speed. Before the summer is over the Providence and Danielson line will be but a memory. Grass has grown for years along the route where the rails used to run from East Killingly into North Scituate.

A habit that many motorists have—of allowing the the motors in their automobiles to run while they are taking on gas at filling stations—will be an infraction of the law on and after July 1. The practice is an extremely dangerous one, has caused numbers of serious accidents and taken lives, and is frowned upon by the law in a number of states. There are many ways in which a working motor may cause an explosion while gas is being put into the tank of a car. As a matter of extra safety, Connecticut has said in its revised motor vehicle code that the practice must cease in this state. Those who fail to obey the new regulation will be subject to arrest.

The church army Crusaders, recently arrived in this country from England and who have been in Norwich the past two days, are coming to Danielson today. They are to participate in five services in Danielson. The first of these services will be held at St. Alban's church at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The second service of hte day will be an open air service and will be held on Davis Park at 4 o'clock. The third service will be at the church at 7 o'clock this evening and the fourth service at Davis park at 8 p. m. The final service in which the Crusaders will participate will be a service with Holy Communion at St. Alban's church at 9:30 Friday morning. The public is invited to these services which will be along the lines of those held in Norwich, as told in The Bulletin of Wednesday.

About half the number of Danielson people who went over to Providence to see the circus this week admit that they scrutinized the apes and monkeys more carefully than in their usual custom and studied them more seriously.

As but eighteen directors have been heard from as yet, the report is incomplete. During the year 598 articles were purchased for the use of the hospital as listed above.

Rev. F. H. Bigelow, of Pomfret, has purchased from Joseph H. Elliott "The Meadows," the Harrison estate on the west side of Pomfret road, now occupied by James Lucey, and known as the Pomfret Manor Inn.

Mr. Bigelow will take possession the first of July and will immediately begin repairs to make the house into a suitable one for the Rectory School by the first of September. The former building occupied by the school was burned to the ground some time ago and since then the pupils have been occupying temporary quarters. The school recently closed for the summer vacation.

Mr. Lucey has not yet fully decided where he will locate, but it will probably be at New Haven. Mr. Lucey came to Putnam from Boston in 1916, when he bought the hotel interest in the Chickering House from M. M. Dwyer. He conducted the hotel for several years but a fire left the building unsuitable for hotel purposes. He then went to the Bradley estate at Pomfret where he had an Inn and that also burned to the ground.

Luke E. White, of Eden street, a student at the United States Naval academy at Annapolis, is now on a three months' cruise to the west coast. He is attached on the battleship New York, which started its trip on June 6 and will be gone until August 30. The object of the cruise is to give the Annapolis boys lessons in practical navigation.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moss and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Keith, of Fremont street, left by automobile this morning for Juniper Point, Maine, where they will spend two weeks at the cottage of Dr. J. J. Russell.

Oscar Dugas, of Church street, has purchased a strip of land at the bathing beach on Webster Lake near the Webster Lake Hotel and expects to build a number of bath houses on his property.

Paul Boehm, of Grand View, has returned from a visit to New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Whittemore and Miss Lillian Giles have been entertaining Mrs. Orrin L. Barber, of Stamford, Conn.

Fool questions usually beget fool answers.

Of course the furore over evolution was back of all this attention to the simians. While Danielson people do not wish to align themselves with those who would dispute scientific facts, it's hard to find many of them who are willing to admit relationship with some antediluvian ancestor who was accustomed to swing by his tail from a jungle tree or possible descent from a hippopotamus. Knowledge being expanded every day, there's no telling, if one admits any evolution theory, but what someone of scientific standing will come along next year and elucidate on how it came about that some humans are descended from monkeys, while others had their ancestry in the family tree of a line of zebras or the lofty-peering giraffes. It's a big subject, and it isn't all quite clear as yet. There are those prepared to argue the point that a man with a wooden leg must be descended from a pine tree, but you can't make a lot of people believe it, no more than you can a great many other things, true and untrue.

Wednesday afternoon at the Granska home in Moosup there was a meeting of the Windham House association, which plans to erect Windham House at Connecticut college. Up to Wednesday the association had $34,000 on hand and $2,000 additional in pledges. At least $10,000 more is wanted.

No Money Grabber

If you received every week a dozen or more letters like the ones below from people who have suffered torments from piles, says Peterson, wouldn't you feel happier than the man whose life is devoted to money grabbing?

"Gentlemen—I have been suffering with a fistula for the past twenty years. During that time I have tried numerous remedies, all of which have failed.

"Two months ago I determined to give Peterson's Ointment a trial. The improvement was so decided after using one box, that I have continued, and on the completion of the fifth box am now entirely cured.

"This is written with the view of passing along the good word to other sufferers." Very truly yours, Chas. E. Caswell, 282 Third Street, Albany, N. Y. At all druggists, 35 cents.

The mighty healing power of Peterson's Ointment quickly clears the skin of all rashes, pimples and blemishes. Peterson's soap is a wonderful skin soap—use it daily—25 cents. Peterson Ointment Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Crandall, on Friday afternoon, the 12th. The regent, Mrs. Frederick R. Latimer, presided. The meeting opened with the Lord's Prayer in unison, followed by Salute to the Flag. Excellent annual reports were given, respectively, by the secretary, Miss M. Adelaide Randall, the regent, Mrs. Latimer, and the treasurer, Mrs. Charles Adams. Routine business was transacted. After adjournment, Miss Rachel Larrabee, of Groton, who has recently returned with her sister, Miss Betsy B. Larrabee, a former regent of this chapter, from a trip abroad, was the interesting speaker of the afternoon, speaking of France as she saw it. A social hour followed and refreshments of cake, strawberries and ice cream were served. The hostesses were Mrs. Billings F. S. Crandall, Mrs. Delphine Fish, Miss Alice Satterlee, Mrs. Fanny A. Molthrop, Mrs. Fred R. Richards, Mrs. Carl R. Lawson, Mrs. Mary Watrous and Mrs. James A. Stoddard.

Mrs. Byron A. Maynard, of Anthony, R. I., arrived Saturday, and is the guest of Mrs. Emma S. Bennett, until after the Yale-Harvard regatta.

Sofia, the capitol of Bulgaria, is for the most part a modern town. Since 1880 it has been almost entirely rebuilt and laid out in "European" style, the narrow, winding lanes of the old Turkish town having been replaced by broad streets bordered with Cut-away view of Florence burner, showing how flame is focused on the cooking vessel.

This flame heats the kettle ~ not the kitchen

NO use to hope for a cool kitchen if your cooking stove throws much of the heat out into the room. The Florence Oil Range puts the heat into the cooking and leaves the kitchen a pleasant place to work on a hot day.

That is because the Florence is the oil range with focused heat. The Florence burners send the heat directly into the bottom of the pot.

Of course this means not only quick cooking but economy of kerosene, which is a cheap fuel. The Florence is simplicity itself to operate. There are no wicks to trim, and a turn of the lever gives you the degree of heat you want. The leveler on each foot enables you to place the stove even on an uneven floor.

When you examine the Florence at the store be certain to notice the famous Florence Oven, built on the principle of the old Dutch oven. The patented heat-spreader insures even distribution of heat and keeps your roasts and baked things from being burned on the bottom.

The Florence is a beauty, and its beauty is not skin-deep, for it is a quality product all the way through. Don't put off going to the store to see the Florence in action. This oil range with the focused heat should mean much to you in the hot summer days to come.

FOREIGN DEBT PAYMENTS

Semi annual payments were made to this government on their debts by five foreign nations. The total received was over $69,000,000 of which the bulk was paid by Great Britain. This means that with other nations joining in the settlement of their debts this country should before long be receiving in excess of $140,000,000 a year for use in the reduction of our indebtedness.

There are those who believe that this money should be employed for the purpose of cutting down the federal tax. That, of course, could be done but that would mean that we would be paying out in interest a much larger sum each year than is necessary or advisable. The interest payments were boosted skyhigh because of the debts piled up during the war. We can go on indefinitely paying that interest account but it is not good business. It is, in fact, provided by law that the payments must be applied to the cutting down of the debt and that will be done until there is action to the contrary.

Secretary Mellon of the treasury department does not favor the use of the money received from the payment of foreigners to bring about tax reduction. He maintains that it is better economy to lower the debt and thus indirectly bring about the tax reduction. To apply the foreign debt payments to taxes might easily result in the maintenance of the huge national debt for an indefinite period, quite the same as with municipal debts, so that in time the interest payments would run up to more than the principal according to the length of time it was permitted to drag along.

The treasury policy is one which is based upon the same good judgment which has marked the handling of that department under Secretary Mellon. The foreign debt payments do not constitute the only debt reductions that we are making, but inasmuch as we raised the money for the aid of the other nations, when they come to the repayment of such funds it certainly should be applied for the relief of those who are taxing themselves to keep up the interest account.

CARE OF HORSES

This is the time of the year when the suggestions for teamsters in connection with their treatment of their horses are applicable. Wherever the horse is employed, he is entitled to consideration and in increasing measure during the extremes of the weather.

It is certainly a time for loading lightly and driving slowly, and it ought not to be necessary to advise a teamster to stop his horse in the shade in preference to the beating sun. Neither should one who knows anything about horses require the suggestion that a drink should be given occasionally. Hot weather likewise calls for a bit more in the way of care if the horse is going to be kept up to scratch and be able to perform the work that is expected. Horses react in accord with the treatment they receive, and it is certainly folly to expect muce of such an animal unless he is given considerate treatment.

The number of horses that are to be found in business activities these days is much smaller than was once the case. It doesn't require a very long memory to recall when all delivery business was done with horses. All but the small store keepers had their horses, trucking was all done with horses and city and country transportation was limited to the faithful equine. In a quarter of a century there has been a remarkable change. The horse hasn't disappeared but he is seen less frequently. The automobile is doing what he used to do, doing it without fatigue and quicker. The rules which have to do with kindness to animals are not required as generally today as they formerly were. And yet they are just as important where horses are concerned. The horse is certainly entitled to receive the benefit of such attention and even though the number grows less, even to the point where the horse is today regarded as a hindrance to modern traffic, the hot weather rules will be pertinent just as long as there are any horses left, and hot weather continues to be furnished in the summer time.

SHEFFIELD TO RETURN

By the announcement of Secretary Kellogg that Ambassador Sheffield is to return to Mexico City nothing more than what was expected is disclosed. It will, however, set at rest those rumors which have been started to the effect that he would not go back.

It was readily conceived that after the ambassador had returned to Washington with his statement of the conditions in Mexico City and the experiences he had had, that he would have been unwilling to return had the government not stood by him. It would in fact have been a case of failing to support his views and efforts. He could have been in the position of being sought and asked to get the co-operation of his government for the [illegible] should be done in the matter of diplomatic [illegible] without being called to account.

The situation is not one which has been created by Ambassador Sheffield but by Mexico. Thus it is to be expected that he will go back to the Mexican capital for the purpose of continuing his work, and when he goes back there will be no question but what he bears the endorsement of Washington in the stand which he has taken.

If the relationship between the two countries has been strained by the developments which have taken place since Ambassador Sheffield left Mexico City, blame can rest nowhere except with the Mexican government which might have avoided it had it listened to the ambassador and endeavored to satisfy his demands. To make his position unbearable would thus simply serve to increase the strain on the relationship, and certainly it would not be for the interest of the neighbor to the south to bring that about.

THE JERSEY WRECK

One of the worst railroad wrecks in a long time was that at Rockport Sag, N. Y., when the special train carrying former immigrants, who had prospered in this country, on what was the beginning of what they hoped to be a return trip to their former homes, left the rails and piled up in a frightful conglomeration of twisted railroad equipment and humanity.

That was an instance where the automatic train stop would have played no part, if the indicated cause of the trouble works out as is now believed. The disaster will be the cause of more than one investigation but reports indicate that nature had caused the derailment by covering the rails with dirt during a hard thunderstorm and as the locomotive struck this obstruction it and the cars left the track and quickly became a mass of wreckage to which more horrors were added by the scalding steam.

It was a most deplorable affair. Whether or not the engineer should have recognized the situation before he did or in time to avert the wreck will be disclosed by the inquiry. But the engineer who lost his life with others will be able to give no aid. He stuck to his post and died with his hand on the throttle in a grim endeavor to check the iron horse.

Both in character and harshness the wreck was unusual. It points out the necessity for action that will prevent anything of the kind at that point in the future but whether it was possible to have prevented the wreck of Tuesday is a questino which will call for a thorough probe of the frightful affair.

THE SUGAR TARIFF

In making his decision on the recommendation of the tariff commission for a reduction of a half cent a pound in the duty on sugar President Coolidge has not been hurried. When the commission recommended the change sugar was way up in the air. That commodity has been hitting some of the high spots in the past decade and there are those who know it meant to buy at 10, 15, 20, 25, and even at 32 cents a pound.

The president indicates by his report that he has been giving the matter careful and exhaustive consideration. He has regarded it from every angle and he points out with telling effect that when the investigation started sugar at wholesale in New York was 8.4 cents a pound or nearly double the 4.9 cents a pound before the war, that the high price of two years ago furnished reasonable grounds for complaint and such a remedy as a tariff reduction was not unreasonable, but that when the report was submitted the wholesale price was 6.37 cents a pound and now it has dropped to 4.27 cents, or a price that is lower than the pre-war price.

This has come about without the lowering of the tariff, of course the claim is always made that the decision under such circumstances is in behalf of the sugar beet interests. Little however is heard about the benefit that would have accrued to the cane sugar interests of other countries had there been a cutting of the tariff, and even then there is no certainty that the public would have received the full begefit of the half a cent cut.

The president points to the revenue that is needed from sugar and to the importance of encouraging industry that will prevent us from getting to the point of being entirely dependent upon others for our sugar supply. Sugar is down and no blow has been struck at American industry.

THAT GIRL

"I don't for the life of me see what you see in that girl" declared the severe sister in great despair. "Here the world is just full of perfectly nice, charming, lovely girls and then you go sheer crazy over this one!"

"Doesn't it beat all!" agreed the handsome and ruthless brother amiably. "Men are so tarnation contrary! The minute you show 'em a nice dish of bran flakes they reach right across to the plate of doughnuts! If I were a girl it seems to me I should bow with joy if I heard another woman speak of me as 'that girl!' Any girl who can be called 'that girl' is dead sure to be a winner, who casts fear and envy into the souls of her helpless sisters! The epithet is the despairing cry of the outwitted and the also-rans.

"That girl!" the Roman matrons hissed, running to peak through the lace curtains when Cleopatra bumped by in her wooden-wheeled chariot. 'Isn't it simply outrageous the way she is flirting with Caesar, to say nothing of what she's done to Marc Anthony! 'Middle-aged men are such fools—all she's after is their money!' And all their hissing didn't amount to a sheet of paper so far as blocking the wheels of Clee's progress was concerned.

"Nobody ever in the world cries 'that girl' at one of your quiet, meek and dumb creatures with her hair done the wrong way and her mind full of the latest crochet stitch. They don't have to. They don't have to notice her at all and practically nobody does.

"When we were children I can distinctly remember the fond mammas regarding little Cissy Parker tretfully, speaking of her as 'that child' and calling up into the house if she skipped up to play with the.

"Cissy had the biggest, blackest eyes I ever saw, a pert nose, a restless disposition and a perpetually dirty face. She was given to sticking out her tongue on occasion, telling older persons what she thought of them—and it was a plenty—and inviting herself to dinner when she wanted to come. Cissy was virtually everything a well-brought-up child should not be and she could think of more devilry in a minute for the rest of us to execute than the rest of the bunch put together.

"Later on she graduated into 'that girl' and I must say you girls had some ground, for none of you had a look-in at a dance if Cissy were present! It was as natural to gravitate to her side as if one were a fly and she were a sugar bowl and with it all she kept us in our places. She effervesced and sparkled and entertained and I noticed last week in the society news that Mrs. James Van Howard De Betts, otherwise Cissy, was leaving for the spring season in her Riviera estate, with a trip to Norway when the weather grew warmer.

"When people cry feverishly, 'Look, look! See that girl or that woman!' nobody thinks for a minute there are any horrors in store for their optics. They know they are going to be treated to something rare. It may be startling, I admit, but it is bound to be interesting, unusual and of conversational value.

"Everybody watches that variety of girl to see what she is going to do next. You never find them watching a nice, neat, practical homemade girl that way—when they meet such a one they smile mechanically, say, 'How is your mother, dear? Is your father well and is your little brother all over the measles? Isn't that nice,' and move hurriedly on for fear they will be too late to see just how hard 'that girl' is flirting with her latest beau, who by popular acclaim belongs to somebody else!

"I tell you, my girl is all right! She's got pep and is six minutes ahead of the fashions, understands what I'm talking about if I use a word of more than one syllable and I am afraid I haven't got 1 per cent of a chance to get her!"

"So she's landed you, too!" cried the severe sister in considerable excitement. "Of course, I've really nothing against her, but why you had to pick her out—oh, that girl!"—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

George Dyer, the Charity Boy, a Great Scholar.

Hi! Hi! Look where you're going! Hi!" Every one in sight yelled out some warning, but George Dyer walked along, his head bent, his mind deep in thought, and plump! splash! into the river he fell! The absent-minded scholar had been so intent on the subject of his thoughts that he had been utterly oblivious of all his surroundings. He had done the very thing that the ancient Greek had done, he had been so intent on the stars that he had not seen the earth. Absent-minded, kindly, genial, with a passion for books such as few people have, George Dyer went through a long life loving books and loving people, teaching and writing, and at last dying at the age of 86.

In his boyhood home George Dyer had been without the advantages of books and quiet and refinement. The furniture was severely plain; there was little of comfort; the food was of the cheapest, and his clothing was often ragged in the extreme. Nevertheless, in spite of all this, George Dyer the boy, learned very early to read, and then at once to love books beyond the ordinary. His studious nature and natural refinement of manner won him friends who saw to it that he was sent to the famous charity school known as Christ's hospital. There the "blue coat boy" studied more than ever, and thus found his way to one of the great English universities, where he found himself in his seventh heaven of delight; for he had nothing else to do except to pore over books all day long and far into the night. In one way or another he remained in the university all his life. There he studied all that there was to be studied. There he read old manuscripts and learned the history of the place to its minutest degree. Then, day after day, he sat down to write the records of the university. Sometimes he drifted into the writing of poetry. Sometimes he worked long hours over the classics. He was the happiest of men, almost oblivious of the great world around him with its problems and troubles. In his later days he toiled over the pages of a huge edition of the classic writers. Weeks and months he bent over the fine print, and read with an accuracy that was almost miraculous. This time he had over-reached himself, for his hours of unremitting labor made him totally blind—like that other great scholar, John Milton. For some time he lingered, tenderly feeling the books he could not see, and then he died. He had been happy.

Stories That Recall Others

Times and Testimony Change.

A colored man who had been in court, apparently with disastrous results, was relating the story of the trial, punctuated by rueful grimaces, to a group of sympathetic and perspiring friends gathered around him.

"Yes, sir!" he said, "I testimonied pretty good until that there other lawyer got to criss-crossin' me."

An Academic Homebody.

Fred had an appointment for one day this week, but all of a sudden decided that he would attend the reunion of his class at college, so he told one of his employes to call up the person he was to meet and inform him of his unexpected absence.

"Mr. A. won't be able to keep his appointment today," the girl said. "He is attending his class reunion at college."

"Thank you," said Mr. X. "Did Mr A. take his cap and gown with him?"

"No," came the reply, "I don't think he intends to stay all night."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Elmer B. Bryan, who has resigned the presidency of Ohio University, has had a long and varied career as an educator. In the course of his career he has served as president of Indiana university, Franklin college, Colgate university, and the Ohio institution at Athens. Dr. Bryan is a native of Ohio, was graduated from the Indiana state university, and then studied at Harvard and Clark universities. After a career as a teacher and administrator in Indiana public schools, in 1901 he was made a member of the faculty of pedagogics in the State university. The same year he was selected by the Federal government to go to the Philippines and take charge of the normal school work in the islands. Tested efficiency in this work led to his being made general superintendent of the educational work in the United States in the islands. Two years of service in this post were followed by an invitation to return to Indiana university as president.

Mrs. Ashcroft's Remarkable Recovery After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Covington, Ky.—"I was so weak and nervous I could hardly do my housework as I could not stand because of the bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen. I sat down most of the time and did what I could do in that way—as washing dishes, etc. One day a book describing Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines was put in my mail-box. I saw how the Vegetable Compound had helped others so I gave it a trial. I had to take about a dozen bottles before I gained my strength but I certainly praise this medicine. Then I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood medicine for poor blood. I was cold all the time. I would be so cold I could hardly sit still and in the palms of my hands there would be drops of sweat. I also used the Sanative Wash and I recommend it also. You may publish this letter and I will gladly answer letters from women and advise my neighbors about these medicines."—Mrs. HARRY ASHCROFT, 62 Beech Avenue, Covington, Kentucky

CHILD TRAINING

WHY IS IT?

Mary S. Stover

Gladys had been to the store. Her mother interrupted our conversation to call, "Let's see what you brought." The child came rather sullenly, as if anticipating the indignant exclamation which met her.

"That isn't the brand of coffee I want! I particularly told you to get So & Sos; we don't like this and you must take it straight back. Why is it that you never do an errand right? —that is, for me. If Mrs. Macy asks you to go to the store, you get exactly what she orders."

It is likely that you have witnessed a mother and child enact a similar scene, perhaps you recall being one of the characters in such a dialogue. At least it is familiar enough to evoke mingled sympathies.

This mother is right in insisting that Gladys follow her instructions. Every woman knows that there are coffees and coffees. Besides, the child needs training in the art of attention and in the correct performance of the act required. Why is it, though, that the little girl does a neighbor's errands happily and well, but not her mother's? This phase of the situation deserves thoughtful consideration by all who have the care of children.

How exasperating, yet how human, it is for children to serve others better than those of their own households! One reason is the spice of adventure and recognized importance in doing things for someone outside the home. The neighbor requests a favor: errands on which mother sends one are rightly looked upon as part of the regular job. Who does not know the zest of appreciated overtime work?

Yes, there is expressed appreciation. Mrs. Macy "remembers her manners" both in politely asking Gladys to do the errand and in thanking her afterward. We know without being told. It's the way we all do—with the neighbor's child.

Furthermore, the neighbor's request shows faith which the child is on honor to deserve. This implied faith, the courteous inquiry and graciously expressed thanks, perhaps a material payment, all make it easier to do the errand just right. There is a very genial influence in faith; it suggests success, not failure; it stimulates the attention and memory, so that the child is surrounded by an atmosphere of purposeful expectancy.

Of course the neighbor's faith is based on comparatively few testings, whereas the mother has had repeated experiences with heedlessness and inconvenience. Yet has she not also cause for many fundamental belief in her child's ability and right intentions? The main trouble seems to lie in that old, old fault characterized in the words:

"Yet oft for our own, the bitter tone,
Though we love our own the best."

Wouldn't it be well to play sometimes that we are neighboring ladies who want errands done and graciously "remember our manners", both at the beginning and end of the trip?

Despite that the railroads of Rumania have had two rate increases of 25 per cent this year, transportation tells there are still lower than in any other European country, and the systems are in bad conditions.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A Chipmunk Playground

The lessons that are mixed with play,
Are pretty sure to last alway.
—Old Mother Nature.

Striped Chipmunk's babies are like all other babies in that, to begin with, they do little but eat, sleep and grow.

At first all they wanted to do was to sit still, that they might look and listen

That is, while they are in the nursery. Then, like other little folks, they begin to play. There wasn't much room in there to play. Play began when they were big enough to follow mother along the long hall, and so out of the doorway hidden in the grase of the sunny bank. You would have laughed could you have seen those five little Chipmunks blink and blink when they saw the sunlight for the first time. You see, they didn't know just what to make of it because it had been very dark in their nursery way down under the ground. At first they couldn't see and hear! The very grass and leaves were wonderful to them. The sailing clouds in the blue, blue sky, Skimmer the swallow sailing overhead, the trill of Sticky-toes the Tree Toad, the songs of feathered neighbors—in fact, everything they saw and heard was wonderful. At first all they wanted to do was to sit still, that they might look and listen.

But this didn't last long. The spirit of play was in them, as it is in all healthy children, and that sunny bank was a lovely place for Chipmunk babies to play. At first mother kept very close to them, but gradually, as they grew stronger and livelier, she led them farther and farther from the entrance to their home. However, she took great care not to lead them so far that they could not get back there at the first hint of danger.

One of the very first games that the little Chipmunks learned to play was hide-and-seek. That was their favorite game. Mother played it with them at first, but later they played it over to the old stone wall, along which grew bushes and over which grew vines. Such a wonderful place as this was in which to play hide-and-seek! Sometimes one would hide, to be looked for by all the others, and sometimes all but one would hide, and that one would try to find them.

They thought it was all a game, but little Mrs. Chipmunk, watching them, used to smile to herself, for she knew that they were learning lessons that would be of the greatest importance to them later in life. They were learning to get out of sight quickly. They were learning how to dodge into the nearest opening. They were learning how to use their bright eyes and at the same time their wits. They were at school, but all the time they thought they were at play.

Once in a while little Mrs. Chipmunk would give a sharp, warning call. Sometimes it was at the most exciting moment of play, but those little Chipmunks soon learned to have their ears open and to dodge from sight the instant they heard that warning.

Once they saw their cousin, Chatterer the Red Squirrel, jumping from one branch to another high above their heads, and straightway they began to wish that they might jump in the same way. But when they started to climb they got over that wish. They could climb all right, but somehow they didn't feel very comfortable far off the ground. And so they came to realize that they were better off in every way safer when they were close to or near the ground, particularly if there were plenty of bushes hiding spots.

And another important thing and this was to look out for each other as well as for themselves. If one was startled and suspected danger a warning was always given the others. So the sunny old bank was a Chipmunk playground, but it was a Chipmunk schoolyard as well.

Paprika Plentiful Hungary Is Happy

"In die luft, in die luft fliegt die paprika," or "In the air, in the air, flew the paprika. So goes a popular Vienese refrain which makes a little fun at the expense of the Hungarians. For it is well known how necessary paprika is to life in Hungary. What would be goulash or gypsy music without Paprika? Aand an American, a Mr. Gilbert, proprietor of the Hotel Astoria in Budapest, once had a corner on the paprika supply! That was back in 1920. Now there is an over-production of paprika in Hungary. In Szegedin there are more than 50 carloads of ground and 120 carloads of unground paprika. The producers are trying to influence the Hungarian government to abolish the export taxes in order to enable them to sell the surplus abroad. Perhaps, therefore, paprika will soon fly more freely in the air over Vienna, and other European cities. Americans also buy paprika from Hungary, but for them it must be sweetened.

MEN'S BIBLE STUDY ON LIFE OF JOSEPH

There was a good attendance at the session of the Men's Bible class, Wednesday evening, at the local Y. M. C. A. The scripture used was from the 37th chapter of Genesis, the story of the selling of Joseph by his brothers. The following points among others were brought out in the discussion: Jacob's wife had passed away, and lonely and broken in spirit he made his weary way back to the old homestead. Jacob had been "as cold as a moonbeam in business, but as tender as a mother in the home." He had learned the lesson that a grasping life was very unsatisfactory. All the sons except Joseph were brought up when Jacob was selfish and grasping, but Joseph, the son of his old age, grew up when Jacob was a different man. A grasping man cannot over be the highest type of citizen. Joseph's brothers called him a dreamer in derision, but Joseph was a real practical dreamer and we need more of his kind. The brothers were exceedingly jealous of Joseph and they determined to kill him. Jealousy is at the bottom of a great deal of the sin in the world; it has caused discord in the home, among friends and in business life, and it never develops but always destroys harmony and is never justified. A jealous man is never a happy man; he is always dissatisfied. Had the brothers carried out their desire to kill their brother, they would have gained absolutely nothing. No man ever permanently gains anything by wronging another, and no man wrongs another without wronging his best self. Joseph's brothers practiced exactly what their father Jacob practiced years before, namely, deception. It does seem as though Jacob was reaping just what he had sown in early life. The law of sowing and reaping surely works, and while men do not always reap in this world their due punishment for their sin, eventually they are bound to reap to the full for their sinful sowing.

FRIDAY WILL SEE BUSINESS DISTRICT OF CITY IS TO DECORATE FOR BOAT RACE DAY

Friday will see the business district of Norwich in gala attire in honor of the Harvard-Yale boat races. There will also be a general display of blue and crimson, the colors of Yale and Harvard respectively.

As there will be thousands of automobiles passing through Norwich on boat race day, the Chamber of Commerce has requested the co-operation of the retail merchants' association to make this event as attractive as possible. As a mark of courtesy and an expression of friendly feeling and good will, the chamber officials hope that every citizen, from the traffic policemen to the school child, will give courteous attention and friendly co-operation to the strangers who will pass through the community. This will be one of many instances which will afford this community an opportunity to strengthen its reputation as an hospitable and friendly city. The good name of the city will be on trial during the next few days and the Chamber of Commerce makes a strong appeal to the citizens to uphold the good reputation of Norwich.

While the business center will have an unusual and most pleasing holiday aspect, the general public are cordially invited to display Old Glory throughout the length and breadth of Norwich.

ROTARIANS REGISTER PROTEST OVER LATE MAIL SCHEDULE

With no scheduled speaker present the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club, held Wednesday noon, was devoted largely to the discussion of local affairs, chief among these being the new mail service. The discussion was led by William G. Park, who spoke of the handicap inflicted on eastern Connecticut business establishments through the late mail leaving at 5:45 (e. s. t.). Mr. Park said that this was so early that many of the business houses were unable to get important mail to New York after 6 o'clock. Many of the business men were quick to voice their disapproval of the new schedule and all were in favor of seeking some relief, either through the New Haven road, the public utilities commission or through the post office department.

President Joseph N. Waymouth presided at the meeting and E. LaRue Bliven was song leader. There were a number of guests present, including James Farmer, of Montana, who spoke on Chautauqua and its educational benefits, and urged its support by members of the Rotary club. Another guest was Rotarian Harry Briggs, of Brockton, who brought with him his two sons and a guest. He expressed his pleasure at being present and extended a hearty welcome to Norwich Rotarians to visit the Brockton club.

C. A. Gager was scheduled for the five-minute speaker of the day but the applause lasted so long that Bertie's speech was of very brief duration. However, he has consented to deliver a real address at some future meeting.

Two new members, Jim Ioantree and Bill Burgy, were given the right hand of Rotary fellowship by President Weymouth. The new members and one other member who is soon to embark upon the sea of matrimony rendered a delightful trio selection.

As yesterday's meeting was the last at which Henry J. LaFontaine, club pianist, will attend before sailing for Europe, he was called upon to render one final selection. This Henry did with fine voice and feeling. After his solo he was called to the president's table and President Joe presented a substantial purse of money to him with appropriate words of appreciation for Henry's services and extended the best wishes of the club for a pleasant trip. Henry responded gracefully, voicing his thanks in words that expressed sincere feeling.

CARS COLLIDE AT CORNER IN WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, June 17.—At "Dead Man's Curve," so-called, near the property of Westerly Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton, at the corner of Elm and School streets, tonight, shortly after 6 o'clock, occurred the first of the summer series of accidents which are undoubtedly scheduled to take place at this dangerous crossing, although they are protected to a certian extent by the "migrating frogs" on traffic beacons. A touring car driven by Frank Corrigan of 36 Sherman street, New London, was proceeding up Elm street occupied by three women and three children, just as the Ford touring car driven by Theodore E. Duro, of Westerly, was coming down School street toward Main street to the Whithall Electric company store. The two automobiles came together at a point fifteen feet from the Elm street grammar school corner. The right hand forward fender of the New London car struck the other car and swung in from the road onto the sidewalk, taking down fifteen feet of the curve picket fence at the corner of the property of Frank G. Ahern, and coming to a stop against the maple tree which had prevented a number of automobiles on previous occasions from proceeding further. The touring car swerved down School street and the occupants of both cars escaped without any injury and the automobiles were able to proceed under their own power.

Patrolman Robert Kessell was called and investigated the accodent.

MAKES $25,400 CLAIM AGAINST LENNEN ESTATE

On the claim that the late Captain James Lennen of this city, who left an estate that was appraised at $579,836.79, did not keep an alleged promise to leave him a bequest of $25,000 and did not pay him for services rendered, Lucius Howard Wilcox of this city has presented a claim for $25,400 against the estate to the executors, Judge George E. Parsons and Jesse H. Wilcox.

The claimant is a well known fish dealer of this city, having a boat at Osgood's wharf which was once the palatial nuptial yacht of Harry Thaw and Evelyn Nesbit. The yacht was long ago stripped of its elaborate furnishings in mirrors and mahogany woodwork and is now nothing but a humble, black-painted fish boat.

The said James Lennen, for a great number of years prior to his death, had retired from business, and although a married man, sought and found great pleasure in the society and conversation of men.

The decedent was a man of large means, possessed certain real estate and had investments in various securities.

On or about the 5th day of December, 1918, the said decedent was severely assaulted and beaten on the head and received painful and permanent injuries therefrom, and which resulted in disturbing his mind greatly and which at times required him to depend upon male company and escort in going about his business matters or calls and was greatly comforted by the companionship and company of this claimant, who went about with him at his request.

Shortly prior to January 1, 1919, the said decedent was afflicted with a bodily ailment which required him to wear medical appliances for his comfort and support and these appliances required fitting and adjusting frequently for his comfort and support.

The said claimant from January 1, 1919, to the date of his death, went about with him from place to place wherever the said Captain James Lennen wished or desired to go, accompanied him to the doctor who fitted his supports and medical appliances; to visit friends in and about the city and to other towns and cities, assisting him in making out and filing his income tax list; driving him about in his automobile for his pleasure and comfort; fixing the roof; painting his house at No. 40 Boswell avenue, Norwich, Connecticut; furnished him with groceries and meats during the last week preceding his death; assisting in the arrangement of his final obsequies and burial.

On or about February 1, 1919, in consideration that the claimant would serve said decedent by acting as a companion going with him from place to place as he desired, assisting him in any capacity in which he might call upon him to act, driving him about in his automobile, as long as said decedent should live, said James Lennen agreed and promised to the claimant as a compensation for his services to provide for him in his will and to bequeath to him, at his death, the sum of $25,000.

The claimant faithfully performed his part of said agreement, served him in the capacity aforesaid, continuously from February 1, 1919 to the 14th day of December, 1924, the date of his death. But the said James Lennen did not provide any sum for him in his will, or make any bequest to him, or allow him any compensation for his services to him so rendered.

The claimant's said services under said agreement, covered a period of 254 weeks and were reasonably worth $100 a week.

The claimant's bill against said estate is $25,400.

OBITUARY

John E. Vaughn

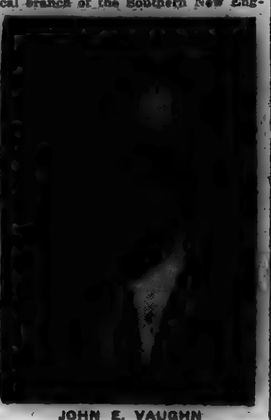
John E. Vaughn, of 11 Elias place, where death occurred early Tuesday morning as the result of a shock was born in Warwick, R. I., April 25, 1872. He attended the grammar school in Danielson for a year, and was a graduate at Peddie Institute, Heightstown, N. J. From there he returned to Rhode Island and during the two years he was serving his apprenticeship in the dry goods house of the Hartwell-Richards company in Providence, he took up the studies at Brown university and worked his way through the examinations and passed them with a mark better than 90.

Completing his studies Mr. Vaughn went to Boston and passed two more years in the dry goods business when trouble with his eyes overworked during his studies caused him to give up and he was forced to retire from active work for a year.

In 1903 he received an appointment as conductor on the Worcester, Connecticut and Eastern company, railway maintaining his residence in Central Village. In May, 1904, he was clerk in the office of the company and also rendered services such as working on spare cars and other minor duties.

On Jan. 1, 1905, Mr. Vaughn was appointed to fill the position of cashier and chief clerw of the Consolidated Railway company. He rendered various services in Webster, Mass., later returned to Dayville and in 1907 came to Norwich and for a little more than six years had the general management of the offices here, being appointed general cashier of the new system in 1914.

When the Shore Line Electric company, Dec. 19, 1918, took over the trolley lines of the Connecticut company he was made purchasing agent, which position he held until after the receivership of that company, staying with the Connecticut company until the work was well in hand. He then became associated with the local branch of the Southern New England Telephone company, becoming its local commercial agent, which position he held at the time of his death.



JOHN E. VAUGHN

Fraternally Mr. Vaughn was a Mason. He was a past master of Moosup lodge, No. 113, A. F. and A. M., in which lodge he was raised 25 years ago. He was exalted in Montgomery chapter, R. A. M., and then received and greeted in Warren council, R. and S. M., Danielson. In recent years he transferred his membership to the local bodies. He still held membership in the Warren Avenue Congregational church in Boston, but attended Park Congregational church in this city, where for three years he was assistant superintendent of the Sunday school.

Mr. Vaughn sang second bass in the Bass-Clef of which he had been secretary since its organization, and had sung at Peddie Institute, substituted on the Brown Singing club and had appeared in the Handel-Hayden organization in Boston.

Politically Mr. Vaughn was a staunch republican, being elected and serving one term of two years as city councilman in June, 1916. He was for a number of years a resident of Uncas street and after his removal to Bliss place he still kept up his interest in the welfare of his community, attending the town meetings and taking an active interest in the civil government of the town of Norwich.

Mr. Vaughn was president, at the time of his death, of the Pleasure Beach Improvement Society, recently changed to the Poquyogh Improvement Society. He was a former director of the local Chamber of Commerce and had been treasurer of the Building and Loan association since its organization here.

Mr. Vaughn was most congenial to meet and was devoted to his home. Here he was found at his best. He made friends fast and always retained them. Being naturally of a sympathetic disposition he was at all times willing to lend a helping hand and was most faithful and true to his work. He took keen interest in the welfare of the entire community and was a man who will be sadly missed in this locality.

WEDDINGS

Fender-Wheeler

A wedding of elegance and beauty was solemnized here at high noon on Tuesday, June 2nd at the Enterprise Hotel, when Miss Marian Merritt Wheeler, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cooper Wheeler of Stonington, Conn., became the bride of Thomas Sloan Fender of Union, S. C. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. F. Matheson of Union before an improvised alter of ferns and roses, and the beautiful ring ceremony was used. The parlors of the hotel, were attractively decorated with quantities of daisies, ferns, marigolds and yellow roses; the shades were drawn and the pretty scene was softly lighted by burning cathedral candles in yellow and white.

Before the appointed hour, Miss Mary Wilkes Brown rendered several pleasing selections on the piano; and to the strains of Lohengrins' wedding march, the bridal party entered in the following order:

Next came little Miss Etha Frances Ellerbe, as ring bearer, daintily dressed in pink accordion pleated georgette, and carrying the ring concealed in the heart of a large magnolia blossom.

The bride entered, leaning on the arm of the groom and was charming in an ensemble suit of cedar-wood georgette, with hat, slippers and accessories to match. She wore a corsage bouquet of sunburst roses, with ostrich tips of white. Mrs. Fender is an attractive and accomplished young woman, and for the past two years has been a popular teacher in the school here.

Mr. Fender is a young man of sterling qualities and is employed by the Southern R. R. with head-quarters at Union.

Immediately after the ceremony, congratulations were in order, the first one being a telegram received that morning from the brides' parents in Stonington, Conn., and was presented to them on a silver tray, by a colored page. The happy couple left by motor to catch an afternoon train for a wedding trip to the north, including Washington, New York and Stonington, Conn.

Many handsome gifts including silver, china, cut-glass, linen and substantial sums of money attested to the high esteem in which both the bride and groom are held.

Mr. and Mrs. Fender will spend the summer at the home of Mr. Fender's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jones at Santuc, S. C.

Uphaus-Greer

Miss Gertrude Sarah Greer, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Jerome Greer of Pearl street, Thompsonville, formerly of Norwich, and Willard Edwin Uphaus, of Ridgeville, Ind., were married Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Methodist Episcopal church at Thompsonville, of which the bride's father is pastor. The Rev. Dr. Luther Weigle, professor of religious education at Yale university, performed the ceremony, using the double ring service. The maid of honor was Miss Ruth Marion Greer, sister of the bride, and the best man was James Greer, student at Boston university and brother of the bride. Miss Jacquelyn Stocking, of Westerly, R. I., Miss Marjorie Stephens of Vernon, Miss Alice Sparks, of New Haven and Miss Mona Stimmell, of Ohio, were bridesmaids. The ushers, friends of the bride and bridegroom at Yale university, were Willard J. Simpson, of University Place, Neb., Richard R. Keithahn, of Fairmont, Minn., W. R. Griffeth, of Enid, Okla., and Edgar M. Ross, Chicago. The flower girl was Marjorie Baronian and the ring bearer was Willam Richard.

The bride wore a gown of white crepe de chine with a veil of white tulle nad carried a showed bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. All the attendants wore white crepe de chine dresses, each of the brides maidse wearing a streamer of pastel shade on her shoulder. While on route to Blue Ridge, N. C., Wednesday, where Mr. and Mrs. Uphaus will spend the summer, they stopped at New Haven for the Yale commencement and each received degrees from the undergraduate degree of bachelor of music, indicating the completion of five years of music study, while Mr. Uphaus, who already has a Master's degree from Yale, was awarded the Ph. D. degree. Mr. Uphaus, who is a graduate of Indiana university, will assume the chair of religious education at the Southern Y. M. C. A. college, Nashville, Tenn., in the fall.

SCOTT, [illegible] HAS BEEN SOLD BY CUBS TO SENATORS

New York, June 17—Everett Scott, shortstop, who played in 1,307 consecutive Major League baseball games, nearly 800 of them with the New York Yankees, was claimed that 8 unidentified baseball magnates, who had assumed that he was with only 10,000 to the club he had capitalized through two world series.

Scott was sent to the World Champion Washington Senators by the Yankees today at the waiver price and baseball followers see something of the transfer of a ball player in the transaction. A general change of faces at the Yankee Stadium such as took place at Shibe Park in Philadelphia a decade ago is said to be in prospect.

Today the Yankees, league champions in 1921, 1922, and 1923 and world champions in 1923, appeared on the field with only four of the veterans, outside of pitchers in action. Wally Schang was behind the bat, Aaron Ward at second, Bob Meusel in left, and the recently returned Babe Ruth in right. Scott had been dispensed of before the Yankees encountered the 13 to 1 defeat administered by the Tigers today.

Addition of Scott to the Washington roster indicates that Manager Stanley Harris never again will take the chance that he did last year when poor infield reserve strength nearly cost him the world series. Experts agree that the Indianan has many days of baseball left in him despite his twelve years of Major League service. Roger Peckinpaugh went from New York to Washington and proved the proper cog in a champion machine. Scott came from the Boston Red Sox to the Yankees after they had won a pennant and aided them to win two more and a world flag as well.

Scott will contend with Peckinpaugh for the regular shortstop position in Washington.

HORNSBY FINED $100 AND FLETCHER MUST PAY $50

St. Louis, June 17—Manager Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Cardinals, will be fined $100 and Manager Art Fletcher of the Phillies $50 for their dispute in yesterday's game, President John A. Heydler of the National League announced late today.

Heydler said that in refraining from imposing a suspension he had kept in mind Hornsby's previous excellent record for peacefulness, as the heat of the day was not conducive to good temper.

"In the entire history of Hornsby's National League services, this is the very first time that such an incident had developed," Heydler said. "He is one of the best behaved men in baseball and it is fair to assume that the situation warranted moderation in assessing a penalty."

"It was an extremely hot day, and the players were naturally not themselves. Fletcher himself is not held blameless, and I have fined him $50 for provoking the outbreak."

ZACHARY HAS SLIGHT EDGE ON BUSH IN PITCHING DUEL

Washington, June 17—Zachary had a slight edge on Bush in a pitcher's battle today and Washington won its third straight game from St. Louis, 3 to 1, to keep on the heels of the pace setting Philadelphia Athletics. Manager Harris of the Senators hit safely for the 22rd consecutive game. Score:

HARVARD CREWS HAVE STARTING AND SPRINT WORK

Red Top, June 17—The race between the waiters of the Harvard and Yale crew training quarters broke up the monotony of training life at the Harvard camp this afternoon and gave considerable amusement to the regular squad. The Harvard waiters won by a length.

All of the crews were out tonight, practicing racing starts and having short sprints. Coach Haverson sent the varsity over the last mile of the course at a high stroke. The freshmen combination, and junior varsity crews were given starts and sprints to iron out the weak spots.

There will be a race between Yale and Harvard graduate eights this year, it was made known tonight. This race was abandoned a year ago. Yale has promised to have a graduate eight for the regatta and Keith Kane has agreed to find a Harvard graduate crew.

PALACE TEAM BLANKS SAINTS IN LOOSE GAME

Tony West on the mound for the Polish nine, was given ragged support, his teammates being guilty of nine misplays, most all of which figured in the scoring.

"Bugs" Shahan started on the mound for the Palace, but after walking several men, he was relieved in the second inning by Mike Morin who twirled for the remainder of the game. During his stay in the box, Mike hurled in fine style. He limited his rivals to three scattered hits, while seven went back to the bench via the strikeout route.

Mulcahy, the Palace first baseman led the hitters with two doubles and a single out of four times at bat, while Chip Dugas showed the fans he still can soak the old apple, by garnering a double and a single out of three trips to the plate. In the sixth inning with Mike Morin on second, Joe Jackson tied Jim Murphy of the East Ends for home run honors when he hit a circuit blow to deep center.

The Palace scored enough runs in the very first inning to win the game, when with two out they scored twice on a double by Chip Dugas and two errors by the Polish infield. For the next two innings neither team was able to score, and it looked as if the fans would see a close game.

From the fourth on, however, the Palace nine scored in every inning, transforming the game into a one-sided affair. They counted twice in the fourth, twice in the fifth, three times in the sixth, and two more in the seventh and final inning.

Tonight's Game

What tonight's game will bring forth is more or less of a mystery as nothing at all is known as to what kind of a lineup the Eastern Conn. Power Co., will present against the Nuggets. Ever since the game they played last week all kinds of rumors and reports have been floating around about the different stars that the E. C. P. has signed up. Every star player in New London county has been mentioned to appear in their lineup but nothing official is known except that they are out to win. Whatever lineup they present its got to be good as the Nuggets have proven that they have about the strongest team in the league. Should the Nuggets win tonight they will go into a tie with the Centrals for the leadership of the league but should they lose it will put them in a tie with five other teams for second place. Mgr. Madden will use Johnny Green in the box against the E. C. P. and if Johnny is right its a cinch that after tonight the Nuggets will be on top. Green held the hard hitting East Side to two lone hits in the opening game of the season and should have no trouble in holding his own tonight.

Lane will catch, Burke will play first, Carlin will cover second, Red Lesserman at short, Fox will cover third and Leo Jarvis, Lloyd Jarvis and Brewer will roam the outfield.

This team is really the team that put the Academy back on the baseball map this year in addition to handing Bulkeley their only setback of the season. The games this week have been more or less one-sided but its almost a safe bet that tonight's game will be good.

The East Ends, Centrals and Palace team have won their games by good scores and will no doubt keep their teams for the remainder of the season. While the Hallville, Yantic and St. Joseph's teams have been rather weak no doubt they will strengthen up and play better ball in the future.

Many of the fans that journeyed over to the Dwell field last night were rather disappointed in the game that the St. Joseph's team put up, but it must be remembered that this is their first attempt at the national pastime and with a little more practice and a catcher to hold Toney West, who without a doubt is the best pitcher in these parts, they will finish right up on top with the best of the teams. It is hoped that the fans will give his team all the support possible.

"Hank" Morin who umpired last night's game to the satisfaction of all will hold the indicator again tonight.

TAFTVILLE A. A. ALLOWS SACHEMS NO HITS AND NO RUNS

Three pitchers, Lloyd Jarvis, Speed Gaudette and Lefty Dugas, held the Sachems hitless and scoreless in a weird game at the Providence street grounds Wednesday evening, the Taftville A. A. team winning, 20 to 0. It was not at all necessary to use three hurlers but Manager Troland decided to give all his hurlers a little workout. The Taftville team hit everything that came along and piled up a score that completely smothered McBurney's team. Eccleston led the attack with three doubles and a single while Lefty Dugas hit a home run. The crowd at the game was large and found much amusement in the antics of the Sachems and in the heavy hitting of the Taftville team. The score:

KACEYS WIN EASILY FROM SECTION BASE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 17.—The Kaceys had their hitting toes on this evening and with timely hitting behind poor playing on the part of the Section Base, gave the champions of last year a 13 to 1 victory.

Beginning at the outset and scoring three runs, the winners continued with their heavy scoring and added 12 runs in four innings putting the game on ice. The lead was too much for the Section Base to overcome, and they barely escaped a shutout. The lone tally coming in the last inning on four consecutive hits.

Joe Cranker twirled a heady game and was easily master of the situation. The Section Base used two twirlers, but neither could hold the K. of C. battles in check.

Hitting by Reagan featured. He had a perfect day as did Barry Score:

YALE SWAMPS HARVARD IN SECOND GAME, 18 TO 4

Cambridge, Mass., June 17.—(AP)—The Yale baseball team continued the batting spree begun in New Haven yesterday and trounced Harvard, 18 to 4, before a commencement crowd of 10,000 on Soldiers' field today. The victory gave Yale the 1925 championship, the fourth major sport victory over Harvard this year, and incidentally marked the fourth consecutive year that Yale has won the baseball series.

John Toulmin, recently declared through with baseball this year because of a bad arm, started on the mound for Harvard. He weathered the first inning safely, allowing only one run, while his team mates were making two, but the second, third and fourth saw him assaulted for nine runs before Phil Spalding relieved him. Spalding was greeted with a barrage of hits that resulted in five runs before the inning closed.

Noble, Eli right fielder, led the attack with a home run with the bases full, a triple and a single. Noble was responsible for seven Yale runs in all. Lindley, Yale shortstop, and Captain Ducky Pond, who covered center field today, also collected three hits apiece.

Harry Scott, of football fame, pitched the whole distance for Yale. He never was in hot water, and except for the first inning, when a pass, Zarakov's double, an error and a single gave Harvard two runs, he kept the Crimson hits well scattered.

For Harvard Ullman starred at the bat. But his double scored only one run in the sixth and although he tripled as first man up in the eighth, he died on third as the next three men went out in order.

TIGERS SLAUGHTER YANKS IN SLUGGING BEE

New York, June 17—Detroit defeated the Yankees today, 19 to 1, a home run by Lou Gehrig saving the Yanks from being shut out. The Tigers scored 13 runs in the sixth inning, equalling the record for the season established by the Philadelphia Athletics. The Tigers also set what is believed to be a Major League record when they scored 11 of these runs before a batter was retired.

During this hectic batting feast, six hits were made and two errors committed by the Yanks in addition to seven passes being issued by the four Yankee twirlers who labored in the inning. Cobb got a home run with the bases full while Heilman got a single and a triple in the nine up. Eighteen Tigers batted during the inning. It took Ruth to put the side out, all three batters thrown out during the inning, flying to him. Score:

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, June 17.—(A. P.)—Speculative interest in today's stock market was confined largely to the so-called specialties, standard industrials and rails drifting within rather narrow and irregular limits. Professional operators continued to dominate price movements, although the volume of business was slightly larger than that of yesterday.

Trade news was rather colorless in character although the further stiffening of red metal prices attracted fresh buying into the coppers, which have been lagging behind the rest of the list. American Smelting led that group by crossing 105 for a gain of more than 3 points, while Utah, Magma and Cerro De Pasco each moved up about a point.

The weekly steel trade reviews showed little change in that industry. United States Steel common closed fractionally higher at 116 5-8 after fluctuating within a range of one point. Independent steels were mixed.

Skelly Oil assumed the leadership of the oil group by moving up a point to within a small fractional of the year's high. Buying of this issue was based on the discovery of deep sand producing high gravity oil in Lincoln county, Oklahoma. Independent Oil and Gas, which owns adjacent acreage, touched a new top at 41 3-4, but was unable to maintain its gain.

Mariand moved up a point to 45, but the other petroleum issues disclosed considerable irregularity.

Pierce Arrow prior preferred was the sensational individual feature, soaring 21 points to a record top at 145. The common and preferred touched record highs at 29 1-2 and 83, for net gains of 5 and 6 5-8 points respectively. Mack Trucks closed fractionally lower at 180 after selling as high as 183 3-8. The Maxwell and Dodge issues showed little change on the day. Moon Motors duplicated its 1925 peak.

United Cigar Stores jumped nearly 8 points to 80 5-8 and then fell back to 77 3-4 on profit taking. Net gains of 3 to 5 points also were recorded by American Express, Famous Players, Great Western Sugar, "Soo," preferred, Newport News Gas and Electric, Ward Baking A, and Universal Pipe and Radiator preferred.

Among the dozen or so issues to record new high prices for the year were Robert Reis, American Foreign Power, Southern Railway, American Telephone, Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, DuPont and Famous Players preferred.

Call money held steady at 3 3-4 per cent. all day. The time money market was quiet with 3 3-4 per cent. The ruling rate for maturities up to 3 months, and 4 pe cent. for the longer dates. Commercial paper rates were unchanged at 3 3-4 to 4 per cent.

Reactionary tendencies prevailed in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling ruled about one quarter cent lower around 4.85 1-2. Italian lira broke four points to 3.77 1-2 cents and slight recessions took place in a number of the other continental rates although French francs held firm around 4 3-4 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, June 17.—(A. P.)—Strength and activity of local traction issues and a few oil and motor liens absorbed most of the trading interest in today's rather colorless bond market. Prices generally held steady but fluctuated within narrow limits on a reduced volume of business.

(Special to The Bulletin.)
New London, June 17

Another "drink" of liquor that was found aboard rum-running boats in the Sound by United States Coast Guard craft, was destroyed today when 1,500 cases of McGuinness' stout, of the approximate value of $14,000, was emptied into Long Island Sound by a force of workers and under the supervision of Deputy Customs Inspector Jeremiah Dillon.

The liquor, which comprised the cargo of the French trawler, Sabina, which was seized off Block Island about a year ago, and which had been in storage at the customs house since that time, was taken from storage by the workers and placed aboard the trawler Baltimore I., which was also seized as a rum-runner a fortnight ago, and then taken to the vicinity of the race and emptied into the waters of Long Island Sound.

A man of about 35 and well dressed but a stranger hereabouts was arrested late this afternoon by Sergeant John Cavanaugh charged with indecent exposure and the offender of the law is now a prisoner at the police station.

The man went to the New London approach of the Thames river highway bridge where he attracted the attention of bridge attendants and occupants of automobiles when he removed the greater part of his raiment and started to parade about the highway. The man did not appear to be the victim of drink. One of the bridge attendants communicated with the police and when Sergeant Cavanaugh arrived at the structure the man had divested himself of practically all of his clothing. He was placed in an automobile and transferred to the police station.

William Page Miner, this city, and Miss Augusta Ellen Whaley, Groton, were wedded this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clark B. Whaley, Long Hill farm, Groton, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. Arthur D. Miner, this city, brother of the groom, was best man and Mrs. Harry C. Brogan, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Mr. Miner is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Miner, Naugatuck, and upon the conclusion of their wedding tour will reside at 27 Perry street, this city.

John Shevlin, a sailor attached to the United States Coast Guard and stationed at the state pier, was in New London last Sunday, and according to his own admission today he became intoxicated and fell a victim of a thief, while sleeping on Montauk avenue. When he awoke he discovered that his watch and chain was missing. Shavlin made a report of the robbery at the police station late this afternoon.

Judging from the activities of officers of the United States Coast Guard late yesterday, a close watch will be maintained on yachts that enter the harbor with their occupants scheduled to witness the Yale-Harvard boat races Friday, for coast guard officers boarded the steam yacht, Colleen, owned by Samuel Agar Salvage, wealthy New York silver manufacturer and took possession of four cases of whiskey which Mr. Salvage had caused to be put aboard the yacht for consumption of his race day guests. The liquor was put in storage, but a report of the seizure has not been made at the customs house, nor to United States Commissioner Russell E. Corcoran.

Edward Shea and Miss Deborah Sullivan, both of this city were joined in wedlock this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, the ceremony being performed by Rev. William C. Fitzsimmons, rector of the church, Adrian Murray was best man and Miss May Burke was bridesmaid. Mr. and Mrs. Shea will make their future home at 27 Squire street.

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of John L. Gannon, son of Mrs. Catherine Nordenhold, 96 Union street, and Miss Catherine O'Brien, Brooklyn, N. Y. The wedding will be solemnized the 24th inst.

Lieutenants of Police Putts and Sweeney, of the New York department who came to New London a week ago at the request of City Manager William A. Holt for the purpose of obtaining the ideas of the officers in endeavoring to attain greater efficiency of the local police department and which officers upon their return to New York were authorized to submit a tentative set of rules, which, if adopted by the local department would tend, to obtain the desired efficiency, today submitted by mail to the city manager the especially prepared set of rules and regulations. The rules and regulations as submitted have not been carefully perused by the city manager, but will be prior to the regular meeting of the city council next Monday night, and at which time, it is believed action as to whether the submitted rules and regulations will be accepted in part or entirely.

At the time of the visit to New London of Lieutenants Putts and Sweeney the officers spent the greater part of their time in ascertaining the methods now employed by the department in attempting to enforce law and order and also were furnished with copies of the present rules and regulations. That Lieutenants Sweeney and Putts have made drastic changes in some of the rules and regulations there is no doubt for it has been an acknowledged fact that some of the rules and regulations now in force are antiquated and obsolete and it will not be surprising if some of the suggestions offered by the [illegible] York officers are [illegible]

[illegible] Oil in Sa[illegible] Tablets For Puny Kids

Parent this spring, meeting, sneezing, run down and give the puny, undeveloped children Mc-Coy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. Every mother knows that cod liver oil is good, and that periods of good, healthy gain in their bones.

Doctors know all about them and so does Lee & Osgood Co. and all good pharmacists all over America, for they are in great demand, because they are not Nauseants but pleasure-taking Sweets.

A very sickly child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in seven months and is strong and healthy.

AN IMPORTANT CHANGE IN POLICY

STUDEBAKER herewith announces the discontinuance of the custom of presenting a new line of automobiles each year. Instead of bringing Studebaker Cars dramatically up-to-date once in twelve months, we shall keep them up-to-date all of the time—with every improvement and refinement made available by our great engineering and manufacturing resources. This policy not only directly benefits present Studebaker owners, but it also enables purchasers of new cars to obtain models that are always modern—without the necessity of waiting for annual changes, and without the danger of their new cars becoming obsolete.

BACK of this new policy is an amazing story—of interest to everyone who owns or expects to own an automobile.

The dramatic success of the present line of Studebaker Cars is one reason for this important change. Month after month we keep breaking records—sales keep piling up. This year we will sell almost four times as many automobiles as we produced in the big boom year which followed the war.

Owners report endurance records, even beyond our greatest expectations. Out in the rugged mountain regions where Studebaker sells four times its normal proportion of cars, owners talk about these models in the most extravagant terms. In 1924 the Corporation's sale of repair parts dropped to $10 per car per year. Mechanical stamina under severe usage—remarkable performance under the most difficult travel conditions—these are the qualities for which Studebaker Cars have long been noted.

Surely, these significant facts prove beyond any shadow of doubt that Studebaker Cars are so soundly engineered and manufactured and so eminently satisfactory in the hands of owners, that drastic annual changes are not required.

Improvements and refinements will be made from time to time. New features will be added. When our engineering department (maintained at a cost of more than half a million dollars a year) devises an improvement in any model, it will be made without regard to the calendar.
